With $800,000 Secret Cash, 'Pauper' Starves

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Bertha Adams was 71 and alone. For some reason she refused to spend any of her $800,000 in cash on food for herself and died of malnutrition after wasting away to 50 pounds, officials say. The cash and hundreds of valuable stock certificates were found in safe-deposit boxes two days before her death Sunday in a hospital, Mrs. Adams' court-appointed attorney said Monday. "I continue to be flabbergasted," said attorney Robert M. Leite. "It's hard to get over seeing that much money." Twenty-five year neighbors of the twice-married, reclusive widow, once a schoolteacher, were also flabbergasted. "We had no indication that the woman had a dime," said one, Russell Blair. "Her house looked like a pigpen and she got what clothes she had from the Salvation Army. She was starving to death and yet she wouldn't spend any money to get something to eat." Blair said neighbors used to take food to her. They reported her condition to state social workers early in March.

She weighed 50 pounds when taken from her home. A probate judge ruled her incompetent because of senility. He named Leite as her guardian.

She was first put in a nursing home, then transfered to the hospital where she died.

"Mrs. Adams was certainly in a pitiful condition," Leite said, adding that an initial check of her home revealed nothing to indicate that she was anything but a "victim of need. I examined Mrs. Adams' papers as a normal procedure," he continued. "I found a safe deposit box key and the numbers of two boxes."

A Friday examination at one bank revealed $600,000 in cash. A box at a different bank, examined the same day, contained $199,581.50 in cash, he said.

Inside the second were hundreds of stock certificates, including 740 shares of International Telephone and Telegraph, 139 shares of International Paper Co., 103 shares American Hoist and Derrick and 100 shares of Pancoastal Petroleum Co. Total value of the stock was not imediately made known. She also had a small collection of silver dollars and a checking account containing $210.75, Leite said. Leite said he's located a niece and nephew, whom he wouldn't identify. He said that since no will had been found he wasn't sure if they will get any of the wealth. Leite said he didn't know how she amassed the fortune. "It now appears she was a very good businesswoman," he said.

Invaders Gobble Up More Viet Territory

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Communist troops gobbled up more territory today in their speedy conquest of the central coast of South Vietnam, leaving the Saigon government in control of only about one-third of the country's land mass.

Government troops abandoned Qui Nhon, the third largest city about 280 miles northeast of Saigon, and North Vietnamese forces pushed close to Nha Trang, 100 miles down the coast, where rioting broke out as the Saigon regime's representatives fled.

The U.S. consulate in Nha Trang, which is 200 miles northeast of Saigon, burned its records and evacuated its staff. Shooting was heard in the city of 200,000 people, and at least one building was seen burning.

Next in the path of the North Vietnamese are Cam Ranh, Phan Rang and Phan Thiet, the last of the coastal enclaves.

With the abandonment of Qui Nhon in Binh Dinh Province, the Communists now occupy the upper half of South Vietnam and all of the central part except a dwindling strip along the coast — a total of 14 of 44 provinces and 74 of 243 district towns or two-thirds of the country.

However, Communist forces also control scattered areas in the Mekong Delta although the government still holds all the major towns and cities there.

The Saigon command reported fighting at Duc My and Minh Hoa, district capitals 15 miles north of Nha Trang, but other sources said North Vietnamese sappers had been spotted inside Nha Trang. The sources said most government administrative and military staffs had been evacuated from the threatened city.

Some fighting was reported around the Phu Cat air base, once a major U.S. Air Force base 20 miles north of Qui Nhon. But it, too, was overrun, and the Communist advance down the coast rolled on unchecked.

In neighboring Cambodia, President Lon Nol left the country for Indonesia and the United States expressing the hope that his departure would open the way for peace negotiations with the Khmer Rouge insurgents.

The Viet Cong in a broadcast said if President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam was ousted, it was ready for peace talks with a new Saigon government "to quickly settle all the affairs of South Vietnam." Former Premier Nguyen Cao Ky also called again for Thieu to quit, accusing him of poor leadership.

The United States began a new airlift of military supplies to Saigon to replace some of the hundreds of millions of dollars worth of equipment abandoned by the South Vietnamese army in the northern and central provinces. A big C5A Air Force transport made a nonstop flight from California with 14 howitzers and tons of ammunition and communications

Really Believes In His Religion

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Michael Halstead is paying $750 to advertise his "Foods for Life" health food store on the outfield fence during this year's Charleston Charlies baseball season. But Halstead, 74, is insisting the sign be covered from sundown Friday to sundown Saturday. A Seventh-Day Adventist, he explains: "I can't help it. The Bible tells me that Saturday, the seventh day, when the Lord rested, is the Sabbath. I don't work on Saturday and I don't want my business advertised." Carl Steinfeldt, general manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates farm club, says the decision could be costly. Weekend crowds are the largest at the stadium.

Motive In Slaying Of 11 Is Mystery

By ANDY LIPPMAN
Associated Press Writer

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — "You'd think someone would have attempted to make a break," Assistant Police Chief Gerald Rost said as officers tried to unravel the how and why of the murder of 11 members of the Ruppert family.

A 12th member of the family, James Ruppert, was charged with aggravated murder in the mass slaying at the two-story home of his mother, Charity Ruppert, during an Easter Sunday family gathering.

Killed were Mrs. Ruppert, 65; another son, Leonard, 42; his wife, Alma; and their eight children, ranging in age from 3 to 17.

Police said 10 of the victims had been shot in the head; the 11th was killed by a bullet wound in the chest.

"There is a possibility that victims were picked off one by one as they came into the house," John Holcomb, Hamilton prosecutor, said Monday. "It is a strange situation."

And Butler County Coroner Garret Boone said, "It's unlikely that 11 people would have been shot and killed unless they were held in some way or were in a position where none of them could escape."

Police said there was no sign of struggle; only the bodies and spent cartridges from three pistols and a rifle found in the house where James Ruppert lived with his mother.

Police also said they could establish no motive.

"This kind of murder usually has as its motive something like sex, or greed, or jealousy," said Police Chief George McNally. "We can find none of those things here.

They said James Ruppert, 40, has refused to talk about the case, and the unemployed draftsman remained silent at his arraignment Monday, when bond of $200,000 was set.

"Jimmy was a peaceful man, very quiet and reserved," said one neighbor.

Other neighbors called him a "loner."

One neighbor recalled a story Charity Ruppert told about her two sons, who were 10 and 12 when their father died.

"She said her kids were never allowed to be children," the neighbor said. "They were always men of the house because their father died at that early age."

Jury Selection Underway For Connally 'Milk' Trial

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — The painstaking process of picking a jury began today for the trial of John B. Connally, charged with accepting $10,000 in bribes while he was former President Richard M. Nixon's secretary of the treasury.

"This is a criminal case," assistant special prosecutor Frank M. Tuerkheimer said. "We are about to begin trial on two cases in which John Connally, in violation of law, is alleged to have received two $5,000 payments."

Chief U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr. summoned 75 prospective jurors for the winnowing process, and the proceeding began with Tuerkheimer asking them questions as a group.

Beside him was his attorney, Edward Bennett Williams, a noted trial lawyer. In the front row, inside the court rail, sat Connally's wife, Nellie, and an old friend Thomas "Tommy the Cork" Corcoran. Connally's three children were not there.

Connally, who served as governor of Texas three times in 1962-1968, declined to make any comment as he arrived at the courthouse 15 minutes before the beginning of the trial.

Proceedings were expected to take three weeks, and the jury will not be sequestered.

Tuerkheimer told the jury pool the reason for the questioning was to learn more about each individual. "We don't mean to pry but to try to elicit facts," he said.

Then he asked whether any of the members of the pool or members of their families knew anyone in the prosecutor's office or had any contacts with lawyers in the case. There was no response.

The prospective jurors reflected Washington's

Boy, 14, Dies Of Injuries

COLOMA — William Randall Sink, a 14-year-old Benton township boy injured in an auto-pedestrian accident near here March 15, died about 4 p.m. yesterday at Memorial hospital in St. Joseph.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Sink, 3193 Euclid avenue, had remained in critical condition since the accident.

Hospital officials said an autopsy is to be conducted to determine the cause of death.

If his death is determined to be the result of accident injuries, the youth will be Berrien county's ninth traffic victim this year and the fifth in Coloma township in 1975.

The accident occurred about 8:20 p.m., March 15, at the intersection of Paw Paw avenue and Paw Paw Lake road in Coloma township.

Coloma township police said witnesses told them that the youth apparently was hitchhiking and ran into the path of an auto driven by George E. Wooley, 50, 252 Pearl street, Coloma.

Wooley told police he was going about 30 miles per hour and had no chance to stop his car before the boy was struck.

No traffic citations were issued. Police said yesterday the accident is still under investigation.

Besides the Sink boy, other traffic deaths in Coloma township this year included a Hartford woman killed in a one-car crash, March 9, and three motorcyclists killed when their cycles were struck by a car, March 16.

Randy was born July 24, 1960, in Benton Harbor. He was a freshman at Coloma high school.

Surviving besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Sink, are three sisters, Sheryl Lynn, Shelly Ann and Jill Marlene, Benton Harbor; a stepsister, Monica Marie Hicks; a stepbrother, Kevin Allen Hicks, at home; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur DeWitt, Eau Claire and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sink, Benton Harbor; a stepgrandmother, Mrs. Kenneth Wood, Coloma; great-grandparents, Mrs. Otis Tidey and Willis DeWitt, Eau Claire and stepgreat-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Decker, Corpus Christi, Texas.

A Benton Harbor man, Jimmy L. Butt, has received the annual Distinguished Service Award of the agricultural engineering faculty of Michigan State university.

Butt, 1860 Smyers drive, is executive vice president of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE), which has its headquarters in St. Joseph.

He was presented the award during recent Farmers Week ceremonies on the MSU campus for 30 years of distinguished service in the field of agricultural engineering.

Butt, 53, has has been the top administrative official of the ASAE since he joined the society as executive secretary. The society, already headquartered in St. Joseph, hired Butt for the position in 1956 from Auburn university, Auburn, Ala., where he had been on the agricultural engineering faculty for 9 years.

Butt received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Auburn, and returned there to the join the faculty after service in World War II.

Under his guidance, the ASAE has grown in membership and in influence. The society currently has 7,400 professional members all across the United States and in 70 foreign countries, plus some 1,000 student members. Its technical publications go into some 90 countries.

The society's primary functions are the exchange of information on research and developments in the agricultural engineering field and the development and publication of standards for the field.

Butt was cited by the MSU agricultural engineering faculty both for his contributions to the ASME and for his leadership in gained increased participation and recognition of young men and students in agricultural engineering.

Mail Pilot Killed In Indiana Crash

CULVER, Ind. — A twin engine plane carrying U.S. mail crashed in a wooded area four miles east of here early this morning killing the pilot, according to Indiana state police at South Bend.

Killed in the crash was Gary Nickerson, 27, of Akron, Ohio, Indiana state police said. He was alone in the plane which crashed between 1:55 and 2:05 a.m.

The crash occurred about 27 miles south of South Bend, approximately a quarter mile off State Road 10, east of Culver in Marshall county. The plane carrying U.S. mail was enroute from Indianapolis to South Bend and had originated out of Youngstown, Ohio, state police said.

Federal Aviation administration officials, U.S. Postal authorities and state police remained at the crash scene today. Mail was reported scattered about the area and some of the mail was destroyed in the crash, state police said.

State police said the pilot had been in contact with Grissom Air Force base, Peru, Ind., and had issued a "mayday" call, just prior to the crash.

Michigan Not Only State Changing Its Sales Tax

Michigan residents learned last week they'll be paying 18 per cent more state income tax because voters last November repealed the sales tax on food and prescription drugs.

They may be interested to know that Michigan isn't the only state that's been fooling around with the sales tax — and then, necessarily in some cases, with other taxes. But the changes are going in all directions.

Connecticut, a small state with few pretensions to bigness, will lead the nation in at least one respect starting April 1. On that date the Nutmeg State's sales tax rate will rise from 6 to 7 per cent — the highest rate levied by any state in the Union. However, Connecticut residents can continue to console themselves with the fact that they pay no state income tax.

Many of the 44 other states that impose sales taxes also are contemplating changes. The states considering a reduction of the sales tax burden outnumbers those weighing an increase.

The proposed relief takes three different forms. New Jersey, for example, is studying a plan to overhaul its entire tax structure. As part of the package, the state sales tax rate would be lowered from 5 to 3 per cent. Measures were introduced in 17 other states to broaden the list of items exempt from the sales-tax or to permit a portion of the tax to be used as an income tax credit. Legislation to raise sales-tax rates or to apply the tax to previously exempt items was introduced in only six states.

Utah is a special case. A bill has been under consideration there to increase the tax rate as well as the number of exemptions. The aim, presumably, is to maintain the existing level of sales-tax revenue while easing the tax's impact on the poor, elderly and unemployed.

Since World War II, sales taxes have become the leading source of revenue for state governments. According to the Tax Foundation Inc., total collections in fiscal 1974 came to $22.5 billion — an increase of 14.2 per cent over the previous year. Tax Foundation says the rate of increase probably will be smaller this year because of legislation to reduce rates or otherwise lighten the sales-tax burden.

State sales taxes were first instituted on a broad scale in the mid-1930s, when state revenues were falling with the national income and public treasuries had been drained by relief expenditures. West Virginia had had such a tax since 1921 but no other state adopted a sales tax on a permanent basis until Mississippi did so in 1930.

The really rapid spread came in 1933-36. After the Kansas statute of 1937, no new state sales tax was adopted for 10 years. During this period nine sales-tax laws expired, were repealed, or were invalidated by the courts.

State governments are enamored of the sales tax because it is relatively easy to collect, with the main responsibility for collection falling on the merchant. In addition, sales-tax yields are stable, as well as high, particularly if food is included. Revenues decline in bad times but not so rapidly as the yield from taxes on specific commodities or on income. Still another advantage is that sales-tax revenue is produced in a steady flow.

To some, a principal drawback of the sales tax is its "regressive" nature. Levied at a uniform rate and without personal exemptions, the tax bears proportionately heavier on lower-income groups than on more prosperous members of the community.

On the other hand, the federal progressive income tax bears much more heavily on the prosperous than on the poor. So does the social security tax, although to a lesser extent. And, in most cases, so do real residential property taxes. Small or cheap homes pay far less than big or expensive homes yet probably cost local government far more to police, protect against fire, and otherwise serve.

There's enough "ability to pay" philosophy in the graduated federal income tax without making every other tax a "soak the middle class" weapon for zealous social reformers. The prevailing philosophy of taxation should be for people to pay for the services they get. No less a personage than Thomas Jefferson said that. And he was pretty liberal for his day.

Perhaps One Of Nixon's More Expensive Mistakes

Back in the 1950s, President Eisenhower formed a Science Office within the White House to keep him informed of fast changing developments in the scientific fields. The immediate impetus for the new body was the sudden emergence of the Soviet space program.

President Nixon disbanded the office, on grounds that it was an unnecessary expense. That could have been one of the more expensive mistakes of the Nixon presidency.

As the world moves into the last quarter of the twentieth century it is obvious that some momentous changes are taking place. The unsettled place of energy at this time is a case in point, but far from the only one.

Whether the problems of the moment involve energy, food, minerals, transportation, housing, conservation or almost any others, the key to solutions lies in better ways of doing things. Technological progress, if you will.

And that is right in the middle of science's ballpark. Some people fear science because it has the power to create destructive as well as constructive forces. That is a fear of ignorance for progress cannot and should not be stopped.

Using the best means available to solve problems and encourage new processes, techniques and materials for the future is the way to a better life for all peoples. Science has a major role — perhaps the primary role — to play in that process.

SUPPORT FOR 'GUILTY, BUT INSANE'

Editor,

Re: "Criminally Insane"

The new mental health code has brought fresh attention to the issue of releasing the "criminally insane." However, the issue was well-budded prior to the passage of the new code.

My experience with the convictions under "not guilty by reason of insanity" and sexual psychopath laws in another state was that while it may not have been the legislative or judically intended purpose to incarcerate these individuals indefinitely, a frequently experienced end result was indefinite incarceration in a mental hospital. The alternative was for the insanity defense not to have been invoked, or the sexual psychopath laws not to have been applied, which at most would have resulted in a finite sentence with the possibility of early parole for good behavior.

Roughly, in the last decade, various court decisions have found that a person, even though adjudicated criminally insane and ;or a sexual psychopath, could not be held involuntarily in a mental hospital unless receiving "active" treatment. Hence, such individuals began to be released from mental hospitals on a case by case basis. The new mental health code for Michigan basically switches the onus to the state to periodically review very involuntary hospitalization of an individual found to be mentally ill, rather than waiting for the individual to initiate legal proceedings for his own release. The end result is that a legal problem, that formerly was being disposed of through the mental health system, is now being returned to the legal system.

I, for one, wholeheartedly support the concept of "guilty, but insane" recently introduced into the legislature. If a person is not guilty, but insane, then his insanity becomes a civil matter. If he is guilty, but insane, there is a latitude in sentencing as well as a concept of mitigating circumstances; and in his rehabilitation under the correctional system, the person would be able to receive appropriate treatment for his mental illness just as he would receive appropriate treatment for an acute appendix.

COLOMA CONTEST GETS 'FINE' RATING

Editor,

I wish to thank Miss Susan Davis and her committee for the fine Miss jcoloma queen contest presented to the community on March 14. It was good to see more interest taken by the community in general. After all, that's what the glad festival is, people taking pride in the place where they live. Hoping with their help to bring Coloma a bigger and better glad festival in 1975.

Letters aimed at finding out if members of the St. Joseph and Benton Harbor Chambers of Commerce want the two groups to merge into a single twin city unit went into the mails today.

Leon J. Harris, president of the St. Joseph chamber, this morning confirmed rumors circulating for the past month that such a merger has been under consideration. He issued an official statement to the press for himself and President Ross Gilmore of the Benton Harbor chamber.

Hotelman Harris said that both he and Gilmore favor the proposed merger. He added that if response to today's letters is generally favorable, steps would be taken to effect a consolidation as quickly as possible.

The Benton Transit line steamer Bainbridge, which goes into commission today, will include South Haven as a port of call. The vessel will sail from Benton Harbor to Chicago, from Chicago to Benton Harbor thence to South Haven and from South Haven to Chicago via Benton Harbor Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

The whole city of Benton Harbor is smiling at Capt. James McDonald and President J.J. Miller, of the board of trade. These gentlemen took their wives in a carriage at an early hour Friday evening and started to drive out into the country a few miles to call on friends. Their spirits were up and their talk on the city's boom and the probability of Foeltzer's election grew so animated that they did not notice for some time where they were going. Finally Bro. McDonald intimated to Bro. Miller that they were not on the right road, but Mr. Miller had confidence in the direction and they went on. Soon the Captain again remonstrated and Mr. Miller started for a house to make inquiries, but a big black dog with a deep base voice came running out and Mr. Miller prudently retreated. So they went on and after traveling about eighteen miles the quartette reached St. Joseph at midnight, very tired and cold, and silently retired to their homes. They will select some other night to call on their friends in the country.

White Collar Crime Costly

WASHINGTON — A man who walks into a bank, holds up a teller and is convicted, is four times as likely to go to prison as a bank embezzler.

Yet the embezzler's take may be many times as great. It's estimated that bank frauds and such cost us four to six times more each year than bank robberies.

The average man found guilty of interstate theft has a 50 per cent greater chance of being set behind bars than his cousin found guilty of bribing a public official.

Statistics being what they are, these reports are undoubtedly imprecise. But they're close enough to the mark to point up a moral of sorts.

By and large, it would seem that the man who commits an economic crime is treated much more leniently than the man who breaks a shop window and steals a TV or mugs a passerby. But the statistics indicate most of us may suffer a great deal more from the stock manipulator, the sleazy home repair man, the dishonest mechanic, the seller of worthless land or the embezzler.

It is estimated, in fact, that white collar crime costs the nation $42 billion a year, perhaps enough to make the difference between a recession and moderate prosperity if pumped through normal channels. That $42 billion figures out at about $800 a year — tax free — for every family in the United States.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce estimates that half, or about $20 billion, is in consumer fraud and similar deceptive practices.

Payoffs, kickbacks and bribery nick us of $3 billion a year. The theft of securities and other stock frauds add up to more than $4 billion. Then there's pilferage, embezzlement, and on.

All this makes for higher prices. It is the root of a great deal of our official corruption, for much of this economic crime is possible only through the above mentioned kickbacks, bribery and payoffs.

Yet except for the flurry at Watergate, and an occasional headline over some multimillion dollar scandal, we have little stomach for the day-to-day detective work done nationally if we are to make a dent in this problem.

We forget Watergate was more the rule than the exception.

We forget too, that much of our violent and other physical crime is sponsored by the economic or white colar variety. Dealers in stolen goods all too frequently have regular customers who place orders in advance for so many dozen of these or so many cartons of that required in their business. We do little or nothing about these fences or the dishonest businessmen who use them.

Now the frauds we are talking about are limited to big business or small, to the rich or the poor. We have the door-to-door home repair fraud, and we have the big business price-fixing and phony warranty frauds. A well-to-do physician in Philadelphia has been sentenced to 60 days, $10,000 and three years probationary service and rehabilitation work for Medicare frauds. A computerized welfare fraud detection system has resulted in a significant caseload reduction where employed.

Much of the meager effort directed at economic crime is wasted. We catch the men involved after they have bilked us out of thousands or millions and the money dissipated. This is failure.

U.S. Liberals Can Take Credit

Half a million refugees, cities abandoned to the invader, the troops of an ally willing to fight forced instead to flee because of shortages of fuel, ammunition, and spare parts — all of this is the triumphant handiwork of American liberalism.

What the North Vietnamese had been unable to accomplish in a decade of warfare, vengeful liberals in Congress have now brought to pass in what must be the most shameful, the most morally repugnant chapter in American history.

Reasonable men can argue about our entire approach to the Vietnamese conflict, and astute critics like Bernard Fall and Sir Robert Thompson have had much to say on that score. My own opinion is that it was the height of folly to put large numbers of American draftees into the rice paddies. Instead, we should have dealt drastically with North Vietnam in 1966, dealt with it massively with B-52s from a height of 30,000 feet. That would have made the necessary point about the rewards of aggression.

But though you can argue in retrospect about our approach to the war, you cannot argue that a) having created a large and determined force of allies in the South, it is b) in any way defensible to cut off their fuel and ammunition and leave them to their fate.

Yet that is the position of American liberalism generally, and of Congressional liberals in particular. This makes what Neville Chamberlain did to Czechoslovakia look almost honorable by comparison.

The assumption behind the Paris accords worked out by Henry Kissinger in 1973 was that Saigon would receive sufficient aid to fend off the Communist invaders. The Secretary of State now says that, had he known then that Congress would slash aid the way it has, he could not in good conscience have conducted those negotiations. No wonder. Hanoi now deploys, for example, triple the number of tanks it used in its big 1972 offensive. During the past year, the Soviet Union has doubled its aid to the North.

The abandonment of key northern provinces, including the important city of Hue — with more doubtless to follow — is the direct result of trivial shortages in materiel: gasoline, for example, and the lubricants used in helicopters and tactical aircraft.

Such shortages, of course, are the handiwork of our present Watergate-backlash Congress, elected by one of the smallest voter turn-outs in modern political history. Our betrayal of an ally, one gathers, is part of the famous post-Watergate morality.

It is perfectly obvious that the present Communist offensive resulted from a clear perception of U.S. weakness, not material weakness but a weakness resulting from a collapse of political will.

If the planners in Hanoi had thought for a moment that carrier-based U.S. planes would provide tactical support for the South Vietnamese, there would have been no massive conventional offensive. The Communists saw a few too many laser-guided "smart bombs" when their 1972 offensive was crushed — Nixon's finest hour. Nor is there any good reasowhy we should not now provide such emergency tactical air support. Of course, Hanoi knows that thanks to Sen. Frank Church, Rep. Bella Abzug, and the like, no such support will be forthcoming.

For years, it has been routine for sophisticated liberal opinion to laugh at the domino theory. Well, a row of dominoes may not be the best image for what is taking place, but the North Vietnamese successes are sending out global shockwaves, from Thailand, where U.S. personnel are being invited to go home to the Middle East, where Israel is becoming much less inclined to credit U.S. assurances.

With $800,000 Secret Cash, 'Pauper' Starves

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Bertha Adams was 71 and alone. For some reason she refused to spend any of her $800,000 in cash on food for herself and died of malnutrition after wasting away to 50 pounds, officials say. The cash and hundreds of valuable stock certificates were found in safe-deposit boxes two days before her death Sunday in a hospital, Mrs. Adams' court-appointed attorney said Monday. "I continue to be flabbergasted," said attorney Robert M. Leite. "It's hard to get over seeing that much money." Twenty-five year neighbors of the twice-married, reclusive widow, once a schoolteacher, were also flabbergasted. "We had no indication that the woman had a dime," said one, Russell Blair. "Her house looked like a pigpen and she got what clothes she had from the Salvation Army. She was starving to death and yet she wouldn't spend any money to get something to eat." Blair said neighbors used to take food to her. They reported her condition to state social workers early in March.

She weighed 50 pounds when taken from her home. A probate judge ruled her incompetent because of senility. He named Leite as her guardian.

She was first put in a nursing home, then transfered to the hospital where she died.

"Mrs. Adams was certainly in a pitiful condition," Leite said, adding that an initial check of her home revealed nothing to indicate that she was anything but a "victim of need. I examined Mrs. Adams' papers as a normal procedure," he continued. "I found a safe deposit box key and the numbers of two boxes."

A Friday examination at one bank revealed $600,000 in cash. A box at a different bank, examined the same day, contained $199,581.50 in cash, he said.

Inside the second were hundreds of stock certificates, including 740 shares of International Telephone and Telegraph, 139 shares of International Paper Co., 103 shares American Hoist and Derrick and 100 shares of Pancoastal Petroleum Co. Total value of the stock was not imediately made known. She also had a small collection of silver dollars and a checking account containing $210.75, Leite said. Leite said he's located a niece and nephew, whom he wouldn't identify. He said that since no will had been found he wasn't sure if they will get any of the wealth. Leite said he didn't know how she amassed the fortune. "It now appears she was a very good businesswoman," he said.

Invaders Gobble Up More Viet Territory

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Communist troops gobbled up more territory today in their speedy conquest of the central coast of South Vietnam, leaving the Saigon government in control of only about one-third of the country's land mass.

Government troops abandoned Qui Nhon, the third largest city about 280 miles northeast of Saigon, and North Vietnamese forces pushed close to Nha Trang, 100 miles down the coast, where rioting broke out as the Saigon regime's representatives fled.

The U.S. consulate in Nha Trang, which is 200 miles northeast of Saigon, burned its records and evacuated its staff. Shooting was heard in the city of 200,000 people, and at least one building was seen burning.

Next in the path of the North Vietnamese are Cam Ranh, Phan Rang and Phan Thiet, the last of the coastal enclaves.

With the abandonment of Qui Nhon in Binh Dinh Province, the Communists now occupy the upper half of South Vietnam and all of the central part except a dwindling strip along the coast — a total of 14 of 44 provinces and 74 of 243 district towns or two-thirds of the country.

However, Communist forces also control scattered areas in the Mekong Delta although the government still holds all the major towns and cities there.

The Saigon command reported fighting at Duc My and Minh Hoa, district capitals 15 miles north of Nha Trang, but other sources said North Vietnamese sappers had been spotted inside Nha Trang. The sources said most government administrative and military staffs had been evacuated from the threatened city.

Some fighting was reported around the Phu Cat air base, once a major U.S. Air Force base 20 miles north of Qui Nhon. But it, too, was overrun, and the Communist advance down the coast rolled on unchecked.

In neighboring Cambodia, President Lon Nol left the country for Indonesia and the United States expressing the hope that his departure would open the way for peace negotiations with the Khmer Rouge insurgents.

The Viet Cong in a broadcast said if President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam was ousted, it was ready for peace talks with a new Saigon government "to quickly settle all the affairs of South Vietnam." Former Premier Nguyen Cao Ky also called again for Thieu to quit, accusing him of poor leadership.

The United States began a new airlift of military supplies to Saigon to replace some of the hundreds of millions of dollars worth of equipment abandoned by the South Vietnamese army in the northern and central provinces. A big C5A Air Force transport made a nonstop flight from California with 14 howitzers and tons of ammunition and communications

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Michael Halstead is paying $750 to advertise his "Foods for Life" health food store on the outfield fence during this year's Charleston Charlies baseball season. But Halstead, 74, is insisting the sign be covered from sundown Friday to sundown Saturday. A Seventh-Day Adventist, he explains: "I can't help it. The Bible tells me that Saturday, the seventh day, when the Lord rested, is the Sabbath. I don't work on Saturday and I don't want my business advertised." Carl Steinfeldt, general manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates farm club, says the decision could be costly. Weekend crowds are the largest at the stadium.

Motive In Slaying Of 11 Is Mystery

By ANDY LIPPMAN
Associated Press Writer

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — "You'd think someone would have attempted to make a break," Assistant Police Chief Gerald Rost said as officers tried to unravel the how and why of the murder of 11 members of the Ruppert family.

Killed were Mrs. Ruppert, 65; another son, Leonard, 42; his wife, Alma; and their eight children, ranging in age from 3 to 17.

Police said 10 of the victims had been shot in the head; the 11th was killed by a bullet wound in the chest.

"There is a possibility that victims were picked off one by one as they came into the house," John Holcomb, Hamilton prosecutor, said Monday. "It is a strange situation."

And Butler County Coroner Garret Boone said, "It's unlikely that 11 people would have been shot and killed unless they were held in some way or were in a position where none of them could escape."

Police said there was no sign of struggle; only the bodies and spent cartridges from three pistols and a rifle found in the house where James Ruppert lived with his mother.

Police also said they could establish no motive.

"This kind of murder usually has as its motive something like sex, or greed, or jealousy," said Police Chief George McNally. "We can find none of those things here.

They said James Ruppert, 40, has refused to talk about the case, and the unemployed draftsman remained silent at his arraignment Monday, when bond of $200,000 was set.

"Jimmy was a peaceful man, very quiet and reserved," said one neighbor.

Other neighbors called him a "loner."

One neighbor recalled a story Charity Ruppert told about her two sons, who were 10 and 12 when their father died.

"She said her kids were never allowed to be children," the neighbor said. "They were always men of the house because their father died at that early age."

Jury Selection Underway For Connally 'Milk' Trial

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — The painstaking process of picking a jury began today for the trial of John B. Connally, charged with accepting $10,000 in bribes while he was former President Richard M. Nixon's secretary of the treasury.

"This is a criminal case," assistant special prosecutor Frank M. Tuerkheimer said. "We are about to begin trial on two cases in which John Connally, in violation of law, is alleged to have received two $5,000 payments."

Chief U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr. summoned 75 prospective jurors for the winnowing process, and the proceeding began with Tuerkheimer asking them questions as a group.

Beside him was his attorney, Edward Bennett Williams, a noted trial lawyer. In the front row, inside the court rail, sat Connally's wife, Nellie, and an old friend Thomas "Tommy the Cork" Corcoran. Connally's three children were not there.

Connally, who served as governor of Texas three times in 1962-1968, declined to make any comment as he arrived at the courthouse 15 minutes before the beginning of the trial.

Proceedings were expected to take three weeks, and the jury will not be sequestered.

Tuerkheimer told the jury pool the reason for the questioning was to learn more about each individual. "We don't mean to pry but to try to elicit facts," he said.

Then he asked whether any of the members of the pool or members of their families knew anyone in the prosecutor's office or had any contacts with lawyers in the case. There was no response.

Mail Pilot Killed In Indiana Crash

CULVER, Ind. — A twin engine plane carrying U.S. mail crashed in a wooded area four miles east of here early this morning killing the pilot, according to Indiana state police at South Bend.

Killed in the crash was Gary Nickerson, 27, of Akron, Ohio, Indiana state police said. He was alone in the plane which crashed between 1:55 and 2:05 a.m.

The crash occurred about 27 miles south of South Bend, approximately a quarter mile off State Road 10, east of Culver in Marshall county. The plane carrying U.S. mail was enroute from Indianapolis to South Bend and had originated out of Youngstown, Ohio, state police said.

Federal Aviation administration officials, U.S. Postal authorities and state police remained at the crash scene today. Mail was reported scattered about the area and some of the mail was destroyed in the crash, state police said.

State police said the pilot had been in contact with Grissom Air Force base, Peru, Ind., and had issued a "mayday" call, just prior to the crash.

Boy, 14, Dies Of Injuries

COLOMA — William Randall Sink, a 14-year-old Benton township boy injured in an auto-pedestrian accident near here March 15, died about 4 p.m. yesterday at Memorial hospital in St. Joseph.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Sink, 3193 Euclid avenue, had remained in critical condition since the accident.

Hospital officials said an autopsy is to be conducted to determine the cause of death.

If his death is determined to be the result of accident injuries, the youth will be Berrien county's ninth traffic victim this year and the fifth in Coloma township in 1975.

The accident occurred about 8:20 p.m., March 15, at the intersection of Paw Paw avenue and Paw Paw Lake road in Coloma township.

Coloma township police said witnesses told them that the youth apparently was hitchhiking and ran into the path of an auto driven by George E. Wooley, 50, 252 Pearl street, Coloma.

Wooley told police he was going about 30 miles per hour and had no chance to stop his car before the boy was struck.

No traffic citations were issued. Police said yesterday the accident is still under investigation.

Besides the Sink boy, other traffic deaths in Coloma township this year included a Hartford woman killed in a one-car crash, March 9, and three motorcyclists killed when their cycles were struck by a car, March 18.

Randy was born July 24, 1960, in Benton Harbor. He was a freshman at Coloma high school.

Surviving besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Sink, are three sisters, Sheryl Lynn, Shelly Ann and Jill Marlene, Benton Harbor; a stepsister, Monica Marie Hicks; a stephrother, Kevin Allen Hicks, at home; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur DeWitt, Eau Claire and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sink, Benton Harbor; a stepgrandmother, Mrs. Kenneth Wood, Coloma; great-grandparents, Mrs. Otis Tidey and Willis DeWitt, Eau Claire and stepgreat-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Decker, Corpus Christi, Texas.

BH EYES $4 MILLION HOUSING COMPLEX

Rezoning Hearing Is April 21

The Benton Harbor city commission voted last night to hold a public hearing April 21 on rezoning of 12 acres for a proposed $4 million housing complex to be built south of Britain avenue between Ninth and Eighth streets.

The public hearing on the rezoning of the site, which would be rezoned from its light industrial to high density residential, is required by the federal Housing and Urban Development (HUD) office. HUD owns the tract because it is urban renewal land.

The land for the 200-unit housing complex is slated to be purchased from HUD by the city for $40,000. The city would then lease the site to BNR Developers, a private firm from Chicago. Construction of the housing complex is scheduled to begin in May.

The rezoning issue was also referred to the city planning commission for study.

In other areas, the commission approved the continuation of funds for three Model Cities programs. All funding for Model Cities programs was scheduled to end March 31, but programs which had funds remaining were given extensions to operate the programs until funds ran out.

The commission tentatively approved continuation for funds of Operation Latchkey, sponsored by People for Peace, with the provision that if they do not receive funds from the Department of Social Services, the Model Cities funds would be withdrawn.

The provision came after Melvin Farmer, Model Cities director, told the commission that Operation Latchkey had released all of its aides and was not currently running the program because funding from social services had not been approved.

Operation Latchkey intended to provide recreational and cultural activities to children 7 to 12 years of age using facilities at Bard and Seely McCord schools. Seventy-five per cent of the total $171,000 program was anticipated from social services but the funding has not yet been approved.

Commissioner Carl Brown offered the resolution stating that the original request for Model Cities funds had been granted because the Operation Latchkey program had led them to believe that they were receiving the social service funds. "What we are doing here is supplying money so that the program directors can run a now defunct program," Brown said.

Continuation of the Community Parents, Inc., day care program, until June 30, and the Peoples Community Federal Credit Union, until May 31, were both approved.

The commission voted to discontinue its study of a request for funds from the Benton Harbor Youth Assistance committee. Lawrence T. Sherman had made the request last week to the commission, but Mrs. Marlene Cooper, chairman of the committee, was later quoted as saying the committee did not want to solicit funds from the city.

In other action, the commission:

— Welcomed Commissioner Carl Brown back to commission meetings. Brown was admitted to Mercy hospital March 18 with a bleeding ulcer and was released last Tuesday.

— Received word from Rep. Edward Hutchinson that the cits will soon receive two American flags it had requested which have been flown over the U.S. Capitol building.

Police Begin Crackdown On Expired License Tabs

Twin Cities area police started issuing tickets for driving with expired license tabs at one minute after midnight this morning—as a total of 16 motorists discovered. The 1974 auto tabs expired at midnight, and studded snow tires became illegal at the same time. No department reported issuing tickets for studded tires. As of 6 a.m. today, Berrien county sheriff's deputies issued eight tickets for expired license tabs; St. Joseph township police issued five; Benton township police issued two; and state police of the Benton Harbor post issued one.

No tickets were issued in the early hours by Benton Harbor police or St. Joseph police.

ST. JOE JOINS AMBULANCE COALITION

But Membership Is Contingent On Others Signing Up

St. Joseph city commission last night voted to join a proposed community emergency ambulance service, provided that other area municipalities also affiliate.

Two commissioners were absent, but the three present voted to accept articles of incorporation. St. Joseph was the first Twin City area municipality to act on the articles of incorporation.

Other municipalities proposed for membership are Benton Harbor, and the Townships of Benton, Lincoln, Royalton, Sodus and St. Joseph.

Benton Harbor city commissioners last night tabled the articles for two more weeks of study.

St. Joseph City Manager G.W. Heppler said St. Joseph would be called on to pay 15 per cent of the cost of an emergency service under the articles . An estimate on the total cost of the service is not yet known.

Under the articles any "contribution" made to the emergency ambulance service by the participating member would be on the basis of population.

Heppler said St. Joseph also paid 15 per cent of the cost when it was subsidizing Action ambulance service. Total cost for that service was $30,000, according to Heppler.

Prior to last night's commission meeting, Heppler said it appears the new authority, if accepted, may try to negotiate with an existing ambulance service instead of starting a new one.

Mrs. Pymn has worked daily on project since last September. Food bank now is providing 23 elderly people each with bag of nonperishables each month. Different people are recipients each month. Mrs. Pymn said her church and its organizations and other people, including her husband, Robert, and two older children, have helped program grow. Many help make, collect and distribute food. Mrs. Pymn said she has learned numerous old people are living at near-starvation level in area, too proud to ask assistance. (Staff photo)

SJ OKs Dickinson Home Run Fence

By STEVE SAGER
Staff Writer

"Hey! Hey!" .

That common baseball expression may be frequently heard around Dickinson field this spring and summer as the St. Joseph city commission last night voted to allow a home run fence to be put up at the diamond.

The decision was reached after considerable audience debate. The St. Joseph Baseball Boosters will be in charge of financing, putting up and taking down the fence. The fence is to be put up in April in time for the high school baseball season every year and taken down in September.

Among them were:

—Opposition to any hardball (baseball) diamond being in city parks because it limits the use of the park for others and could be dangerous to others.

—Once the fence is up ("like taxes") it won't come down.

—Existing baseball programs have gotten along without a fence prior to now.

Among them were:

—The fence will only be up for the baseball season which leaves considerable time for other people to use the park.

—Dickinson may be the best field to use during the spring due to wetness at other fields.

—The park can still be used for other activities while the fence is up and a completed baseball diamond is an excellent facility for the city's youth.

In other business,two members of United For Survival (UFS) appeared before the meeting and once again asked for a commission stand on the proposed I-94 penetrator.

The commission declined and was unable, for a lack of presence of two members, to provide a stand representing all its members. .

In other business the commission voted to continue a sidewalk inspection and repair program that began in 1960-61.

The program will begin this year on April 15 and will encompass the northeast section of the city. The engineer's department will inspect right-of-way sidewalks in the area bounded by Main street, Langley avenue, Port street and Hoyt street.

Notices will be made to residents whose sidewalks do not meet city standards. Notified residents may have the needed repairs made, or authorize the city to contract the repairs at the resident's expense.

Heppler also reported to the commission last night that the fire station remodeling job is completely finished. It cost $85,906 to do the job which ran $413 over the $85,493 estimated before work began. The cost was provided by federal revenue sharing.

MOTH MYSTERY: How a moth got inside an automobile rotor and built a cocoon is a mystery to Skip Schinck, mechanic at Ace Garage, US-31 in Hagar township. Schinck, of Hagar Shore, was working on car owned by Walter N. Roung, Lake Michigan Beach. Schinck said rotor had not been opened since repairs over a year ago and could not determine how moth got in, how it survived or how it could build its cocoon. (Staff photos)

CLOSEUP: Cocoon is nesting inside rotor that Skip Schink took off car. He replaced it with another rotor and hopes cocoon will hatch peacefully.

Stephen Upton To Speak At BUW Award Luncheon

Stephen E. Upton, vice president of consumer and public affairs for Whirlpool Corp., has been named keynote speaker for the second annual Blossomland United Way awards luncheon, according to Carroll Gerbel, 1974 campaign chairman and Henry Tippett, BUW president.

Winners of the Good Neighbor award qualified with significant increases in per capita giving over the previous year. The award is also conferred for maintaining outstanding support, and other meritorious contributions to United Way. Gerbel indicated 94 groups of employes in the BUW region won this prize.

Set Homemaker Classes

Begin Friday

Spring training sessions for Homemakers will be held by the Homemaker Service of Child and Family Services of Michigan on four consecutive Fridays in April.

The training sessions will be held April 4, 11, 18 and 25 from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

According to Mrs. Mary Fassnacht, supervisor of Homemaker Service, there is no charge for the training sessions.

Any woman or man interested in helping people in their homes is invited to attend the classes which will be held at the offices of Child and Family Services, 2000 State street, St. Joseph.

Homemakers provide a valuable service for people who need help in time of crisis due to illness, old age, handicaps or the absence of one or both parents from the home, Mrs. Fassnacht says.

Most of the work is part time, from three to four hours a day to eight hours five days a week. "Homemaker work," says Mrs. Fassnacht, "is an excellent way to supplement one's income through meaningful service to someone who really needs that service."

Registration for the training sessions should be made as soon as possible by contacting the Homemaker Service at Child and Family Service, St. Joseph. Persons in south Berrien county may call Mrs. William Conn at Buchanan, coordinator for that area.

CHILD CARE: Mrs. Cordia Hamilton is a homemaker for the Homemaker Service of Child and Family Services of Michigan and as part of her duties care for twins, Benjamin and Robert Chabot, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chabot of Riverside. New training sessions for homemakers will be held in April at no charge to those interested.

Leftover Ham? Try These

Frustrating isn't it? You thought you were being so clever buying a good sized ham for Easter dinner so there would be plenty of leftovers for future meals. But along about now you're fresh out of ideas and there's still ham left.

If the only thing you can think of is trying to use leftover ham for that same old ham salad take heart! Home economists have pulled a couple of new recipes out of the hat that will make that ham disappear right before your eyes!

Magic Wand Ham Pie waves away the last of the ham in the wink of an eye. Your great escape from the last few traces of what was once Easter dinner is a ham loaf topped with a fluffy potato mixture. Beaten egg whites turn an envelope of instant mashed potato granules into a light and airy crowning touch for the ham pie.

Yam-Ananas is a quick trick with just a cup of diced ham. Bananas combine with the ham bits in a creamy sauce easily created from an envelope of cheese sauce mix. Serve over English muffins for an extra quick luncheon or supper dish.

MAGIC WAND HAM PIE

MAGIC WAND HAM PIE

3 eggs
¼ cup milk
2 cups finely diced cooked ham
2 slices bread, torn into small pieces
¼ cup drained pickle relish
1 cup shredded Swiss cheese
1 envelope (5-servings) instant mashed potato granules

Lightly beat together one egg and milk. Add ham, bread and pickle relish; mix lightly. Spoon into well-greased eight or nine-inch pie pan. Sprinkle with half the cheese. Prepare mashed potatoes, following directions on package. Separate remaining two eggs; stir slightly beaten egg yolks into potatoes. Beat egg whites until stiff peaks form; fold into potatoes. Spread on top of ham mixture; sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 to 50 minutes, until puffed and lightly browned. Makes six servings.

HAM-ANANAS

1 envelope (1¼-oz.) cheese sauce mix
¼ cup dairy sour cream
1 cup diced cooked ham
2 bananas, sliced
1 to 2 teaspoons parsley flakes
4 English muffins, split, toasted and buttered

Prepare cheese sauce mix as directed on envelope. Add sour cream; stir until well blended. Stir in ham, bananas and parsley flakes; heat five to 10 minutes. Serve over toasted muffins. Makes four servings.

ATTENTION!

Future Brides

Brides-to-be planning engagement announcements and wedding stories in this newspaper are asked to observe the following rules:

Engagement and wedding forms are available in the women's department at The Herald-Palladium offices in Benton Harbor or St. Joseph. The pertinent information should be typed or plainly printed in filling out these forms to prevent errors.

Wedding forms should be picked up at least two weeks and turned in one week before the wedding is to take place.

When wedding information is sent within two months of the engagement announcement date, only ONE picture will be run. The bride-to-be may have her choice.

Only pictures of the bride in her wedding dress will be used. Formal glossy black and white portraits are preferred.

Clean Cutting Board

Clean a cutting board after each use whether it is part of the counter, atop a dishwasher or a separate piece.

Use suds and a stiff brush. To remove stubborn stains, let dampened scouring powder remain in contact with the wood for 15-20 minutes. Then scrub and wipe away.

It may be necessary to recondition the board after an extended period of use (especially cutting) by sanding off all the remaining lacquer and applying mineral oil to the board. Simply saturate a clean cloth with oil and wipe on. Allow overnight absorption.

Applications For Grant Due April 7

Application forms for the 1975 educational grants awarded by the Benton Harbor-St. Joseph branch of the American Association of University Women must be returned by Monday, April 7.

The grants, usually in the amount of $300, are awarded to professional women in the twin city area who have earned a bachelor's degree and are seeking an advanced degree.

Anyone wishing additional information may contact Mrs. John Hammond, St. Joseph, AAUW fellowships chairman.

Eliminate Odors

You will not need to worry about odors when cooking certain vegetables if you place a saucer filled with vinegar on a nearby counter.

Or lay orange peelings on your oven racks and turn the oven to about 350 degrees. You will be surprised at the delicious woody smell the orange peelings emit, completely stifling any other odors.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

Michigan Not Only State Changing Its Sales Tax

Michigan residents learned last week they'll be paying 18 per cent more state income tax because voters last November repealed the sales tax on food and prescription drugs.

They may be interested to know that Michigan isn't the only state that's been fooling around with the sales tax — and then, necessarily in some cases, with other taxes. But the changes are going in all directions.

Connecticut, a small state with few pretensions to bigness, will lead the nation in at least one respect starting April 1. On that date the Nutmeg State's sales tax rate will rise from 6 to 7 per cent — the highest rate levied by any state in the Union. However, Connecticut residents can continue to console themselves with the fact that they pay no state income tax.

Many of the 44 other states that impose sales taxes also are contemplating changes. The states considering a reduction of the sales tax burden outnumbers those weighing an increase.

The proposed relief takes three different forms. New Jersey, for example, is studying a plan to overhaul its entire tax structure. As part of the package, the state sales tax rate would be lowered from 5 to 3 per cent. Measures were introduced in 17 other states to broaden the list of items exempt from the sales tax or to permit a portion of the tax to be used as an income tax credit. Legislation to raise sales-tax rates or to apply the tax to previously exempt items was introduced in only six states.

Utah is a special case. A bill has been under consideration there to increase the tax rate as well as the number of exemptions. The aim, presumably, is to maintain the existing level of sales-tax revenue while easing the tax's impact on the poor, elderly and unemployed.

Since World War II, sales taxes have become the leading source of revenue for state governments. According to the Tax Foundation Inc., total collections in fiscal 1974 came to $22.5 billion — an increase of 14.2 per cent over the previous year. Tax Foundation says the rate of increase probably will be smaller this year because of legislation to reduce rates or otherwise lighten the sales-tax burden.

State sales taxes were first instituted on a broad scale in the mid-1930s, when state revenues were falling with the national income and public treasuries had been drained by relief expenditures. West Virginia had had such a tax since 1921 but no other state adopted a sales tax on a permanent basis until Mississippi did so in 1930.

The really rapid spread came in 1933-36. After the Kansas statute of 1937, no new state sales tax was adopted for 10 years. During this period nine sales-tax laws expired, were repealed, or were invalidated by the courts.

State governments are enamored of the sales tax because it is relatively easy to collect, with the main responsibility for collection falling on the merchant. In addition, sales-tax yields are stable, as well as high, particularly if food is included. Revenues decline in bad times but not so rapidly as the yield from taxes on specific commodities or on income. Still another advantage is that sales-tax revenue is produced in a steady flow.

To some, a principal drawback of the sales tax is its "regressive" nature. Levied at a uniform rate and without personal exemptions, the tax bears proportionately heavier on lower-income groups than on more prosperous members of the community.

On the other hand, the federal progressive income tax bears much more heavily on the prosperous than on the poor. So does the social security tax, although to a lesser extent. And, in most cases, so do real residential property taxes. Small or cheap homes pay far less than big or expensive homes yet probably cost local government far more to police, protect against fire, and otherwise serve.

There's enough "ability to pay" philosophy in the graduated federal income tax without making every other tax á "soak the middle class" weapon for zealous social reformers. The prevailing philosophy of taxation should be for people to pay for the services they get. No less a personage than Thomas Jefferson said that. And he was pretty liberal for his day.

Perhaps One Of Nixon's More Expensive Mistakes

Back in the 1950s, President Eisenhower formed a Science Office within the White House to keep him informed of fast changing developments in the scientific fields. The immediate impetus for the new body was the sudden emergence of the Soviet space program.

President Nixon disbanded the office, on grounds that it was an unnecessary expense. That could have been one of the more expensive mistakes of the Nixon presidency.

As the world moves into the last quarter of the twentieth century it is obvious that some momentous changes are taking place. The unsettled place of energy at this time is a case in point, but far from the only one.

Whether the problems of the moment involve energy, food, minerals, transportation, housing, conservation or almost any others, the key to solutions lies in better ways of doing things. Technological progress, if you will.

And that is right in the middle of science's ballpark. Some people fear science because it has the power to create destructive as well as constructive forces. That is a fear of ignorance for progress cannot and should not be stopped.

Using the best means available to solve problems and encourage new processes, techniques and materials for the future is the way to a better life for all peoples. Science has a major role — perhaps the primary role — to play in that process.

SUPPORT FOR 'GUILTY, BUT INSANE'

Editor,

Re: "Criminally Insane"

The new mental health code has brought fresh attention to the issue of releasing the "criminally insane." However, the issue was well-budded prior to the passage of the new code.

My experience with the convictions under "not guilty by reason of insanity" and sexual psychopath laws in another state was that while it may not have been the legislative or judicially intended purpose to incarcerate these individuals indefinitely, a frequently experienced end result was indefinite incarceration in a mental hospital. The alternative was for the insanity defense not to have been invoked, or the sexual psychopath laws not to have been applied, which at most would have resulted in a finite sentence with the possibility of early parole for good behavior.

Roughly, in the last decade, various court decisions have found that a person, even though adjudicated criminally insane and ;or a sexual psychopath, could not be held involuntarily in a mental hospital unless receiving "active" treatment. Hence, such individuals began to be released from mental hospitals on a case by case basis. The new mental health code for Michigan basically switches the onus to the state to periodically review very involuntary hospitalization of an individual found to be mentally ill, rather than waiting for the individual to initiate legal proceedings for his own release. The end result is that a legal problem, that formerly was being disposed of through the mental health system, is now being returned to the legal system.

I, for one, wholeheartedly support the concept of "guilty, but insane" recently introduced into the legislature. If a person is not guilty, but insane, then his insanity becomes a civil matter. If he is guilty, but insane, there is a latitude in sentencing as well as a concept of mitigating circumstances; and in his rehabilitation under the correctional system, the person would be able to receive appropriate treatment for his mental illness just as he would receive appropriate treatment for an acute appendix.

COLOMA CONTEST GETS 'FINE' RATING

Editor,

I wish to thank Miss Susan Davis and her committee for the fine Miss Jcoloma queen contest presented to the community on March 14. It was good to see more interest taken by the community in general. After all, that's what the glad festival is, people taking pride in the place where they live. Hoping with their help to bring Coloma a bigger and better glad festival in 1975.

The first day of spring, Thursday, March 20. The sun is shining bright with brilliant colors of yellow and orange. The grass is green, the sky is blue, and not a cloud in sight.

The warmth of the sun beat down upon me. The day is fresh and alive. The air smells fresh and clean. Such a sweet aroma of mother nature.

Letters aimed at finding out if members of the St. Joseph and Benton Harbor Chambers of Commerce want the two groups to merge into a single twin city unit went into the mails today.

Leon J. Harris, president of the St. Joseph chamber, this morning confirmed rumors circulating for the past month that such a merger has been under consideration. He issued an official statement to the press for himself and President Ross Gilmore of the Benton Harbor chamber.

Hotelman Harris said that both he and Gilmore favor the proposed merger. He added that if response to today's letters is generally favorable, steps would be taken to effect a consolidation as quickly as possible.

The vessel will sail from Benton Harbor to Chicago, from Chicago to Benton Harbor thence to South Haven and from South Haven to Chicago via Benton Harbor Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

The whole city of Benton Harbor is smiling at Capt. James McDonald and President J.J. Miller, of the board of trade. These gentlemen took their wives in a carriage at an early hour Friday evening and started to drive out into the country a few miles to call on friends. Their spirits were up and their talk on the city's boom and the probability of Foeltzer's election grew so animated that they did not notice for some time where they were going. Finally Bro. McDonald intimated to Bro. Miller that they were not on the right road, but Mr. Miller had confidence in the direction and they went on. Soon the Captain again remonstrated and Mr. Miller started for a house to make inquiries, but a big black dog with a deep base voice came running out and Mr. Miller prudently retreated. So they went on and after traveling about eighteen miles the quartette reached St. Joseph at midnight, very tired and cold, and silently retired to their homes. They will select some other night to call on their friends in the country.

White Collar Crime Costly

WASHINGTON — A man who walks into a bank, holds up a teller and is convicted, is four times as likely to go to prison as a bank embezzler.

Yet the embezzler's take may be many times as great. It's estimated that bank frauds and such cost us four to six times more each year than bank robberies.

The average man found guilty of interstate theft has a 50 per cent greater chance of being set behind bars than his cousin found guilty of bribing a public official.

Statistics being what they are, these reports are undoubtedly imprecise. But they're close enough to the mark to point up a moral of sorts.

By and large, it would seem that the man who commits an economic crime is treated much more leniently than the man who breaks a shop window and steals a TV or mugs a passerby. But the statistics indicate most of us may suffer a great deal more from the stock manipulator, the sleazy home repair man, the dishonest mechanic, the seller of worthless land or the embezzler.

It is estimated, in fact, that white collar crime costs the nation $42 billion a year, perhaps enough to make the difference between a recession and moderate prosperity if pumped through normal channels. That $42 billion figures out at about $800 a year — tax free — for every family in the United States.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce estimates that half, or about $20 billion, is in consumer fraud and similar deceptive practices.

Payoffs, kickbacks and bribery nick us of $3 billion a year. The theft of securities and other stock frauds add up to more than $4 billion. Then there's pilferage, embezzlement, and on.

All this makes for higher prices. It is the root of a great deal of our official corruption, for much of this economic crime is possible only through the above mentioned kickbacks, bribery and payoffs.

Yet except for the flurry at Watergate, and an occasional headline over some multimillion dollar scandal, we have little stomach for the day-to-day detective work done nationally if we are to make a dent in this problem.

We forget Watergate was more the rule than the exception.

We forget too, that much of our violent and other physical crime is sponsored by the economic or white colar variety. Dealers in stolen goods all too frequently have regular customers who place orders in advance for so many dozen of these or so many cartons of that required in their business. We do little or nothing about these fences or the dishonest businessmen who use them.

Now the frauds we are talking about are limited to big business or small, to the rich or the poor. We have the door-to-door home repair fraud, and we have the big business price-fixing and phony warranty frauds. A well-to-do physician in Philadelphia has been sentenced to 60 days, $10,000 and three years probationary service and rehabilitation work for Medicare frauds. A computerized welfare fraud detection system has resulted in a significant caseload reduction where employed.

Much of the meager effort directed at economic crime is wasted. We catch the men involved after they have bilked us out of thousands or millions and the money dissipated. This is failure.

U.S. Liberals Can Take Credit

Half a million refugees, cities abandoned to the invader, the troops of an ally willing to fight forced instead to flee because of shortages of fuel, ammunition, and spare parts — all of this is the triumphant handiwork of American liberalism.

What the North Vietnamese had been unable to accomplish in a decade of warfare, vengeful liberals in Congress have now brought to pass in what must be the most shameful, the most morally repugnant chapter in American history.

Reasonable men can argue about our entire approach to the Vietnamese conflict, and astute critics like Bernard Fall and Sir Robert Thompson have had much to say on that score. My own opinion is that it was the height of folly to put large numbers of American draftees into the rice paddies. Instead, we should have dealt drastically with North Vietnam in 1966, dealt with it massively with B-52s from a height of 30,000 feet. That would have made the necessary point about the rewards of aggression.

But though you can argue in retrospect about our approach to the war, you cannot argue that a) having created a large and determined force of allies in the South, it is b) in any way defensible to cut off their fuel and ammunition and leave them to their fate.

Yet that is the position of American liberalism generally, and of Congressional liberals in particular. This makes what Neville Chamberlain did to Czechoslovakia look almost honorable by comparison.

The assumption behind the Paris accords worked out by Henry Kissinger in 1973 was that Saigon would receive sufficient aid to fend off the Communist invaders. The Secretary of State now says that, had he known then that Congress would slash aid the way it has, he could not in good conscience have conducted those negotiations. No wonder. Hanoi now deploys, for example, triple the number of tanks it used in its big 1972 offensive. During the past year, the Soviet Union has doubled its aid to the North.

The abandonment of key northern provinces, including the important city of Hue — with more doubtless to follow — is the direct result of trivial shortages in materiel: gasoline, for example, and the lubricants used in helicopters and tactical aircraft.

Such shortages, of course, are the handiwork of our present Watergate-backlash Congress, elected by one of the smallest voter turn-outs in modern political history. Our betrayal of an ally, one gathers, is part of the famous post-Watergate morality.

It is perfectly obvious that the present Communist offensive resulted from a clear perception of U.S. weakness, not material weakness but a weakness resulting from a collapse of political will.

If the planners in Hanoi had thought for a moment that carrier-based U.S. planes would provide tactical support for the South Vietnamese, there would have been no massive conventional offensive. The Communists saw a few too many laser-guided "smart bombs" when their 1972 offensive was crushed — Nixon's finest hour. Nor is there any good reasowhy we should not now provide such emergency tactical air support. Of course, Hanoi knows that thanks to Sen. Frank Church, Rep. Bella Abzug, and the like, no such support will be forthcoming.

For years, it has been routine for sophisticated liberal opinion to laugh at the domino theory. Well, a row of dominoes may not be the best image for what is taking place, but the North Vietnamese successes are sending out global shock-waves, from Thailand, where U.S. personnel are being invited to go home to the Middle East, where Israel is becoming much less inclined to credit U.S. assurances.

Fourth Annual Concert April 12

A Bicentennial motif will highlight one of the principal compositions — "Lincoln Portrait" by Aaron Copland — to be featured at Lake Michigan college's fourth annual Symphonic Wind Ensemble and Jazz Lab Band spring concert at 8 p.m. Saturday, April 12, at Lakeshore high school auditorium.

Tickets are $1.50. They may be obtained from the LMC music department office and LMC Community services office on the campus, and at Lakeshore high school office, Ferris Music Center and Grinnell's, both in Benton Harbor, Kniebe's Music Mart, St. Joseph, and Music Box, Stevensville.

The "Lincoln Portrait," is "excellently suitable for performances during the Bicentennial celebration of our country," according to Dr. Donald K. Moely, head of the LMC music department and conductor of the college wind ensemble. "It is a dramatic composition which includes the use of a narrator who recites five of the more famous quotations of Abraham Lincoln Strikingly set within a stirring musical background," Dr. Moely said.

Dr. Jon Penner of the LMC speech department will serve as narrator for the patriotic composition.

Also to be performed during the 90-minute program will be an exciting rendition of "Rocky Point Holiday" by Ron Nelson, a composition motivated by the sights and sounds of a windblown seaside resort on the coast of Rhode Island. The arrangement to be performed will employ the full tonal color of all the wind and percussion instruments available to the modern band, Dr. Moely said.

The evening's program will include a variety of compositions to be presented under the baton of guest conductor Bernhardt M. Kuschel, coordinator of music for the Benton Harbor area public schools.

The wind ensemble under Kuschel's direction will perform Moussorgsky's "The Great Gate of Kiev;" Tucci's "Lola Flores," a Spanish paso doble; and one of the famous marches by John Philip Sousa.

The second half of the LMC spring concert will feature the jazz lab band playing a variety of modern music in the fashion of the "big name bands" heard throughout the country in recent years. The jazz lab band's renditions will include several big band arrangements of Woody Herman and Maynard Ferguson as well as a County Basie-style ballad, "Willow's Gold" by Sammy Nestico.

Spring Music Festival Set By SJ Schools April 24-26

The Spring Music Festival, a series of noncerts given by the music department of the St. Joseph schools, will be presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 24, 25 and 26.

All concerts will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will be held in the high school gymnasium.

Tickets are $1 each and are good for all three nights. Elementary children, accompanied by parents, will be admitted free of charge. Tickets may be obtained from any St. Joseph music student and will be on sale at the door.

These concerts afford the community an opportunity to view the total music program as it progresses through the grades, according to Larry Ernst, general chairman.

The concerts also help finance the music department's "music scholarship program." This year, a total of 17 full-tuition scholarships to summer music camps will be awarded to outstanding young musicians.

Funds for the scholarships come from ticket sales, industrial and service club donations as well as commercial businesses and the St. Joseph Band and Orchestra Parents club.

Groups who will perform on Thursday are the high school Choral Ensemble, Upton "B" band, Upton eighth grade chorus, high school orchestra, fifth grade chorus and Milton "A" band.

Groups scheduled on Friday are sixth grade band, high school Glee club, junior high orchestra, Upton Uptones, Milton "B" band and high school symphonic band.

The Saturday program will include the high school Concert choir, sixth grade orchestra, Milton eighth grade chorus, high school concert band and Milton Minstrels.

BH EYES $4 MILLION HOUSING COMPLEX

Rezoning Hearing Is April 21

The Benton Harbor city commission voted last night to hold a public hearing April 21 on rezoning of 12 acres for a proposed $4 million housing complex to be built south of Britain avenue, between Ninth and Eighth streets.

The public hearing on the rezoning of the site, which would be rezoned from its light industrial to high density residential, is required by the federal Housing and Urban Development (HUD) office. HUD owns the tract because it is urban renewal land.

The land for the 200-unit housing complex is slated to be purchased from HUD by the city for $40,000. The city would then lease the site to BNR Developers, a private firm from Chicago. Construction of the housing complex is scheduled to begin in May.

The rezoning issue was also referred to the city planning commission for study.

In other areas, the commission approved the continuation of funds for three Model Cities programs. All funding for Model Cities programs was scheduled to end March 31, but programs which had funds remaining were given extensions to operate the programs until funds ran out.

The commission tentatively approved continuation for funds of Operation Latchkey, sponsored by People for Peace, with the provision that if they do not receive funds from the Department of Social Services, the Model Cities funds would be withdrawn.

The provision came after Melvin Farmer, Model Cities director, told the commission that Operation Latchkey had released all of its aides and was not currently running the program because funding from social services had not been approved.

Operation Latchkey intended to provide recreational and cultural activities to children 7 to 12 years of age using facilities at Bard and Seely McCord schools. Seventy-five per cent of the total $171,000 program was anticipated from social services but the funding has not yet been approved.

Commissioner Carl Brown offered the resolution stating that the original request for Model Cities funds had been granted because the Operation Latchkey program had led them to believe that they were receiving the social service funds. "What we are doing here is supplying money so that the program directors can run a now defunct program," Brown said.

Continuation of the Community Parents, Inc., day care program, until June 30, and the Peoples Community Federal Credit Union, until May 31, were both approved.

The commission voted to discontinue its study of a request for funds from the Benton Harbor Youth Assistance committee. Lawrence T. Sherman had made the request last week to the commission, but Mrs. Marlene Cooper, chairman of the committee, was later quoted as saying the committee did not want to solicit funds from the city.

In other action, the commission:

— Welcomed Commissioner Carl Brown back to commission meetings. Brown was admitted to Mercy hospital March 18 with a bleeding ulcer and was released last Tuesday.

— Received word from Rep. Edward Hutchinson that the city will soon receive two American flags it had requested which have been flown over the U.S. Capitol building.

CITED FOR HEROISM: Jesse Whitfield (left) of 310 Pleasant street, Benton Harbor, rescued two children from fire March 11 and last night received citation from Mayor Charles Joseph on behalf of city commission. Fire damaged home of Arcena Johnson at 247 Ross. Whitfield, a passerby, went into house and guided children to safety. He sustained a cut hand in effort. Citation was presented during city commission meeting. (Staff photo)

Police Begin Crackdown On Expired License Tabs

Twin Cities area police started issuing tickets for driving with expired license tabs at one minute after midnight this morning—as a total of 18 motorists discovered. The 1974 auto tabs expired at midnight, and studded snow tires became illegal at the same time. No department reported issuing tickets for studded tires. As of 6 a.m. today, Berrien county sheriff's deputies issued eight tickets for expired license tabs; St. Joseph township police issued five; Benton township police issued two; and state police of the Benton Harbor post issued one.

No tickets were issued in the early hours by Benton Harbor police or St. Joseph police.

ST. JOE JOINS AMBULANCE COALITION

But Membership Is Contingent On Others Signing Up

St. Joseph city commission last night voted to join a proposed community emergency ambulance service, provided that other area municipalities also affiliate.

Two commissioners were absent, but the three present voted to accept articles of incorporation. St. Joseph was the first Twin City area municipality to act on the articles of incorporation.

Other municipalities proposed for membership are Benton Harbor, and the Townships of Benton, Lincoln, Royalton, Sodus and St. Joseph.

Benton Harbor city commissioners last night tabled the articles for two more weeks of study.

St. Joseph City Manager G.W. Heppler said St. Joseph would be called on to pay 15 per cent of the cost of an emergency service under the articles. An estimate on the total cost of the service is not yet known.

Under the articles any "contribution" made to the emergency ambulance service by the participating member would be on the basis of population.

Heppler said St. Joseph also paid 15 per cent of the cost when it was subsidizing Action ambulance service. Total cost for that service was $30,000, according to Heppler.

Prior to last night's commission meeting, Heppler said it appears the new authority, if accepted, may try to negotiate with an existing ambulance service instead of starting a new one.

RECOGNIZED FOR FOOD BANK WORK: Mrs. Kathy Pymn (left) of Fairplain accepts certificate of appreciation from Mrs. Paul French of Southwestern Michigan Regional Commission on Aging. It recognizes Mrs. Pymn for starting and building food bank at Fairplain Presbyterian church that gathers and delivers food to needy elderly people in Twin Cities and surrounding area. Mrs. Pymn has worked daily on project since last September. Food bank now is providing 23 elderly people each with bag of nonperishables each month. Different people are recipients each month. Mrs. Pymn said her church and its organizations and other people, including her husband, Robert, and two older children, have helped program grow. Many help make, collect and distribute food. Mrs. Pymn said she has learned numerous old people are living at near-starvation level in area, too proud to ask assistance. (Staff photo)

SJ OKs Dickinson Home Run Fence

By STEVE SAGER
Staff Writer

"Hey! Hey!".

That common baseball expression may be frequently heard around Dickinson field this spring and summer as the St. Joseph city commission last night voted to allow a home run fence to be put up at the diamond.

The decision was reached after considerable audience debate. The St. Joseph Baseball Boosters will be in charge of financing, putting up and taking down the fence. The fence is to be put up in April in time for the high school baseball season every year and taken down in September.

Among them were:

—Opposition to any hardball (baseball) diamond being in city parks because it limits the use of the park for others and could be dangerous to others.

—Once the fence is up ("like taxes") it won't come down.

—Existing baseball programs have gotten along without a fence prior to now.

Among them were:

—The fence will only be up for the baseball season which leaves considerable time for other people to use the park.

—Dickinson may be the best field to use during the spring due to wetness at other fields.

—The park can still be used for other activities while the fence is up and a completed baseball diamond is an excellent facility for the city's youth.

In other business, two members of United For Survival (UFS) appeared before the meeting and once again asked for a commission stand on the proposed I-94 penetrator.

The commission declined and was unable, for a lack of presence of two members, to provide a stand representing all its members.

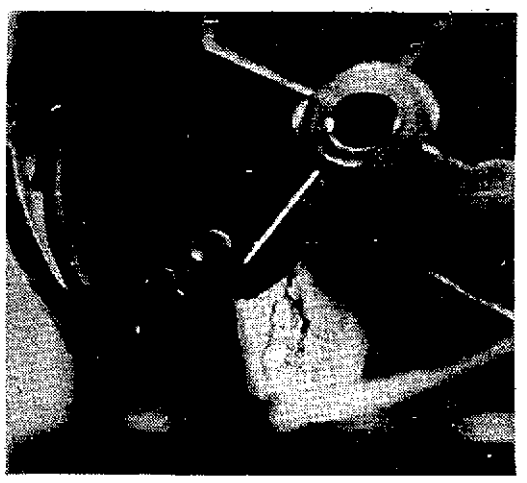
In other business the commission voted to continue a sidewalk inspection and repair program that began in 1960-61.

The program will begin this year on April 15 and will encompass the northeast section of the city. The engineer's department will inspect right-of-way sidewalks in the area bounded by Main street, Langley avenue, Port street and Hoyt street.

Notices will be made to residents whose sidewalks do not meet city standards. Notified residents may have the needed repairs made, or authorize the city to contract the repairs at the resident's expense.

Heppler also reported to the commission last night that the fire station remodeling job is completely finished. It cost $85,906 to do the job which ran $413 over the $85,493 estimated before work began. The cost was provided by federal revenue sharing.

MOTH MYSTERY: How a moth got inside an automobile rotor and built a cocoon is a mystery to Skip Schinck, mechanic at Ace Garage, US-31 in Hagar township. Schinck, of Hagar Shore, was working on car owned by Walter N. Roung, Lake Michigan Beach. Schinck said rotor had not been opened since repairs over a year ago and could not determine how moth got in, how it survived or how it could build its cocoon. (Staff photos)



CLOSEUP: Cocoon is nesting inside rotor that Skip Schink took off car. He replaced it with another rotor and hopes cocoon will hatch peacefully.

Stephen Upton To Speak At BUW Award Luncheon

Stephen E. Upton, vice president of consumer and public affairs for Whirlpool Corp., has been named keynote speaker for the second annual Blossomland United Way awards luncheon, according to Carroll Gerbel, 1974 campaign chairman and Henry Tippett, BUW president.

"This is the community's once-a-year chance to thank supporters of United Way services, and we invite the public to help us honor these citizens," Gerbel said.

The event will be held in the St. Joseph Elks club at noon on Wednesday, April 9. Reservations for the $2.75 lunch may be made by calling 983-6515.

Gerbel said 30 employe groups in the BUW area have won the top honor as Fair Share givers and will be recognized at the luncheon for their strong support of United Way human services. The award is based on a formula which matches a percentage of the payroll with employe participation.

Winners of the Good Neighbor award qualified with significant increases in per capita giving over the previous year. The award is also conferred for maintaining outstanding support, and other meritorious contributions to United Way. Gerbel indicated 94 groups of employes in the BUW region won this prize.

Upton joined Whirlpool in 1955 and held various positions before his election as vice president of Whirlpool's consumer affairs division in 1964. He holds a B.B.A. degree from the University of Michigan.

Upton's service to United Way agencies is broad and includes membership on the board and immediate past-president of Child and Family Services of Michigan, southwestern branch; vice-president of Boy Scouts of America, Southwestern Michigan Council; board member of the YMCA and president of the "Y" Uncles program.

Upton is vice-president of Homes for Berrien County Families, Inc. He serves on the boards of Olivet college, Olivet; Starr Commonwealth for Boys, Albion; Berrien County Olympian and CanAmer games, and the Economic club of southwest Michigan. Upton is also moderator of the First Congregational church in St. Joseph.

He and his wife, Elizabeth, reside with their five children on South Lake Shore drive, St. Joseph.

SJ Woman Is $1,000 'Jackpot' Winner

Mrs. Harry (Margaret) Buller, 2601 Thayer drive, St. Joseph, recently won $1,000 in the Michigan State Lottery SI Jackpot (gold) game. Mrs. Buller and her husband said they plan to use the money for a vacation on the West Coast. Mrs. Buller said she was at first reluctant to talk about the winnings because her horoscope for that day had coincidentially said "Don't tell anyone about your financial plans." Mrs. Buller is assistant office manager at Shepherd Products, Inc., and she and her husband, who is disabled, have two children.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Catholic Wants Apology

Dear Ann Landers: I do have better stationery than this but after reading your advice to the Protestant parents whose daughter was going to marry a Catholic, I decided even this junk is too good for you.

You owe an apology to every Catholic in the world after that rotten answer. You said it wouldn't hurt them to go and "suffer through the hour."

I'll have you know the Catholic Mass is a beautiful experience and nobody has to suffer through it.

You spoiled my day. — A Disappointed Christian

Dear D.C.: Sorry I spoiled your day. You didn't spoil mine. Please read the next letter:

Dear Ann Landers: This is for "St. Petersburg, Fla.,' the woman whose daughter is being married to a Catholic. She wonders if she and her husband should attend the wedding.

I know how you feel because our son, who was brought up a Protestant, married a Catholic girl five years ago. My wife and I refused to attend the wedding and we have regretted it ever since.

Our son and his dear wife forgave us promptly and we see them often, but I still have a gnawing feeling at the pit of my stomach that they will never get over the humiliation.

Our daughter-in-law is one of the sweetest girls in the world. Our son could not have made a finer choice. Please, St. P., don't make the terrible mistake of building a barrier that will never disappear. — Columbus, Ga.

Dear Columbus: Thanks for the testimonial from someone who has been there. A letter such as yours is worth 100 admonitions from Ann Landers. I hope St. Pete and others will heed your advice.

Some Disappointed

Dear Ann Landers: I was burned up by that letter from the woman who signed off with, "Nuts to You." After all, nobody is putting a gun to her head and forcing her to read your column. The fact that she and her husband fight over who is going to read it first was pretty interesting.

ANN LANDERS

Doesn't that imbecile understand that people write to you because they WANT your advice? If they don't want to know what you think, why do they write? — Sign Me — Nuts To HER

Dear N.T.H.: Some readers don't know whether or not they want my advice until they get it. These people aren't looking for guidance. honey. They just want someone to reinforce their prejudices. If I don't back them up, then it's nuts to me. So what? I win a few and I lose a few. But don't we all?

Smoking Cure?

Dear Ann Landers: I just read something that might get millions of women off cigarets. The surgeon general's report about the indisputable link between cigarets and lung cancer didn't make much of a dent — but now a doctor in California has evidence that cigaret smoking can cause premature wrinkles — THAT'S something women will pay attention to!

I saw you up close when you spoke in Lubbock. Texas. Now I know why you have such nice skin! That's your secret, isn't it? — New Hope

Dear Hope: I have never smoked. and if it helped my skin, so be it. Actually I believe a couple of other factors were more important. First, I picked a mother who had lovely skin and second, a dermatologist in Washington, D.C., told me 30 years ago to stay out of the sun — and I listened.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 140, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Bridge is a game full of adages — "second hand low; third hand high"; "cover an honor with an honor"; "aces are made to take kings"; "lead from longest and strongest". They all form a litany that makes a Gregorian chant seem brief. One of the standard admonitions for declarers is to attack your best suit.

But just as good declarers learn to postpone finesses until other avenues of play are exhausted; they should also be alert to instances when weaker suits should be attacked first in the play of a hand.

Today's declarer was a firm believer in adages and standard admonitions. He won the king of spades; played a club to the king and a club to the ace. When that suit failed to split; he tried the diamond finesse. The result — down one.

Since he was always going to make the hand if clubs split; declarer should have given himself an extra chance by FIRST playing the heart suit. With a three-three division; the ninth trick would be assured. The extra dividend occurred here. With the queen and 10 falling in the East hand the play of the third round of the suit toward the nine in dummy will produce the game-going trick.

Under what circumstances is surgery performed on people with stomach ulcers?

Mr. L.K., N.C.

Dear Mr. K.:

Many people who are known to have ulcers go through their entire lives with occasional flareups. Following dietary indiscretion, overindulgence in alcohol, too much coffee or tea, excessive tobacco, and following severe emotional upsets, recurrences of ulcers can occur.

Almost always, when the basic cause is removed and when a bland diet is strictly followed, with proper medication, the ulcer heals.

However, when there is persistent abdominal pain which interfers with work, daily activities and sleep, more active forms of treatment may be considered.

One of the complications of stomach ulcers and duodenal ulcers is an episode of severe bleeding. If bleeding from the ulcer cannot be controlled, surgery may be necessary.

Repeated episodes of bleeding is the prime reason for the partial removal of the stomach. Years ago, this operation was considered a hazardous one. Today, with highly refined surgical techniques and increased safety of anesthesia, the operation is far more safe. The results are excellent, especially in patients who carefully follow the post operative recommendations of their doctors.

Can a newborn infant contract a venereal disease from its mother?

Mrs. G.S., N.M.

Dear Mrs. S.:

Yes, yes, yes! Many children have paid a lifetime penalty for the syphilis they acquired from their parents.

Congenital syphilitic birth defects are common when syphilis of a parent is untreated and uncured. The frequency of these birth defects is high.

Newborn infants can have their eyes affected by the germ that causes gonorrhea if bacteria is harbored in the vaginal tract, or birth canal. It is for this reason that every newborn child has his eyes carefully washed out with antibiotic and other solutions to prevent gonorrheal conjunctivitis.

Marketing Tips By Maryann Can Help Family's Budget

Individual shoppers can't bring a halt to food-price increases, but as the keeper of the family's food budget, you can regulate expenditures.

A combination of market knowledge and good judgment in selection of foods can make your budget reach further.

The secret to sharp shopping is planning ahead. Study food ads and buy ahead for future use when products are on sale. Figure cost per serving rather than comparing cost-per-pound. Know when to substitute quality and brands in the kinds of foods you prepare.

Saving money at the food store is not easy. It takes work and planning, but it can be done. Learn how to survive in '75!

A bag of spinach, before it's cooked, looks like enough to feed a crowd, but don't be fooled. When cooked, it will give about three or four servings only.

At current prices of 39 to 49 cents per bag, cost per serving ranges from 12-16 cents a serving.

Or else serve fresh in salads with other greens.

Best fresh vegetable values for April will be artichokes, escarole, endive, dry onions and white potatoes, all in abundant supply.

Asparagus is reaching its peak supply time; prices are going down. Cabbage, cauliflower, carrots, celery, green onions, lettuce, radishes, spinach, tomatoes and sweet corn are on the increase and/or in good steady supply at reasonable or lower prices.

Broccoli and Brussels sprouts are about gone for the season so prices are increasing.

Buying the vegetables in best supply this month will help you add spring to your menus at less cost than other choices.

Shampoo Hair Brush

A soiled brush can do little to remove loose dirt from hair. So make it a practice after each brushing to remove loose hair by combing the bristles.

Then, soak all brushes in warm detergent or soap suds whenever shampooing the hair. Add a few drops of amonia to the solution and work suds in and around the bristles.

Rinse brushes thoroughly. Shake vigorously to remove excess water. Dry brushes by placing them, bristles down, on a towel to absorb moisture.

This will prevent possible damage to wood-backed brushes or plastic bases which can become mildew if water seeps down.

Auxiliary To Meet Thursday

BUCHANAN — Women's auxiliary of the Bertrand township volunteer fire department will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 3, in the fire station clubroom.

The group will do work for the Berrien County Cancer Service.

Charity Auction April 5

UP FOR BIDS: Douglas Webb, Lake View Community hospital administrator, checks out 1966 Dodge van which will be auctioned off by hospital's Auxiliary April 5. Proceeds from auction at Michigan Avenue school, Paw Paw, will go toward purchase of Stryker frame, device used to turn bedridden patients. (Staff photo)

PAW PAW — The Lake View Community hospital auxiliary plans to do some "wheeling and dealing" at a charity auction to be held at 11 a.m., Saturday, April 5, at the Michigan avenue school here.

The Auxiliary will be dealing a set of wheels — a 1966 Dodge van, which it plans to auction off. Proceeds from the sale will go toward the $700 purchase price of a Stryker frame, a device used to turn patients in hospital beds.

The auction will also include bake and arts and crafts sales, according to publicity chairman Mrs. Katherine Willis of Lawton.

OES Annual Meeting

COLOMA — Berrien County Association, Order of Eastern Star, will hold its annual meeting Monday, April 7, at the Coloma Masonic Lodge.

The afternoon meeting will begin at 2 p.m. followed by dinner at 6 p.m. and an evening meeting at 8 p.m.

Eight chapters comprise the Berrien County Association. Special guests will include the worthy grand matron and patron and other grand officers of Michigan.

Dinner reservations may be made by contacting Mrs. Charles Arent, Coloma, president of the association.

Restore Sink Surface

If you own a stainless steel sink, put a few drops of baby oil or olive oil on a small cloth and wipe this over the surface.

The oil will remove all streaks and restore the surface of your sink to shining newness.

If you keep the oil-soaked cloth in a handy place, only a few extra drops will be necessary each time to do the trick. (To remove water marks from stainless steel sinks, use a cloth dampened with rubbing alcohol.)

Set Homemaker Classes

Begin Friday

Spring training sessions for Homemakers will be held by the Homemaker Service of Child and Family Services of Michigan on four consecutive Fridays in April.

The training sessions will be held April 4, 11, 18 and 25 from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

According to Mrs. Mary Fassnacht, supervisor of Homemaker Service, there is no charge for the training sessions.

Any woman or man interested in helping people in their homes is invited to attend the classes which will be held at the offices of Child and Family Services, 2000 State street, St. Joseph.

Homemakers provide a valuable service for people who need help in time of crisis due to illness, old age, handicaps or the absence of one or both parents from the home, Mrs. Fassnacht says.

Most of the work is part time, from three to four hours a day to eight hours five days a week. "Homemaker work," says Mrs. Fassnacht, "is an excellent way to supplement one's income through meaningful service to someone who really needs that service."

Registration for the training sessions should be made as soon as possible by contacting the Homemaker Service at Child and Family Service, St. Joseph. Persons in south Berrien county may call Mrs. William Conn at Buchanan, coordinator for that area.

CHILD CARE: Mrs. Cordia Hamilton is a homemaker for the Homemaker Service of Child and Family Services of Michigan and as part of her duties care for twins, Benjamin and Robert Chabot, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chabot of Riverside. New training sessions for homemakers will be held in April at no charge to those interested.

STROKE PATIENT: Mrs. Dorothy Ashen of St. Joseph, left, a stroke patient, is assisted by Miss Connie Graber, a homemaker for the Homemaker Service of Child and Family Services of Michigan. New training classes for homemakers will begin Friday, April 4, and will be held at the offices of Child and Family Services, 2000 State street, St. Joseph. (Staff photos)

Leftover Ham? Try These

Frustrating isn't it? You thought you were being so clever buying a good sized ham for Easter dinner so there would be plenty of leftovers for future meals. But along about now you're fresh out of ideas and there's still ham left.

If the only thing you can think of is trying to use leftover ham for that same old ham salad take heart! Home economists have pulled a couple of new recipes out of the hat that will make that ham disappear right before your eyes!

Magic Wand Ham Pie waves away the last of the ham in the wink of an eye. Your great escape from the last few traces of what was once Easter dinner is a ham loaf topped with a fluffy potato mixture. Beaten egg whites turn an envelope of instant mashed potato granules into a light and airy crowning touch for the ham pie.

Yam-Ananas is a quick trick with just a cup of diced ham. Bananas combine with the ham bits in a creamy sauce easily created from an envelope of cheese sauce mix. Serve over English muffins for an extra quick luncheon or supper dish.

MAGIC WAND HAM PIE

MAGIC WAND HAM PIE

2 eggs
¼ cup milk
2 cups finely diced cooked ham
2 slices bread, torn into small pieces
¼ cup drained pickle relish
1 cup shredded Swiss cheese
1 envelope (5-servings) instant mashed potato granules

Lightly beat together one egg and milk. Add ham, bread and pickle relish; mix lightly. Spoon into well-greased eight or nine-inch pie pan. Sprinkle with half the cheese. Prepare mashed potatoes, following directions on package. Separate remaining two eggs; stir slightly beaten egg yolks into potatoes. Beat egg whites until stiff peaks form; fold into potatoes. Spread on top of ham mixture; sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 to 50 minutes, until puffed and lightly browned. Makes six servings.

HAM-ANANAS

1 envelope (1¼-oz.) cheese sauce mix
¼ cup dairy sour cream
1 cup diced cooked ham
2 bananas, sliced
1 to 2 teaspoons parsley flakes
4 English muffins, split, toasted and buttered

Prepare cheese sauce mix as directed on envelope. Add sour cream; stir until well blended. Stir in ham, bananas and parsley flakes; heat five to 10 minutes. Serve over toasted muffins. Makes four servings.

ATTENTION!

Future Brides

Brides-to-be planning engagement announcements and wedding stories in this newspaper are asked to observe the following rules:

Engagement and wedding forms are available in the women's department at The Herald-Palladium offices in Benton Harbor or St. Joseph. The pertinent information should be typed or plainly printed in filling out these forms to prevent errors.

Wedding forms should be picked up at least two weeks and turned in one week before the wedding is to take place.

When wedding information is sent within two months of the engagement announcement date, only ONE picture will be run. The bride-to-be may have her choice.

Only pictures of the bride in her wedding dress will be used. Formal glossy black and white portraits are preferred.

Clean Cutting Board

Clean a cutting board after each use whether it is part of the counter, atop a dishwasher or a separate piece.

Use suds and a stiff brush. To remove stubborn stains, let dampened scouring powder remain in contact with the wood for 15-20 minutes. Then scrub and wipe away.

It may be necessary to recondition the board after an extended period of use (especially cutting) by sanding off all the remaining lacquer and applying mineral oil to the board. Simply saturate a clean cloth with oil and wipe on. Allow overnight absorption.

Applications For Grant Due April 7

Application forms for the 1975 educational grants awarded by the Benton Harbor-St. Joseph branch of the American Association of University Women must be returned by Monday, April 7.

The grants, usually in the amount of $300, are awarded to professional women in the twin city area who have earned a bachelor's degree and are seeking an advanced degree.

Anyone wishing additional information may contact Mrs. John Hammond, St. Joseph, AAUW fellowships chairman.

Eliminate Odors

You will not need to worry about odors when cooking certain vegetables if you place a saucer filled with vinegar on a nearby counter.

Or lay orange peelings on your oven racks and turn the oven to about 350 degrees. You will be surprised at the delicious woody smell the orange peelings emit, completely stifling any other odors.

POLLUTION BIGGEST PROBLEM

World Headed For Water Crises

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Humanity's wanton abuse of its most abundant natural resource — water — has reached a point where scientists are warning a world already wallowing in crises: cooperate in a search for remedies or court calamity.

Essential to most human activity, water can mean life or death, bounty or poverty, war or peace. In an atmosphere of urgency, high-powered conferences have been scheduled to examine the problems. A national conference of all U.S. states and some foreign observers opens April 22 in Washington. A series of international meetings will precede a world conference on water in 1977. Why all the worry?

Water is indestructible and goes through a cycle of renewing itself. There's as much fresh water now as there was centuries ago.

But some areas are blessed with bountiful supplies. An average American uses 60 times more fresh water daily than an average citizen of Bangladesh. Water is often all too abundant in some areas in the form of destructive floods. It is often much too scarce in other areas and so there are deadly droughts, like those of the African sub-Sahara belt. In addition, industry and people poison available fresh water at a frightening rate.

Fresh water is essential for crops and meat; to irrigation, to inland fisheries, to forests that protect the land from erosion, to public hygiene, for household, drinking and recreational uses and many other needs.

From 75 to 90 per cent of the world's people are exposed to unsafe drinking and household water. Diseases from contaminated water are many, including such killers as cholera, typhoid, typhus, amebic dysentery, yaws, infectious hepatitis and others. Lack of clean water disables or kills 500 million persons a year and kills 6 million infants annually.

People look on water as nature's gift. After all, 75 per cent of the earth is water, although all but 3 per cent of that is salt sea. But if there is to be enough usable fresh water when and where needed, experts say, the cost is going to be heavy.

Lester Brown, an American adviser to the World Food Conference in Rome last November, warned delegates that "water potential is by no means unlimited."

"In the near future," Brown said, "the lack of fresh water, rather than of land, may be the principal constraint on efforts to expand world food output."

Water resources would be enough, globally, to meet demands for decades but one danger, as stressed by Brown, is that severe problems of usable water can generate international conflict.

One such conflict is now threatening West Africa, where Upper Volta and Mali are getting close to a shooting confrontation generated by conflicting claims over water rights along the Beli River. Now the dispute is complicated by rumors that oil has been discovered along the river.

Preparing for a series of international water conferences, the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization — FAO — notes "the world's total supplies of fresh water are limited and could eventually prove inadequate." It said agriculture, the biggest user, could suffer at a time when rising populations placed more and more heavy demands on it.

Water problems are centuries old and problems of industrial pollution date to the beginning of the industrial revolution, but recognition of the problems is relatively new.

Experts say between 80 and 90 per cent of all water pollution problems of the industrial nations developed since 1950. Some, like those caused by insecticides, didn't even exist before then. It was only after 1950 that some industrial nations launched programs to counter fresh water pollution, and not until 10 years ago that a few began programs for coastal waters as well.

But not a nation in the world appears yet to have been able to reverse the pollution trend. Most can expect water problems to double in 10 years and increase more swiftly thereafter.

Frequently in areas where need for action is most urgent, factors such as politics, nationalism, sovereignty, bureaucracy, lack of money and administrative talent all contribute to unwillingness to act decisively.

"Politics is probably the biggest problem of all," says Robert Clark, associate director of the National Weather Service Office of Hydrology. "Weather and rivers are no respecters of political boundaries and move across them. But only when nations involved see clear benefit for all from an undertaking are they able to resolve conflicting interests."

Poor African countries, many of which know the agony of chronic drought and famine, would benefit greatly from cooperation, but there is a detectable clash between those who want to ease water problems and governments insistent on industrial development at any cost — and the cost will be growing all the time.

Mrs. Letitia Obeng of Ghana, top water expert in the U.N. Environment Program in Africa, says there are enormous potential sources of water deep under the desert in the droughtplagued belt below the Sahara and "technology is available to make this water accessible and useful."

"It depends on manpower and finance," she said. "We need the will to do it. If we sit and say we can't do anything about it, then we may have a crisis."

The greatest drain on fresh water supplies is irrigation, and this will increase as larger populations require more food. Other problems are caused by urbanization, industrialization, rising standards and demands, poor use of arable land, widespread use of pesticides and chemicals, and lack of leadership.

For many countries, including the United States, water for the rest of the century will be a focf jbe, say the experts, because reversing pollution and insuring supplies will be extremely costly. And always, the demand grows as population grows.

For example, it takes 2.5 gallons of water to produce a gallon of gasoline; more than 10 for a can of vegetables; more than 2,600 for a ton of steel, and the appetite for all such things is growing everywhere.

Scientists know a great deal about water, and while they still are accumulating knowledge, lack of it is less a barrier to remedies than political and legal snarls. The route to remedies is through politics.

But, says Clark, nations must now begin examining options and priorities in the allocation of usable water for food production, energy production, industrial needs, household and hygiene, irrigation and recreation.

Does a nation continue using DDT when scientists say it damages the ecology? Does a nation use more fertilizer to produce more food, or conserve on usable water, lessen production and up costs?

Americans, says Clark, may be called upon to make some tough choices. For example, if farm production is to be kept high with fertilizers, usable ground water for household and drinking purposes will be costlier.

"I wouldn't be surprised, in not many years," he says, "at the disappearance of that American dream, the lush green lawn. The water comes from ground water. The price is going up and will continue to go up."

Poor nations, anxious to develop swiftly, don't want to surrender the DDT and fertilizer shortcuts no matter how much they pollute. They say that if Americans can afford to pay more for food, poor nations can't.

Rainmaking by scientists has been going on successfully for a decade or more and has been put to use in such places as Iran, Israel, Australia and Canada.

The problems involved in technological remedies include heavy cost and insufficient knowledge of the impact.

If a nation makes rain.fs this kther area of potential rainfall? If a nation changes the course of an international river, does it deprive another of the river's benefits? Does the Soviet Union's program to alter the courses of some rivers flowing into the arctic threaten climate changes elsewhere?

"There's never been a really serious international effort to concern ourselves with finding the full impact of tampering with water resources," says Dr. Clark.

Since humanity depends for its life on the annual runoff of rivers, say the experts, humanity's future also depends on international collaboration on water problems.

Supply Control May Be Answer

EDITOR'S NOTE: It takes 10 gallons of water to produce a can of vegetables; yet in some areas of the world there often isn't enough water for vegetables to grow. The extremes of too much water (floods) and not enough (drought) have led experts to predict that unless there is international cooperation on control of water supplies trouble lies ahead for the world — possibly even the demise of lawns in suburbia. Following is the first of two articles on the world's water situation.

Arts Council Realizes $1,545

Mrs. Robert Vanderberg who has been reelected president of the Twin Cities Arts Council, has announced that $1,545.73 has been added to the council's fund for a performing arts center from the Arts In Religion Festival held last October.

The festival was made possible by a grant from the Special Programs fund of the Benton Harbor First Congregational church where the festival was held.

Also underwriting the expenses of the Dave Brubeck, God's Trombones and Dayton Ballet company appearances from which the $1,545.73 was realized, was a $4,000 grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts.

Mrs. Vanderberg was co-chairman representing the Twin Cities Arts Council for the festival. Phillip T. Jenkins, director of music at First Congregational church, Benton Harbor, was general chairman and Mrs. Stephen Sizer was co-chairman representing the church.

Other officers for 1975 serving with Mrs. Vanderberg are Mrs. James Boothby, first vice president; William Hessel, second vice president; A.S. Mowery, treasurer; Miss Gwendolyn Niles, recording secretary; Mrs. Joseph Schnebelen, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Mary DeFoe, Peter Johnson, Joseph Mackin and Joel Ranum, board members.

Fourth Annual Concert April 12

A Bicentennial motif will highlight one of the principal compositions — "Lincoln Portrait" by Aaron Copland — to be featured at Lake Michigan college's fourth annual Symphonic Wind Ensemble and Jazz Lab Band spring concert at 8 p.m. Saturday, April 12, at Lakeshore high school auditorium.

Tickets are $1.50. They may be obtained from the LMC music department office and LMC Community services office on the campus, and at Lakeshore high school office, Ferris Music Center and Grinnell's, both in Benton Harbor, Kniebe's Music Mart, St. Joseph, and Music Box, Stevensville.

The "Lincoln Portrait," is "excellently suitable for performances during the Bicentennial celebration of our country," according to Dr. Donald K. Moely, head of the LMC music department and conductor of the college wind ensemble. "It is a dramatic composition which includes the use of a narrator who recites five of the more famous quotations of Abraham Lincoln Strikingly set within a stirring musical background," Dr. Moely said.

Dr. Jon Penner of the LMC speech department will serve as narrator for the patriotic composition.

Also to be performed during the 90-minute program will be an exciting rendition of "Rocky Point Holiday" by Ron Nelson, a composition motivated by the sights and sounds of a wind-blown seaside resort on the coast of Rhode Island. The arrangement to be performed will employ the full tonal color of all the wind and percussion instruments available to the modern band, Dr. Moely said.

The evening's program will include a variety of compositions to be presented under the baton of guest conductor Bernhardt M. Kuschel, coordinator of music for the Benton Harbor area public schools.

The wind ensemble under Kuschel's direction will perform Moussorgsky's "The Great Gate of Kiev;" Tucci's "Lola Flores," a Spanish paso doble; and one of the famous marches by John Philip Sousa.

The second half of the LMC spring concert will feature the jazz lab band playing a variety of modern music in the fashion of the "big name bands" heard throughout the country in recent years. The jazz lab band's renditions will include several big band arrangements of Woody Herman and Maynard Ferguson as well as a County Basie-style ballad, "Willow's Gold" by Sammy Nestico.

Spring Music Festival Set By SJ Schools April 24-26

The Spring Music Festival, a series of noncerts given by the music department of the St. Joseph schools, will be presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 24, 25 and 26.

All concerts will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will be held in the high school gymnasium.

Tickets are $1 each and are good for all three nights. Elementary children, accompanied by parents, will be admitted free of charge. Tickets may be obtained from any St. Joseph music student and will be on sale at the door.

These concerts afford the community an opportunity to view the total music program as it progresses through the grades, according to Larry Ernst, general chairman.

The concerts also help finance the music department's "music scholarship program." This year, a total of 17 full-tuition scholarships to summer music camps will be awarded to outstanding young musicians.

Funds for the scholarships come from ticket sales, industrial and service club donations as well as commercial businesses and the St. Joseph Band and Orchestra Parents club.

Groups who will perform on Thursday are the high school Choral Ensemble, Upton "B" band, Upton eighth grade chorus, high school orchestra, fifth grade chorus and Milton "A" band.

Groups scheduled on Friday are sixth grade band, high school Glee club, junior high orchestra, Upton Uptones, Milton "B" band and high school symphonic band.

The Saturday program will include the high school Concert choir, sixth grade orchestra, Milton eighth grade chorus, high school concert band and Milton Minstrels.

Convictions Overturned

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The convictions of nine Black Muslims for inciting a riot in which five persons died have been overturned by the Louisiana Supreme Court.

In a 4-3 decision Monday, the court said the defendants should have been allowed to present evidence in support of their argument that they could not receive a fair trial in Baton Rouge. The defendants were arrested there Jan. 10, 1972, after a shootout on a street in a black business district. Three Muslims and two sheriff's deputies were killed, and a television reporter was beaten so badly he is still unconcious. The defendants argued that "racial and religious passions" ran so high in Baton Rouge that they could not receive a fair and impartial trial there.

Farm Prices Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm prices have declined for the fifth straight month but consumer food costs are expected to continue rising because of higher middleman costs, the Agriculture Department says. The Crop Reporting Board said Monday that the 2 per cent drop in prices paid farmers for raw agricultural goods from Feb. 15 to March 15 was due chiefly to lower prices for wheat, corn, cotton, soybeans, tomatoes and milk. The decline was partially offset by higher prices for cattle, onions and apples.

Many Beat Deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's clemency program ended at midnight with a flurry of last minute applications. Signups rose from 16,500 at the weekend to about 18,000 by the time the program ended at Monday midnight, a spokeswoman for the presidential Clemency Board reported. The military, which dealt with 12,500 unpunished deserters, said its total of men processed at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., rose from 5,253 to 5,284 over the weekend with another 33 still being processed. There was no sign of a final rush, a press officer at the post said late Monday. The Justice Department, which took applications from among 4,400 unconvicted draft evaders, said its total of signups rose over the weekend from 589 to 603.

Shortage Of Workers

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — Even with the state unemployment rate at 10.4 per cent, General Dynamics Corp. is unable to find enough skilled workers to fill its rolls for $757 million worth of shipbuilding on its schedule. "I wish I could find them," says Tom Clark, employment manager of General Dynamics' Fore River Shipyard just south of Boston. "The people must be out there." The yard is building eight liquified natural gas tankers, a $750 million job the company says will carry the yard through the 1970s. In addition, it is repairing the Navy transport ship USS Raleigh for around $7 million. All this means jobs, and Clark says employment at the shipyard has risen from 2,500 last year to around 4,600 now. And "we've exhausted recalls" of men who were laid off.

U.S. Firm Hang On

NEW YORK (AP) — Many American businessmen in South Vietnam are working on a dayto-day basis amid the worsening political and military situation, their home offices report. Few if any businessmen have left Saigon, where the American-owned companies are based, although some dependents have been evacuated. For the most part the Vietnamese subsidiaries are staffed with nationals. Only a few American managers remain and French and Dutch citizens run other U.S. firms.

COMMISSIONER DOESN'T AGREE

Blues Say Rate Request 'Prejudged'

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan Blue Cross-Blue Shield, blasting the state Insurance Bureau for opposing a 33 per cent rate increase, says the state regulator has "prejudged" the request.

Insurance Commissioner Daniel Demlow, who alone will decide on the Blues' $306 million a year rate increase request, says however that he operates independent of his staff, which voiced the opposition.

Clifford F. Gardner, Blue Cross-Blue Shield treasurer, said Monday it is inconsistent for Demlow to permit his staff members to take an adversary position before hearings have been concluded.

Demlow makes the final rate decision by himself. He said Monday, "I am detatched from the staff's position on rate hikes."

Insurance Bureau Deputy Director Kenneth A. Tannenbaum said last week the Blues should be granted only $100 million in increases because they have not tried to cut back costs sufficiently.

Gardner testified the bureau ought to wait at least until hearings are concluded before criticizing the requests. The hearings are being held on Demlow's request by a former Ohio insurance commissioner.

"A member of the bureau staff has indicated publicly, in highly critical statements, that approval of our current base rate filing was, at best highly unlikely," said Gardner.

"Aside from questions of the propriety of such prejudgment, we see here the basic issue of the bureau's responsibility to ensure the solvency of Blue Cross and Blue Shield."

Gardner charged Demlow's "detachment" may be merely "an administrative tactic" and that in reality, the case is being decided before all the evidence has been compiled in hearings.

Daley's Election Almost Assured

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard J. Daley barely campaigned for reelection but is expected to walk away with a massive victory today as Chicago voters choose a mayor.

Daley, 72, told newsmen Monday night he expected to win by "a substantial margin." The really impressive achievement, however, was the 58 per cent of the vote he won Feb. 28 against three Democratic primary challengers.

The expected general election victory today will solidify Daley's comeback as a major factor in the Democratic party nationally after his ouster from the 1972 National Convention in a credentials fight with McGovern forces.

It also will mean an unprecedented sixth term for Daley who has ruled an army of patronage workers from the mayor's chair for 20 years.

Arrayed against the mayor are Republican John Hoellen, defeated Feb. 28 for reelection as an alderman, and Socialist Workers candidate Willie Mae Reid. Neither was conceded a realistic chance of defeating Daley.

The last Republican mayor was elected in 1928. Hoellen, until being defeated for reelection, was the only remaining Republican in the 50-member City Council. There was a chance the GOP could hang onto one seat by winning a runoff today in another ward.

The major issue of the campaign was disclosures that the Police Department intelligence division, commonly known as the Red Squad, spied on a number of community groups and individuals, including political foes of the mayor.

Hoellen declared Daley "a paranoid old man peeping through keyholes." The mayor replied that intelligence - gathering by police is a service to the public. He said, however, that he had nothing to do with the spying.

The mayor has made only a handful of appearances since his Feb. 28 trouncing of primary opponents.

Questioned about police spying, he has frequently accused the news media of " yellow journalism" and having "polluted minds."

At a church service a week ago, a priest gave a sermon laced with praise of Daley. The mayor then said the cleric was "a fine representative of God.".

Hoellen, 60, was a reluctant office-seeker who, on being slated for mayor, declared he was "not the best candidate-...too old, too fat." After Daley's Feb. 28 triumph, Hoellen said he might withdraw, but agreed to stay on and fight at the behest of other Republican leaders.

Metro Runway Delayed

DETROIT (AP) — Construction of a new runway at Detroit Metropolitan Airport must halt until an adequate study of its environmental impact is completed, U.S. District Court Judge Cornelia Kennedy ruled Monday. The ruling came in a suit filed last July 22 by a Romulus citizens group, the City of Romulus and the Romulus Community School District. They claimed the runway would create more sound pollution and degrade the quality o- life in the area.

Mazda Offers $500 Rebate

DETROIT (AP) — Mazda Motors of America instituted a $500 rebate offer on its leftover 1974 rotary-engine cars Monday, while Chrysler Corp. phased out its last rebates and Mercedez-Benz raised prices. The Mazda offer, which covers only central and western states, takes effect immediately, a spokesman said. Three U.S. makers ended their rebate offers Feb. 28. Chrysler extended its offer on several models through March. The firm said it has succeeded in trimming its huge 139-day inventory from Jan. 1 to a manageable 77-day supply.

Prison Employes Protest

IONIA, Mich. (AP) — Representatives of state Corrections Department employes have scheduled a meeting Wednesday to discuss possible action to protest what they say is the state's failure to live up to promises made some 18 months ago. Donald Doucette, president of Local 526 of the Michigan Corrections Organization, said Monday corrections employes in Marquette have voted to back fellow employes in Ionia, who have threatened to strike over working conditions. Doucette said the threatened walkout concerns promises made by the state some 18 months ago after a prison guard was killed. The promises, he said, included plans to hire additional guards and give them more influence, but he claimed 10 of 16 points in the program still have not been fulfilled.

Strikers Reject Contract

CHEBOYGAN, Mich. (AP) — Striking members of the Cheboygan County Road Commission rejected Monday a proposed new contract and officials said talks have broken off. The 44 workers have been off the job for a week and a half and officials said many county roads haven't been plowed since the walkout began, leaving some families who live near snow-clogged roads stuck in their homes. Union officials said the main stumbling block is the date a new pact would become effective. They said the union wants the pact backdated to March 11, the day the old contract expired, while the county wants the contract to take effect the day it is signed.

Named To Air Guard Post

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Brig. Gen. Richard Rann has been appointed assistant adjutant general for air in the Michigan National Guard and deputy director of the state Department of Military Affairs. His appointment was announced Monday. Rann joined the Royal Canadian Air Force in 1941 and transferred to the U. S. Air Force in 1943, serving in England and Europe. He graduated from Michigan State University in 1950 as a doctor of veterinary medicine.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Catholic Wants Apology

Dear Ann Landers: I do have better stationery than this but after reading your advice to the Protestant parents whose daughter was going to marry a Catholic, I decided even this junk is too good for you.

You owe an apology to every Catholic in the world after that rotten answer. You said it wouldn't hurt them to go and "suffer through the hour."

I'll have you know the Catholic Mass is a beautiful experience and nobody has to suffer through it.

You spoiled my day. — A Disappointed Christian

Dear D.C.: Sorry I spoiled your day. You didn't spoil mine. Please read the next letter:

Dear Ann Landers: This is for "St. Petersburg, Fla.," the woman whose daughter is being married to a Catholic. She wonders if she and her husband should attend the wedding.

I know how you feel because our son, who was brought up a Protestant, married a Catholic girl five years ago. My wife and I refused to attend the wedding and we have regretted it ever since.

Our son and his dear wife forgave us promptly and we see them often, but I still have a gnawing feeling at the pit of my stomach that they will never get over the humiliation.

Our daughter-in-law is one of the sweetest girls in the world. Our son could not have made a finer choice. Please, St. P., don't make the terrible mistake of building a barrier that will never disappear. — Columbus, Ga.

Dear Columbus: Thanks for the testimonial from someone who has been there. A letter such as yours is worth 100 admonitions from Ann Landers. I hope St. Pete and others will heed your advice.

Some Disappointed

Dear Ann Landers: I was burned up by that letter from the woman who signed off with, "Nuts to You." After all, nobody is putting a gun to her head and forcing her to read your column. The fact that she and her husband fight over who is going to read it first was pretty interesting.

ANN LANDERS

Doesn't that imbecile understand that people write to you because they WANT your advice? If they don't want to know what you think, why do they write? — Sign Me — Nuts To HER

Dear N.T.H.: Some readers don't know whether or not they want my advice until they get it. These people aren't looking for guidance, honey. They just want someone to reinforce their prejudices. If I don't back them up, then it's nuts to me. So what? I win a few and I lose a few. But don't we all?

Smoking Cure?

Dear Ann Landers: I just read something that might get millions of women off cigarets. The surgeon general's report about the indisputable link between cigarets and lung cancer didn't make much of a dent — but now a doctor in California has evidence that cigaret smoking can cause premature wrinkles — THAT'S something women will pay attention to!

I saw you up close when you spoke in Lubbock, Texas. Now I know why you have such nice skin! That's your secret, isn't it? — New Hope

Dear Hope: I have never smoked, and if it helped my skin, so be it. Actually I believe a couple of other factors were more important. First, I picked a mother who had lovely skin and second, a dermatologist in Washington, D.C., told me 30 years ago to stay out of the sun — and I listened.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 140, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Opening lead — Q ♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Bridge is a game full of adages — "second hand low; third hand high"; "cover an honor with an honor"; "aces are made to take kings"; "lead from longest and strongest". They all form a litany that makes a Gregorian chant seem brief. One of the standard admonitions for declarers is to attack your best suit.

But just as good declarers learn to postpone finesses until other avenues of play are exhausted; they should also be alert to instances when weaker suits should be attacked first in the play of a hand.

Today's declarer was a firm believer in adages and standard admonitions. He won the king of spades; played a club to the king and a club to the ace. When that suit failed to split; he tried the diamond finesse. The result — down one.

Since he was always going to make the hand if clubs split; declarer should have given himself an extra chance by FIRST playing the heart suit. With a three-three division; the ninth trick would be assured. The extra dividend occurred here. With the queen and 10 falling in the East hand the play of the third round of the suit toward the nine in dummy will produce the game-going trick.

Shampoo Hair Brush

A soiled brush can do little to remove loose dirt from hair. So make it a practice after each brushing to remove loose hair by combing the bristles.

Then, soak all brushes in warm detergent or soap suds whenever shampooing the hair. Add a few drops of amonia to the solution and work suds in and around the bristles.

Rinse brushes thoroughly. Shake vigorously to remove excess water. Dry brushes by placing them, bristles down, on a towel to absorb moisture. This will prevent possible damage to wood-backed brushes or plastic bases which can become mildew if water seeps down.

Dr. Lester Coleman

Mr. L.K., N.C.

Dear Mr. K.:

Many people who are known to have ulcers go through their entire lives with occasional flareups. Following dietary indiscretion, overindulgence in alcohol, too much coffee or tea, excessive tobacco, and following severe emotional upsets, recurrences of ulcers can occur.

Almost always, when the basic cause is removed and when a bland diet is strictly followed, with proper medication, the ulcer heals.

However, when there is persistent abdominal pain which interfers with work, daily activities and sleep, more active forms of treatment may be considered.

One of the complications of stomach ulcers and duodenal ulcers is an episode of severe bleeding. If bleeding from the ulcer cannot be controlled, surgery may be necessary.

Repeated episodes of bleeding is the prime reason for the partial removal of the stomach. Years ago, this operation was considered a hazardous one. Today, with highly refined surgical techniques and increased safety of anesthesia, the operation is far more safe. The results are excellent, especially in patients who carefully follow the post operative recommendations of their doctors.

Can a newborn infant contract a venereal disease from its mother?

Mrs. G.S., N.M.

Dear Mrs. S.:

Yes, yes, yes! Many children have paid a lifetime penalty for the syphilis they acquired from their parents.

Congenital syphilitic birth defects are common when syphilis of a parent is untreated and uncured. The frequency of these birth defects is high.

Newborn infants can have their eyes affected by the germ that causes gonorrhea if bacteria is harbored in the vaginal tract, or birth canal. It is for this reason that every newborn child has his eyes carefully washed out with antibiotic and other solutions to prevent gonorrheal conjunctivitis.

Marketing Tips By Maryann

Can Help Family's Budget

Individual shoppers can't bring a halt to food-price increases, but as the keeper of the family's food budget, you can regulate expenditures.

A combination of market knowledge and good judgment in selection of foods can make your budget reach further.

The secret to sharp shopping is planning ahead. Study food ads and buy ahead for future use when products are on sale. Figure cost per serving rather than comparing cost-per-pound. Know when to substitute quality and brands in the kinds of foods you prepare.

Saving money at the food store is not easy. It takes work and planning, but it can be done. Learn how to survive in '75!

A bag of spinach, before it's cooked, looks like enough to feed a crowd, but don't be fooled. When cooked, it will give about three or four servings only.

At current prices of 39 to 49 cents per bag, cost per serving ranges from 12-16 cents a serving.

Or else serve fresh in salads with other greens.

Best fresh vegetable values for April will be artichokes, escarole, endive, dry onions and white potatoes, all in abundant supply.

Asparagus is reaching its peak supply time; prices are going down. Cabbage, cauliflower, carrots, celery, green onions, lettuce, radishes, spinach, tomatoes and sweet corn are on the increase and/or in good steady supply at reasonable or lower prices.

Broccoli and Brussels sprouts are about gone for the season so prices are increasing.

Auxiliary To Meet Thursday

BUCHANAN — Women's auxiliary of the Bertrand township volunteer fire department will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 3, in the fire station clubroom.

The group will do work for the Berrien County Cancer Service.

Refreshments will be served by Mrs. Lawrence Mitchell and Mrs. Bernard Klute.

PAW PAW — The Lake View Community hospital auxiliary plans to do some "wheeling and dealing" at a charity auction to be held at 11 a.m., Saturday, April 5, at the Michigan avenue school here.

The Auxiliary will be dealing a set of wheels — a 1966 Dodge van, which it plans to auction off. Proceeds from the sale will go toward the $700 purchase price of a Stryker frame, a device used to turn patients in hospital beds.

The auction will also include bake and arts and crafts sales, according to publicity chairman Mrs. Katherine Willis of Lawton.

OES Annual Meeting

COLOMA — Berrien County Association, Order of Eastern Star, will hold its annual meeting Monday, April 7, at the Coloma Masonic Lodge.

The afternoon meeting will begin at 2 p.m. followed by dinner at 6 p.m. and an evening meeting at 8 p.m.

Eight chapters comprise the Berrien County Association. Special guests will include the worthy grand matron and patron and other grand officers of Michigan.

Dinner reservations may be made by contacting Mrs. Charles Arent, Coloma, president of the association.

Restore Sink Surface

If you own a stainless steel sink, put a few drops of baby oil or olive oil on a small cloth and wipe this over the surface.

The oil will remove all streaks and restore the surface of your sink to shining newness.

If you keep the oil-soaked cloth in a handy place, only a few extra drops will be necessary each time to do the trick. (To remove water marks from stainless steel sinks, use a cloth dampened with rubbing alcohol.)

U.S. Quiet On Vietnam Debacle

WASHINGTON (AP) — With America's sworn enemy of the last three decades on the doorstep of victory in Indochina, official Washington is uncharacteristically quiet and unable to bar the door.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, the most recent architect of U.S. policy in Southeast Asia, apparently is awaiting the return of Army Chief of Staff Frederick C. Weyand from a fact-finding tour of South Vietnam before both men meet with the President later in the week to discuss this country's next move.

Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger, while predicting that Saigon will soon be under attack, said in a public television interview that "there is no reason to despair" if the Saigon government can stabilize its defenses around the capital and the rice-growing Mekong Delta to the South.

When a newsman tried to ask Ford about Vietnam Monday at the Bakersfield, Calif., airport, the President broke into a laugh and started moving at a fast trot to the ramp of his waiting jet.

Many of Kissinger's predecessors in the making of U.S. policy in Indochina were unwilling or unavailable to discuss the most recent battlefield reverses.

McGeorge Bundy was in meetings all day; Robert S. McNamara sent word that he did not wish to talk about it; Melvin R. Laird was in South Africa; Dean Rusk was on his way to a lecture in Pennsylvania; Gen. William C. Westmoreland, didn't answer his phone; William P. Rogers didn't return phone calls.

Bundy was national security adviser to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, Laird and McNamara were defense secretaries. Rusk and Rogers were secretaries of state. Westmoreland was U.S. commander in Vietnam.

But a few former participants in America's longest trial by fire said there isn't any time left to correct past mistakes.

Daniel Ellsberg, once a member of this country's Vietnam braintrust and an outspoken antiwar critic in recent years, said the present offensive is the inevitable result of U.S. and South Vietnamese refusal to abide by the peace accords they signed in 1973.

South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu's refusal to rewrite the constitution that outlaws the Communist party in the South and continued U.S. support of Thieu following that constituted a repudiation of the accord, Ellsberg said.

"Ultimately, (the South Vietnamese army) is going to collapse, as Chiang's army collapsed in China.

Citizenship Suit Aimed At Grass Lake Bishop

DETROIT (AP) — An assistant U.S. attorney says he will file suit seeking to revoke the citizenship of the head of the Romanian Orthodox Episcopate of America, who allegedly aided an anti-Jewish campaign in Romania during World War II.

Asst. Atty. Michael Gladstone said Monday the suit will center on statements made to immigration officials by the Rt. Rev. Valerian D. Trifa of Grass Lake, Mich., relating to his war activities.

The decision climaxes a 20-year campaign by Jewish groups charging that Bishop Trifa helped incite a massacre of Jews in Romania in January 1941.

Gladstone said the Justice Department in Washington directed him to file the suit. He said he hopes to file by the end of April after wading through eight files of material in the case.

Immigration officials would take the next step following revocation of citizenship, he said.

Jewish groups have claimed that Trifa was a prominent figure in the Iron Guard, a right-wing group that allegedly acted as a Romanian counterpart of Germany's storm troopers.

Former Iron Guard members were not allowed to enter the United States before 1952. Trifa entered the country in 1950 as a displaced person. When applying for citizenship, he denied membership in the Iron Guard or that he ever made anti-semetic speeches.

Bishop Trifa, 60, has admitted he was active in student politics in Romania during the period, but says he did not encourage or participated in the pogrom of Jews.

He took over as head of the 45,000-member Romanian Orthodox Episcopate of America in 1952 after members of the group refused to accept a bishop sent by the postwar communist government of Romania.

Bishop Trifa links the persistent charges against him to communist displeasure over his success in separating so many church members from Bucharest's control. His episcopate has 44 churches.

The Romanian Orthodox Missionary Episcopate in America, which maintains ties with Bucharest, has 31 parishes.

According to the official Romanian version, 236 persons were killed in the 1941 pogrom, including 131 Jews. But Jewisn leaders have placed the number of dead at between 6,000 and 10,000.

POLLUTION BIGGEST PROBLEM

World Headed For Water Crises

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Humanity's wanton abuse of its most abundant natural resource — water — has reached a point where scientists are warning a world already wallowing in crises: cooperate in a search for remedies or court calamity.

Essential to most human activity, water can mean life or death, bounty or poverty, war or peace. In an atmosphere of urgency, high-powered conferences have been scheduled to examine the problems. A national conference of all U.S. states and some foreign observers opens April 22 in Washington. A series of international meetings will precede a world conference on water in 1977. Why all the worry?

Water is indestructible and goes through a cycle of renewing itself. There's as much fresh water now as there was centuries ago.

But some areas are blessed with bountiful supplies. An average American uses 60 times more fresh water daily than an average citizen of Bangladesh. Water is often all too abundant in some areas in the form of destructive floods. It is often much too scarce in other areas and so there are deadly droughts, like those of the African sub-Sahara belt. In addition, industry and people poison available fresh water at a frightening rate.

Fresh water is essential for crops and meat; to irrigation, to inland fisheries, to forests that protect the land from erosion, to public hygiene, for household, drinking and recreational uses and many other needs.

From 75 to 90 per cent of the world's people are exposed to unsafe drinking and household water. Diseases from contaminated water are many, including such killers as cholera, typhoid, typhus, amebic dysentery, yaws, infectious hepatitis and others. Lack of clean water disables or kills 500 million persons a year and kills 6 million infants annually.

People look on water as nature's gift. After all, 75 per cent of the earth is water, although all but 3 per cent of that is salt sea. But if there is to be enough usable fresh water when and where needed, experts say, the cost is going to be heavy.

Lester Brown, an American adviser to the World Food Conference in Rome last November, warned delegates that "water potential is by no means unlimited."

"In the near future," Brown said, "the lack of fresh water, rather than of land, may be the principal constraint on efforts to expand world food output."

Water resources would be enough, globally, to meet demands for decades but one danger, as stressed by Brown, is that severe problems of usable water can generate international conflict.

One such conflict is now threatening West Africa, where Upper Volta and Mali are getting close to a shooting confrontation generated by conflicting claims over water rights along the Beli River. Now the dispute is complicated by rumors that oil has been discovered along the river.

Preparing for a series of international water conferences, the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization — FAO — notes "the world's total supplies of fresh water are limited and could eventually prove inadequate." It said agriculture, the biggest user, could suffer at a time when rising populations placed more and more heavy demands on it.

Water problems are centuries old and problems of industrial pollution date to the beginning of the industrial revolution, but recognition of the problems is relatively new.

Experts say between 80 and 90 per cent of all water pollution problems of the industrial nations developed since 1950. Some, like those caused by insecticides, didn't even exist before then. It was only after 1950 that some industrial nations launched programs to counter fresh water pollution, and not until 10 years ago that a few began programs for coastal waters as well.

But not a nation in the world appears yet to have been able to reverse the pollution trend. Most can expect water problems to double in 10 years and increase more swiftly thereafter.

Frequently in areas where need for action is most urgent, factors such as politics, nationalism, sovereignty, bureaucracy, lack of money and administrative talent all contribute to unwillingness to act decisively.

"Politics is probably the biggest problem of all," says Robert Clark, associate director of the National Weather Service Office of Hydrology. "Weather and rivers are no respecters of political boundaries and move across them. But only when nations involved see clear benefit for all from an undertaking are they able to resolve conflicting interests."

Poor African countries, many of which know the agony of chronic drought and famine, would benefit greatly from cooperation, but there is a detectable clash between those who want to ease water problems and governments insistent on industrial development at any cost — and the cost will be growing all the time.

Mrs. Letitia Obeng of Ghana, top water expert in the U.N. Environment Program in Africa, says there are enormous potential sources of water deep under the desert in the droughtplagued belt below the Sahara and "technology is available to make this water accessible and useful."

"It depends on manpower and finance," she said. "We need the will to do it. If we sit and say we can't do anything about it, then we may have a crisis."

The greatest drain on fresh water supplies is irrigation, and this will increase as larger populations require more food. Other problems are caused by urbanization, industrialization; rising standards and demands, poor use of arable land, widespread use of pesticides and chemicals, and lack of leadership.

For many countries, including the United States, water for the rest of the century will be a fact jbe, say the experts, because reversing pollution and insuring supplies will be extremely costly. And always, the demand grows as population grows.

For example, it takes 2.5 gallons of water to produce a gallon of gasoline; more than 10 for a can of vegetables; more than 2,600 for a ton of steel, and the appetite for all such things is growing everywhere.

Scientists know a great deal about water, and while they still are accumulating knowledge, lack of it is less a barrier to remedies than political and legal snarls. The route to remedies is through politics.

But, says Clark, nations must now begin examining options and priorities in the allocation of usable water for food production, energy production, industrial needs, household and hygiene, irrigation and recreation.

Does a nation continue using DDT when scientists say it damages the ecology? Does a nation use more fertilizer to produce more food, or conserve on usable water; lessen production and up costs?

Americans, says Clark, may be called upon to make some tough choices. For example, if farm production is to be kept high with fertilizers, usable ground water for household and drinking purposes will be costlier.

"I wouldn't be surprised, in not many years," he says, "at the disappearance of that American dream, the lush green lawn. The water comes from ground water. The price is going up and will continue to go up."

Poor nations, anxious to develop swiftly, don't want to surrender the DDT and fertilizer shortcuts no matter how much they pollute. They say that if Americans can afford to pay more for food, poor nations can't.

Rainmaking by scientists has been going on successfully for a decade or more and has been put to use in such places as Iran, Israel, Australia and Canada.

The problems involved in technological remedies include heavy cost and insufficient knowledge of the impact.

If a nation makes rain.fs this kther area of potential rainfall? If a nation changes the course of an international river, does it deprive another of the river's benefits? Does the Soviet Union's program to alter the courses of some rivers flowing into the arctic threaten climate changes elsewhere?

"There's never been a really serious international effort to concern ourselves with finding the full impact of tampering with water resources," says Dr. Clark.

Since humanity depends for its life on the annual runoff of rivers, say the experts, humanity's future also depends on international collaboration on water problems.

Supply Control May Be Answer

EDITOR'S NOTE: It takes 10 gallons of water to produce a can of vegetables; yet in some areas of the world there often isn't enough water for vegetables to grow. The extremes of too much water (floods) and not enough (drought) have led experts to predict that unless there is international cooperation on control of water supplies trouble lies ahead for the world — possibly even the demise of lawns in suburbia. Following is the first of two articles on the world's water situation.

FORD INSPECTS: President Ford (right) inspects machinery at the Elk Hills Naval Oil Reserve near Bakersfield, Calif., Tuesday. WIFE, SON IN SAIGON

He'll Sell Eye For His Family

WATSONVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Randy Carson wants to sell an eye so he can get his wife and newborn son out of Vietnam.

"With the military situation over there, I want to get them out as soon as I can," Carson said in an interview Monday.

"I decided to try to sell an eye, because I don't know how else to raise the money. The only thing I've got is myself."

He has set no specific dollar amount for the eye he proposes to sell.

The 28-year-old unemployed veteran met and married his Vietnamese-born wife, Rose, a year ago while he was working as a civilian for Northrop Aircraft at Bien Hoa, near Saigon.

When Northrop laid him off last October, Carson returned to this farming community 75 miles south of San Francisco where he grew up.

"I figured I'd have a better chance of finding work here than in Saigon, but I've only gotten odd jobs," he said.

Rose, three months pregnant at the time, stayed behind along with their 4-year-old adopted son, Kelly.

"They told us it might take several months to get the papers arranged for him to enter the United States," Carson said.

Late Sunday night, a friend in Saigon called and told Carson his wife had given birth to a healthy baby boy.

"I want to fly there and get my family out before it's too late," he said. "Some friends of mine have a house in Singapore where we could stay, and they say there's work there."

He said it would cost him $1,100 round trip to fly to Vietnam and he would need air fare for his family, plus money to speed the necessary paper work.

"I know from experience that a little money under the table can get things done a lot quicker in Saigon," Carson said.

He said he got the idea of selling an eye from news reports a few months ago about another Californian who made the same offer to pay for his wife's hospital bills.

Stanford University Medical Center information officer Spyros Andreopoulos said as far as he knew eyes never were bought or sold. He said hospitals normally accept corneas from donors who will them for removal after death.

Carson, who suffered back and leg injuries while serving in the 1st Cavalry Division in Vietnam in 1967-68, said he earned about $4 an hour as a supplies specialist for Northrop.

Since returning to Watsonville, he has received only $78 a week in unemployment insurance and $30 a month in military disability payments.

"And most of that I've sent to Rose and our son," he said.

TO STAY LONGER

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Doctors say Mamie Eisenhower will remain in a Ft. Gordon hospital longer than first expected to allow her to regain strength while she recovers from intestinal problems.

Saudi Official Sees No Need For Policy Change

JEDDAH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Prince Saud, Saudi Arabia's new state minister for foreign affairs, says he does not foresee a change in foreign policy in the wake of the assassination of his father, King Faisal, nor any reduction in oil prices "unless new factors come into play."

"In real terms there has been a drastic reduction in the value of oil since the freezing of prices," the American - educated, 34 - year - old prince said in an interview with three Western correspondents.

Saud was Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani's deputy until King Khaled moved him to the foreign ministry. He said that uncertainties and instability in the oil situation are due to the failure to resolve such basic international issues as inflation, transfer of technology from industrialized to developing nations, prices of raw materials including energy, and marketing of industrial products in the developing nations.

But Saud said he believed these issues would be resolved in the future meetings between the oil-consuming and oil-exporting nations.

"In terms of negotiations between the industrialized and developing nations, both sides are more equal now," he added.

Asked his view of oil boycotts, he reiterated a statement by Crown Prince Fahd that they are not a basic policy of Saudi Arabia, which does not believe in threats, "economic or otherwise."

Saud also said he expects agreement very soon on the terms of Saudi Arabia's purchase of the 40 per cent of the Arabian American Oil Co. still held by four U.S. oil companies.

"There is nothing of consequence holding back the final settlement," he said.

Like his father, whom he strongly resembles, Saud said he had a special feeling for the United States and its people.

"I studied there, I lived there and I have many friends there," he said. "... They are a very great nation and a nice and generous people."

A graduate of Princeton University, Saud is the first of a new generation of Western-educated Saudi princes to reach a cabinet-level post.

Saud also confirmed that the new Saudi regime is faithful to his father's demand for the return of East Jerusalem and its holy places to the Arabs, one of the cardinal points of King Faisal's policy.

East Jerusalem should be returned to the Arabs although "we have never had any objection to the rights of worship of any religion in the holy places," he declared. "I hope religious rights do not have to be based on occupation."

WHAT WAR? That might be a good question for Cambodian youth passing the time of day at a street corner in Communist-besieged Phnom Penh.

Minnesota Ponders New Moves In Reserve Case

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The State of Minnesota has made no decision on possible further action in the Reserve Mining Co. case following the U.S. Supreme Court's refusal to set a timetable for Reserve to stop dumping waste rock into Lake Superior.

Byron Starns, assistant attorney general handling the case for the state, said Monday he would have no comment on the Supreme Court decision until he had seen a written copy.

The states of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan and several environmental groups had asked the high court to set aside a March 14 ruling by the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals giving Reserve a "reasonable time" to begin dumping wastes from its taconite plant at Silver Bay, Minn., on land. Reserve now dumps some 67,000 tons of taconite tailings into Lake Supreior each day.

Plaintiffs in the Reserve case, which has been in the courts for about six years, originally had asked that the Silver Bay plant be closed, but suggested a two-year deadline for the switch to on-land disposal as a "fair and equitable" alternative.

Although plaintiffs had made no decision about possible appeal in other aspects of the case, Starns noted that the Supreme Court decision was "not technically the last shot."

Steve Chapman, research director of the Minnesota Public Interest Research Group (MPIRG), financed by college students, said some small legal avenues remain in the fight to halt dumping of wastes into the lake.

However, Chapman called the Supreme Court refusal to act the "biggie."

The taconite tailings in the lake may never be cleaned up, Chapman said Monday. He estimated it could be three or four years before Reserve switches to on-land disposal of the finely ground rock.

Reserve favors a land site known as "Milepost 7" at Lax Lake near its Silver Bay plant for the disposal, while the state has been pushing for a site near the firm's mine at Babbitt, about 50 miles away.

Minnesota Gov. Wendell Anderson will lead an air and ground tour of the Milepost 7 site Wednesday, but has said he will rely largely on the state's technical advisers in making any recommendation on the site.

Factory Stays Open; Sales Up

ANNISTON, Ala. (AP) — A clothing plant that was to remain closed until August reopens today after an unexpected rise in sales, the firm says.

Plant Manager Chuck Gashler said Monday that some 200 employes, about half the normal work force, were recalled to the Imperial Reading Corp. factory. The plant makes jackets, jeans and pants.

Convictions Overturned

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The convictions of nine Black Muslims for inciting a riot in which five persons died have been overturned by the Louisiana Supreme Court.

In a 4-3 decision Monday, the court said the defendants should have been allowed to present evidence in support of their argument that they could not receive a fair trial in Baton Rouge. The defendants were arrested there Jan. 10, 1972, after a shootout on a street in a black business district. Three Muslims and two sheriff's deputies were killed, and a television reporter was beaten so badly he is still unconcious. The defendants argued that "racial and religious passions" ran so high in Baton Rouge that they could not receive a fair and impartial trial there.

Farm Prices Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm prices have declined for the fifth straight month but consumer food costs are expected to continue rising because of higher middleman costs, the Agriculture Department says. The Crop Reporting Board said Monday that the 2 per cent drop in prices paid farmers for raw agricultural goods from Feb. 15 to March 15 was due chiefly to lower prices for wheat, corn, cotton, soybeans, tomatoes and milk. The decline was partially offset by higher prices for cattle, onions and apples.

Many Beat Deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's clemency program ended at midnight with a flurry of last minute applications. Signups rose from 16,500 at the weekend to about 18,000 by the time the program ended at Monday midnight, a spokeswoman for the presidential Clemency Board reported. The military, which dealt with 12,500 unpunished deserters, said its total of men processed at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., rose from 5,253 to 5,284 over the weekend with another 33 still being processed. There was no sign of a final rush, a press officer at the post said late Monday. The Justice Department, which took applications from among 4,400 unconvicted draft evaders, said its total of signups rose over the weekend from 589 to 603.

Shortage Of Workers

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — Even with the state unemployment rate at 10.4 per cent, General Dynamics Corp. is unable to find enough skilled workers to fill its rolls for $757 million worth of shipbuilding on its schedule. "I wish I could find them," says Tom Clark, employment manager of General Dynamics' Fore River Shipyard just south of Boston. "The people must be out there." The yard is building eight liquified natural gas tankers, a $750 million job the company says will carry the yard through the 1970s. In addition, it is repairing the Navy transport ship USS Raleigh for around $7 million. All this means jobs, and Clark says employment at the shipyard has risen from 2,500 last year to around 4,600 now. And "we've exhausted recalls" of men who were laid off.

U.S. Firm Hang On

NEW YORK (AP) — Many American businessmen in South Vietnam are working on a dayto-day basis amid the worsening political and military situation, their home offices report. Few if any businessmen have left Saigon, where the American-owned companies are based, although some dependents have been evacuated. For the most part the Vietnamese subsidiaries are staffed with nationals. Only a few American managers remain and French and Dutch citizens run other U.S. firms.

COMMISSIONER DOESN'T AGREE

Blues Say Rate Request 'Prejudged'

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan Blue Cross-Blue Shield, blasting the state Insurance Bureau for opposing a 33 per cent rate increase, says the state regulator has "prejudged" the request.

Insurance Commissioner Daniel Demlow, who alone will decide on the Blues' $306 million a year rate increase request, says however that he operates independent of his staff, which voiced the opposition.

Clifford F. Gardner, Blue Cross-Blue Shield treasurer, said Monday it is inconsistent for Demlow to permit his staff members to take an adversary position before hearings have been concluded.

Demlow makes the final rate decision by himself. He said Monday, "I am detatched from the staff's position on rate hikes."

Insurance Bureau Deputy Director Kenneth A. Tannenbaum said last week the Blues should be granted only $100 million in increases because they have not tried to cut back costs sufficiently.

Gardner testified the bureau ought to wait at least until hearings are concluded before criticizing the requests. The hearings are being held on Demlow's request by a former Ohio insurance commissioner.

"A member of the bureau staff has indicated publicly, in highly critical statements, that approval of our current base rate filing was, at best highly unlikely," said Gardner.

"Aside from questions of the propriety of such prejudgment, we see here the basic issue of the bureau's responsibility to ensure the solvency of Blue Cross and Blue Shield."

Gardner charged Demlow's "detachment" may be merely "an administrative tactic" and that in reality, the case is being decided before all the evidence has been compiled in hearings.

Daley's Election Almost Assured

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard J. Daley barely campaigned for reelection but is expected to walk away with a massive victory today as Chicago voters choose a mayor.

Daley, 72, told newsmen Monday night he expected to win by "a substantial margin." The really impressive achievement, however, was the 58 per cent of the vote he won Feb. 28 against three Democratic primary challengers.

The expected general election victory today will solidify Daley's comeback as a major factor in the Democratic party nationally after his ouster from the 1972 National Convention in a credentials fight with McGovern forces.

It also will mean an unprecedented sixth term for Daley who has ruled an army of patronage workers from the mayor's chair for 20 years.

Arrayed against the mayor are Republican John Hoellen, defeated Feb. 28 for reelection as an alderman, and Socialist Workers candidate Willie Mae Reid. Neither was conceded a realistic chance of defeating Daley.

The last Republican mayor was elected in 1928. Hoellen, until being defeated for reelection, was the only remaining Republican in the 50-member City Council. There was a chance the GOP could hang onto one seat by winning a runoff today in another ward.

The major issue of the campaign was disclosures that the Police Department intelligence division, commonly known as the Red Squad, spied on a number of community groups and individuals, including political foes of the mayor.

Hoellen declared Daley "a paranoid old man peeping through keyholes." The mayor replied that intelligence gathering by police is a service to the public. He said, however, that he had nothing to do with the spying.

The mayor has made only a handful of appearances since his Feb. 28 trouncing of primary opponents.

Questioned about police spying, he has frequently accused the news media of "yellow journalism" and having "polluted minds."

At a church service a week ago, a priest gave a sermon laced with praise of Daley. The mayor then said the cleric was "a fine representative of God."

Hoellen, 60, was a reluctant office-seeker who, on being slated for mayor, declared he was "not the best candidate ...too old, too fat." After Daley's Feb. 28 triumph, Hoellen said he might withdraw, but agreed to stay on and fight at the behest of other Republican leaders.

Metro Runway Delayed

DETROIT (AP) — Construction of a new runway at Detroit Metropolitan Airport must halt until an adequate study of its environmental impact is completed, U.S. District Court Judge Cornelia Kennedy ruled Monday. The ruling came in a suit filed last July 22 by a Romulus citizens group, the City of Romulus and the Romulus Community School District. They claimed the runway would create more sound pollution and degrade the quality of life in the area.

Mazda Offers $500 Rebate

Prison Employes Protest

IONIA, Mich. (AP) — Representatives of state Corrections Department employes have scheduled a meeting Wednesday to discuss possible action to protest what they say is the state's failure to live up to promises made some 18 months ago. Donald Doucette, president of Local 526 of the Michigan Corrections Organization, said Monday corrections employes in Marquette have voted to back fellow employes in Ionia, who have threatened to strike over working conditions. Doucette said the threatened walkout concerns promises made by the state some 18 months ago after a prison guard was killed. The promises, he said, included plans to hire additional guards and give them more influence, but he claimed 10 of 16 points in the program still have not been fulfilled.

Strikers Reject Contract

CHEBOYGAN, Mich. (AP) — Striking members of the Cheboygan County Road Commission rejected Monday a proposed new contract and officials said talks have broken off. The 44 workers have been off the job for a week and a half and officials said many county roads haven't been plowed since the walkout began, leaving some families who live near snow-clogged roads stuck in their homes. Union officials said the main stumbling block is the date a new pact would become effective. They said the union wants the pact backdated to March 11, the day the old contract expired, while the county wants the contract to take effect the day it is signed.

Named To Air Guard Post

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Brig. Gen. Richard Rann has been appointed assistant adjutant general for air in the Michigan National Guard and deputy director of the state Department of Military Affairs. His appointment was announced Monday. Rann joined the Royal Canadian Air Force in 1941 and transferred to the U. S. Air Force in 1943, serving in England and Europe. He graduated from Michigan State University in 1950 as a doctor of veterinary medicine.

ALL ABOUT FOODS

"THE BEER WE ALL ROOT FOR" "Reformulation" is a pretty big word, but we all got kind of used to it during the controversy over cyclamates. Many soft drinks had to be reformulated. And, as you might expect, they all claimed to be the better for it.

Well, today I'd like to tell you about a popular beverage that faced its own reformulation crisis back in 1960, and has come on strong since then.

The beverage is root beer, and the offending ingredient wasn't cyclamates, it was sassafras oil. The Food & Drug Administrations outlawed sassafras oil in all foods and beverages, but the people affected most were the root beer makers.

Well, they reformulated, and you know what happened? Root beer has moved from American's ninth favorite flavor to number four...and we are now drinking about three times as much root beer as we were just a few years ago!

All of this was helped along somewhat by the Root Beer Institute which, among other things, got the late Senator Everett Dirkson to reveal, in a White House press conference, that he loved the stuff and used to make it in his home.

Home brewing, of course, is another thing that sets root beer apart from other soft drinks. In fact, all root beer wasat first home brewed, and it wasn't until 1936 that bottled root beer really caught on.

Root beer sells especially well in the summertime, thanks largely to all those roadside stands and all those thirsty tourists. Its weakest selling period is through the winter holidays...because it is "not a good mixer."

However, nothing mixes better with ice cream,and I can't think of anything more delightfully refreshing than a root beer float, can you?

And the best place to pick up your root beer of course is SCHNECK'S. I'll drink to that!

Citizenship Suit Aimed At Grass Lake Bishop

DETROIT (AP) — An assistant U.S. attorney says he will file suit seeking to revoke the citizenship of the head of the Romanian Orthodox Episcopate of America, who allegedly aided an anti-Jewish campaign in Romania during World War II.

Asst. Atty. Michael Gladstone said Monday the suit will center on statements made to immigration officials by the Rt. Rev. Valerian D. Trifa of Grass Lake, Mich., relating to his war activities.

The decision climaxes a 20-year campaign by Jewish groups charging that Bishop Trifa helped incite a massacre of Jews in Romania in January 1941.

Gladstone said the Justice Department in Washington directed him to file the suit. He said he hopes to file by the end of April after wading through eight files of material in the case.

Immigration officials would take the next step following revocation of citizenship, he said.

Jewish groups have claimed that Trifa was a prominent figure in the Iron Guard, a right-wing group that allegedly acted as a Romanian counterpart of Germany's storm troopers.

Former Iron Guard members were not allowed to enter the United States before 1952. Trifa entered the country in 1950 as a displaced person. When applying for citizenship, he denied membership in the Iron Guard or that he ever made anti-semetic speeches.

Bishop Trifa, 60, has admitted he was active in student politics in Romania during the period, but says he did not encourage or participated in the pogrom of Jews.

He took over as head of the 45,000-member Romanian Orthodox Episcopate of America in 1952 after members of the group refused to accept a bishop sent by the postwar communist government of Romania.

Bishop Trifa links the persistent charges against him to communist displeasure over his success in separating so many church members from Bucharest's control. His episcopate has 44 churches.

The Romanian Orthodox Missionary Episcopate in America, which maintains ties with Bucharest, has 31 parishes.

According to the official Romanian version, 238 persons were killed in the 1941 pogrom, including 131 Jews. But Jewish leaders have placed the number of dead at between 6,000 and 10,000.

U.S. Quiet On Vietnam Debacle

WASHINGTON (AP) — With America's sworn enemy of the last three decades on the doorstep of victory in Indochina, official Washington is uncharacteristically quiet and unable to bar the door.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, the most recent architect of U.S. policy in Southeast Asia, apparently is awaiting the return of Army Chief of Staff Frederick C. Weyand from a fact-finding tour of South Vietnam before both men meet with the President later in the week to discuss this country's next move.

Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger, while predicting that Saigon will soon be under attack, said in a public television interview that "there is no reason to despair" if the Saigon government can stabilize its defenses around the capital and the rice-growing Mekong Delta to the South.

When a newsman tried to ask Ford about Vietnam Monday at the Bakersfield, Calif., airport, the President broke into a laugh and started moving at a fast trot to the ramp of his waiting jet.

Many of Kissinger's predecessors in the making of U.S. policy in Indochina were unwilling or unavailable to discuss the most recent battlefield reverses.

McGeorge Bundy was in meetings all day; Robert S. McNamara sent word that he did not wish to talk about it; Melvin R. Laird was in South Africa; Dean Rusk was on his way to a lecture in Pennsylvania; Gen. William C. Westmoreland, didn't answer his phone; William P. Rogers didn't return phone calls.

Bundy was national security adviser to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, Laird and McNamara were defense secretaries. Rusk and Rogers were secretaries of state. Westmoreland was U.S. commander in Vietnam.

But a few former participants in America's longest trial by fire said there isn't any time left to correct past mistakes.

Daniel Ellsberg, once a member of this country's Vietnam braintrust and an outspoken antiwar critic in recent years, said the present offensive is the inevitable result of U.S. and South Vietnamese refusal to abide by the peace accords they signed in 1973.

South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu's refusal to rewrite the constitution that outlaws the Communist party in the South and continued U.S. support of Thieu following that constituted a repudiation of the accord, Ellsberg said.

"Ultimately, (the South Vietnamese army) is going to collapse, as Chiang's army collapsed in China.

April I&M Bills Will Be Lower

April bills of Indiana & Michigan Electric Company's 420,000 customers will reflect a lower fuel cost adjustment for the third consecutive month, it was announced today.

Robert M. Kopper, executive vice president, attributed the utility's decline in fuel costs to two factors.

The I&M executive said that the cost of oil for generation at the company's Twin Branch plant to meet environmental regulations has decreased slightly, and that the company is now receiving most of its coal from its regular sources rather than through higher-priced spot purchases as was necessary during the miners' strike to ensure availability of generating capacity.

Another factor in the diminished fuel cost adjustment, Kopper said, was a reduction in the generation of its Twin Branch plant caused by industrial production cutbacks and customer conservation efforts.

"This decrease in demand for power permitted I&M to produce a larger proportion of its power supply at its lower-cost plants," Kopper said. Low-sulfur oil burned at Twin Branch costs approximately four times as much as coal.

Kopper said while there was no assurance that the fuel cost adjustment would continue to decline he was optimistic. He warned, however, that terms of the recent miners' contract settlement is starting to be reflected in higher coal costs and that such additional federal regulations like the new strip-mining bill now under consideration also will cause coal costs to increase further. The latter alone by as much as $250 a ton.

Kopper reported that while the company's nuclear unit at its Cook Plant was operating as scheduled, having reached a generation level of 655,000 kilowatts, it was too early to determine what effect its generating output might have on the fuel adjustment.

The I&M executive stated that the company is continuing its efforts to provide electricity at the lowest prices possible, but it's an uphill battle all he way because so many of our costs are beyond our control. Some priorities need to be changed. As one example, the scales are too much weighted toward the aesthetic aspect of our environment and not balanced toward the ability of the consumer to pay, Kopper concluded.

Breedsville Store Robbed By Trio

By TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — A Breedsville grocery store was robbed of a estimated $70 to $80 by three men last night, according to stat police from the South Haven post.

Troopers said Hampton's grocery, CR- 205, was robbed a approximately 9:40 p.m.

Mrs. Wade Hampton, wife of the owner, told police she wa forced to lay on the floor while the money was removed from a cash register. Mrs. Wade, who was not injuried, said one of th men was armed with a handgun and that another man had a pillow case over his head.

Bangor police subsequently stopped a car matching a descrip tion of a car seen leaving the area moments after the hold-up, bu officers said the occupants were not involved.

According to troopers, the store owner saw the car driving by the store just after the gunmen, described as black, had fled.

Connally Goes On Trial Today

After the questioning, the prospective jurors who had not been disqualified for reasons such as inability to serve three weeks or more on the jury were to be taken individually before the judge and lawyers for more detailed interrogation in private.

Each jury prospect was to be asked about knowledge of the case, possible preconceptions of guilt or innocence, and personal circumstances that might make jury duty burdensome.

The government alleges that Connally accepted two $5,000 payments from Associated Milk Producers, Inc., the nation's largest dairy cooperative, after he urged Nixon to raise milk price supports in 1971.

Connally is the fourth member of Nixon's Cabinet to face criminal charges. He is only the second Cabinet member in American history to be charged with taking a bribe. The first, Interior Secretary Albert B. Fall, was convicted in the Teapot Dome scandal of the 1920s.

He was a protege of Lyndon B. Johnson in the late 1930s and was a Senate aide to Johnson. He nominated LBJ for president in the 1956, 1960 and 1964 national Democratic conventions and, in January 1973, eulogized the former president at his funeral.

President John F. Kennedy named him secretary of the Navy in 1961. Soon after, he ran for his first term as governor and was riding with Kennedy when the President was assassinated in Dallas in 1963. Connally was wounded by gunfire at the time.

After leaving the governor's office in 1969 Connally joined a prestigious Houston law firm; then accepted Nixon's offer to become treasury secretary. He resigned in May 1972 and officially became a Republican a year later, while Nixon was deeply embroiled in the Watergate scandal.

The government's chief witness against him is expected to be Jake Jacobsen, a Connally friend of more than two decades, who told prosecutors he gave Connally the money in two cash payments in Connally's Treasury Department office.

Jacobsen was performing legal work for Associated Milk Producers at the time. He has pleaded guilty to bribing a federal official and awaits sentencing.

If convicted on two counts of accepting illegal gratuities, Connally could be sentenced to a maximum of four years in prison and $20,000 fine.

He is charged also with conspiring to cover-up the illegal payments and with lying to the Watergate grand jury, but trial on those counts was deferred.

Communists Still Plunging Southward

The U. S. government also announced it was continuing efforts to evacuate South Vietnamese in front of the Communist advance. It said four U.S. ships were loading off Qui Nhon, one each off Tuy Hoa and Nha Trang, and one was still standing by off Da Nang in case any more escaped from that northern port, which the North Vietnamese occupied Sunday.

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, who two weeks ago said an attack on Saigon would not come before next year, predicted "major action" against the capital "in the next month or two," before the South Vietnamese army can stabilize its defenses.

Schlesinger said the United States "continues to have an obligation to be helpful to South Vietnam" but "what particular form that help takes remains to be seen."

Some U.S. government experts in Washington said there was no way to stop the Communist offensive from rolling over the rest of the country.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen reported that President Ford feels the debacle in South Vietnam was caused by Hanoi's violations of the Paris peace agreement and by the failure of Congress to grant his request for more aid.

Five million of the 20 million South Vietnamese lived in the conquered provinces and another 6 million live in provinces in which control is divided between Saigon and the Communist command.

The Saigon government estimates the offensive has generated more than 2 million refugees. But about 75 per cent of them were in Da Nang and couldn't get out before the Communist occupation of the city halted their evacuation.

Fee May Be Eliminated

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Legislation in the House would eliminate the one per cent fee that city and township treasurers charge taxpayers in collecting school and county taxes. Instead, treasurers would retain one per cent of the moneys collected as reimbursement for their administrative costs. The bill was introduced by Rep. Sal Rocca, D-Sterling Heights.

Fish Import Protest

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) — Hundreds of little fishing boats took to sea early today with a week's supply of food and fuel and orders to blockade many of Britain's busiest ports. The all-out campaign by coastal fishermen against imports of cheap foreign fish began at midnight. An armada estimated at 1,000 to 1,500 boats was to sail under cover of darkness, but forecasts of stormy weather delayed the departure in some areas. More than 100 vessels sailed from Peterhead, which with Aberdeen is a major supply base for scores of oil rigs drilling far out in the gale-swept North Sea. The oil companies sent extra food and equipment to the rigs in case their supply ports were blockaded.

WIFE, SON IN SAIGON

He'll Sell Eye For His Family

WATSONVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Randy Carson wants to sell an eye so he can get his wife and newborn son out of Vietnam.

"With the military situation over there, I want to get them out as soon as I can," Carson said in an interview Monday.

"I decided to try to sell an eye, because I don't know how else to raise the money. The only thing I've got is myself."

He has set no specific dollar amount for the eye he proposes to sell.

The 28-year-old unemployed veteran met and married his Vietnamese-born wife, Rose, a year ago while he was working as a civilian for Northrop Aircraft at Bien Hoa, near Saigon.

When Northrop laid him off last October, Carson returned to this farming community 75 miles south of San Francisco where he grew up.

"I figured I'd have a better chance of finding work here than in Saigon, but I've only gotten odd jobs," he said.

Rose, three months pregnant at the time, stayed behind along with their 4-year-old adopted son, Kelly.

"They told us it might take several months to get the papers arranged for him to enter the United States," Carson said.

Late Sunday night, a friend in Saigon called and told Carson his wife had given birth to a healthy baby boy.

"I want to fly there and get my family out before it's too late," he said. "Some friends of mine have a house in Singapore where we could stay, and they say there's work there."

He said it would cost him $1,100 round trip to fly to Vietnam and he would need air fare for his family, plus money to speed the necessary paper work.

"I know from experience that a little money under the table can get things done a lot quicker in Saigon," Carson said.

He said he got the idea of selling an eye from news reports a few months ago about another Californian who made the same offer to pay for his wife's hospital bills.

Stanford University Medical Center information officer Spyros Andreopoulos said as far as he knew eyes never were bought or sold. He said hospitals normally accept corneas from donors who will them for removal after death.

Carson, who suffered back and leg injuries while serving in the 1st Cavalry Division in Vietnam in 1967-68, said he earned about $4 an hour as a supplies specialist for Northrop.

Since returning to Watsonville, he has received only $78 a week in unemployment insurance and $30 a month in military disability payments.

"And most of that I've sent to Rose and our son," he said.

Saudi Official Sees No Need For Policy Change

JEDDAH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Prince Saud, Saudi Arabia's new state minister for foreign affairs, says he does not foresee a change in foreign policy in the wake of the assassination of his father, King Faisal, nor any reduction in oil prices "unless new factors come into play."

"In real terms there has been a drastic reduction in the value of oil since the freezing of prices," the American - educated, 34 - year - old prince said in an interview with three Western correspondents.

Saud was Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani's deputy until King Khaled moved him to the foreign ministry. He said that uncertainties and instability in the oil situation are due to the failure to resolve such basic international issues as inflation, transfer of technology from industrialized to developing nations, prices of raw materials including energy, and marketing of industrial products in the developing nations.

But Saud said he believed these issues would be resolved in the future meetings between the oil-consuming and oil-exporting nations.

"In terms of negotiations between the industrialized and developing nations, both sides are more equal now," he added.

Asked his view of oil boycotts, he reiterated a statement by Crown Prince Fahd that they are not a basic policy of Saudi Arabia, which does not believe in threats, "economic or otherwise."

Saud also said he expects agreement very soon on the terms of Saudi Arabia's purchase of the 40 per cent of the Arabian American Oil Co. still held by four U.S. oil companies.

"There is nothing of consequence holding back the final settlement," he said.

Like his father, whom he strongly resembles, Saud said he had a special feeling for the United States and its people.

"I studied there, I lived there and I have many friends there," he said. "... They are a very great nation and a nice and generous people."

A graduate of Princeton University, Saud is the first of a new generation of Western-educated Saudi princes to reach a cabinet-level post.

Saud also confirmed that the new Saudi regime is faithful to his father's demand for the return of East Jerusalem and its holy places to the Arabs, one of the cardinal points of King Faisal's policy.

East Jerusalem should be returned to the Arabs although "we have never had any objection to the rights of worship of any religion in the holy places," he declared. "I hope religious rights do not have to be based on occupation."

WHAT WAR? That might be a good question for Cambodian youth passing the time of day at a street corner in Communist-besieged Phnom Penh.

Minnesota Ponders New Moves In Reserve Case

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The State of Minnesota has made no decision on possible further action in the Reserve Mining Co. case following the U.S. Supreme Court's refusal to set a timetable for Reserve to stop dumping waste rock into Lake Superior.

Byron Starns, assistant attorney general handling the case for the state, said Monday he would have no comment on the Supreme Court decision until he had seen a written copy.

The states of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan and several environmental groups had asked the high court to set aside a March 14 ruling by the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals giving Reserve a "reasonable time" to begin dumping wastes from its taconite plant at Silver Bay, Minn., on land. Reserve now dumps some 67,000 tons of taconite tailings into Lake Supreior each day.

Plaintiffs in the Reserve case, which has been in the courts for about six years, originally had asked that the Silver Bay plant be closed, but suggested a two-year deadline for the switch to on-land disposal as a "fair and equitable" alternative.

Although plaintiffs had made no decision about possible appeal in other aspects of the case, Starns noted that the Supreme Court decision was "not technically the last shot."

Steve Chapman, research director of the Minnesota Public Interest Research Group (MPIRG), financed by college students, said some small legal avenues remain in the fight to halt dumping of wastes into the lake.

However, Chapman called the Supreme Court refusal to act the "biggie."

The taconite tailings in the lake may never be cleaned up, Chapman said Monday. He estimated it could be three or four years before Reserve switches to on-land disposal of the finely ground rock.

Reserve favors a land site known as "Milepost 7" at Lax Lake near its Silver Bay plant for the disposal, while the state has been pushing for a site near the firm's mine at Babbitt, about 50 miles away.

Minnesota Gov. Wendell Anderson will lead an air and ground tour of the Milepost 7 site Wednesday, but has said he will rely largely on the state's technical advisers in making any recommendation on the site.

Factory Stays Open; Sales Up

ANNISTON, Ala. (AP) — A clothing plant that was to remain closed until August reopens today after an unexpected rise in sales, the firm says.

Plant Manager Chuck Gashler said Monday that some 200 employes, about half the normal work force, were recalled to the Imperial Reading Corp. factory. The plant makes jackets, jeans and pants.

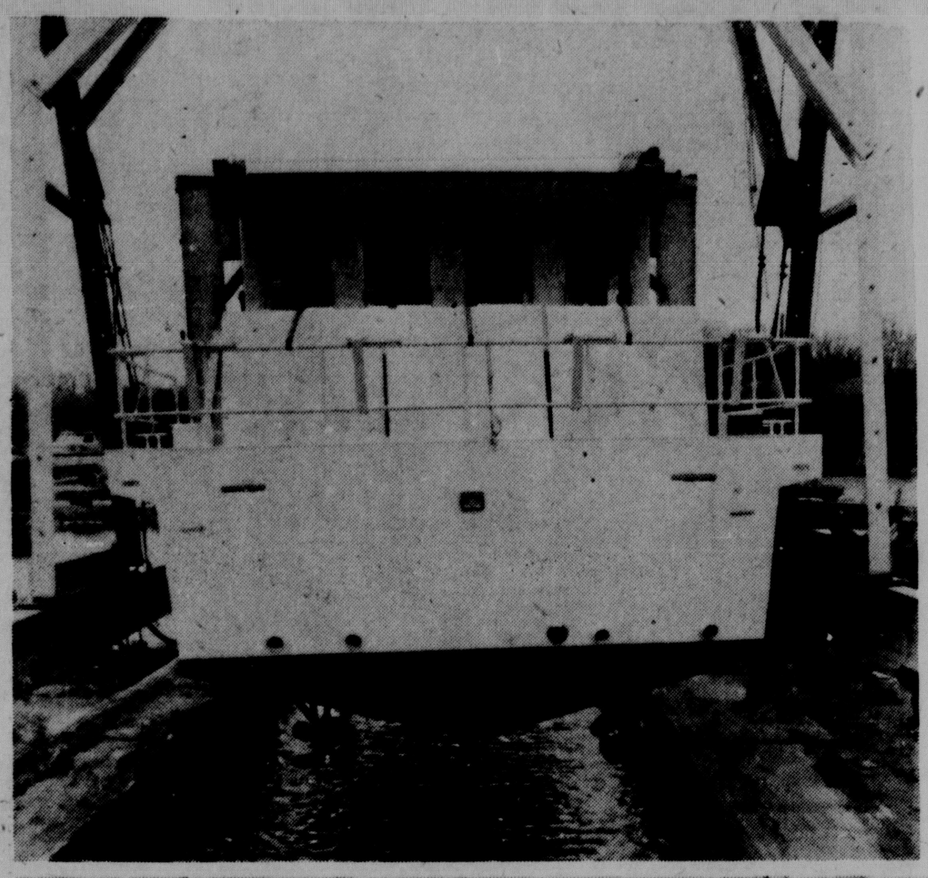
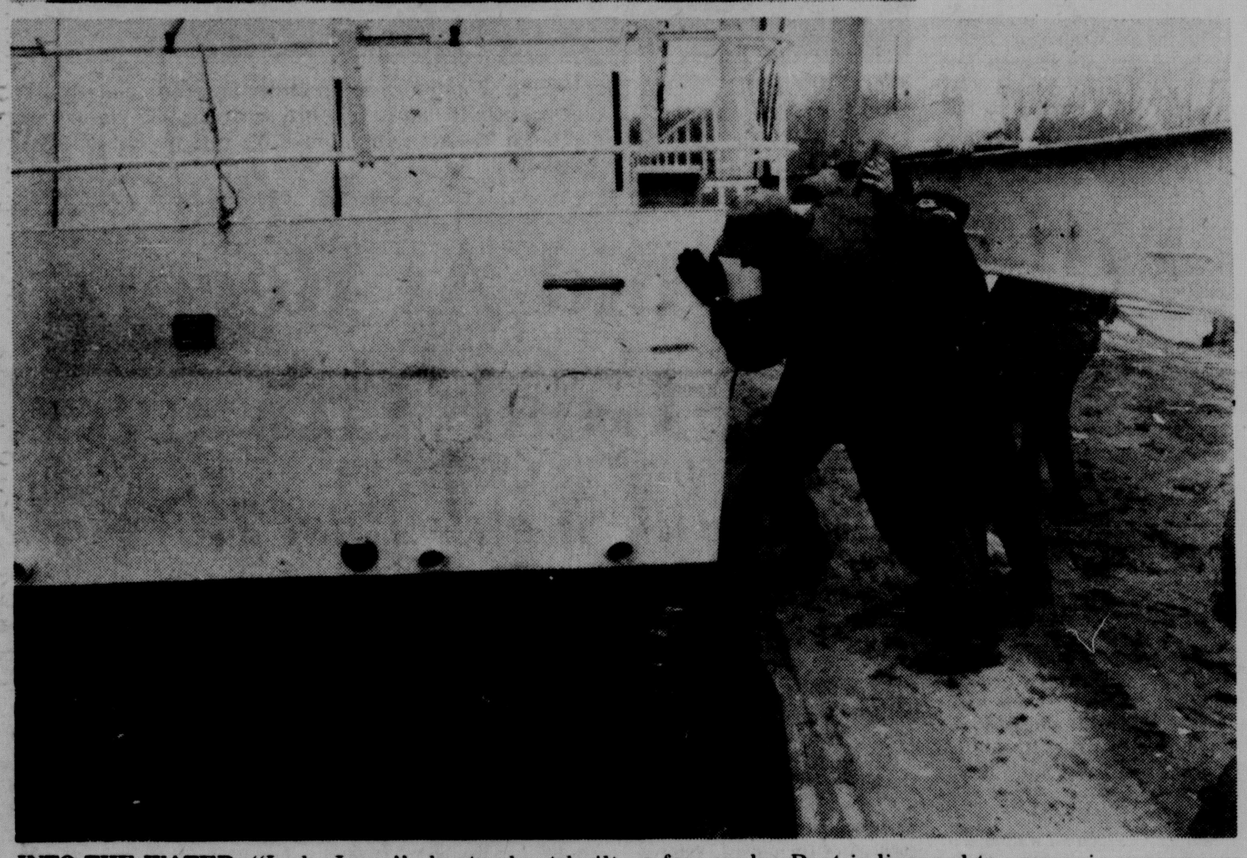
Maiden Voyage For 'Lady Jane'



DOWN TO THE SEA: Charter boat Capt. Ben Yacobozzi moved charter boat he recently finished building at dry dock on Maiden lane, St. Joseph township, down to Whispering Willows marina on St. Joseph river. Yacobozzi said it took 5½ hours to jack up approximately 42 by 14-foot boat and get it on trailer. Trip from dry dock to marina, via Cleveland and Niles avenues, a distance of about three miles, took about 15 minutes. Construction of boat, which Yacobozzi designed and built himself, took almost two years.



INTO THE WATER: "Lady Jane," charter boat built by Ben Yacobozzi, is lowered (two photos above) into St. Joseph river at Whispering Willows marina for testing. Yacobozzi said boat had only one small leak and should be ready for chartering lake fishermen in a few weeks. Boat is licensed to carry six passengers and is equipped with couches, bathroom and refrigerator. Yacobozzi, of 1454 Lupine, Lincoln township, has been charter boat skipper five years.

CHRISTENS BOAT: Mrs. Ben (Donna) Yacobozzi christens "Lady Jane," charter boat her husband spent two years building. Yacobozzi, a St. Joseph fireman, runs charter boat service for fishermen and lake tours. New steel boat, built at approximate cost of $15,000, replaces older and smaller wooden-hulled boat of same name.

Palisades Returning To Production

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — The Palisades nuclear plant will go back into commercial operation this week after a 19-month shutdown because of leaks and vibrations, Consumers Power Co. said Monday.

Consumers, which has spent millions to fix the plant and purchase power lost because of the closing, said testing at the 685,000-kilowatt facility began Sunday after repairs were completed.

The utility, with serves much of Lower Michigan, said output at the four-year-old plant would start at 20 per cent of capacity and be increased by two to five per cent each day until the peak authorized level is reached.

"We're going at this thing very carefully to make sure it works just right," a Consumers spokesman said. He said the firm has been given federal approval to start full operation of the plant.

Production at Palisades was suspended on Aug. 11, 1973, after leaks were discovered in the reactor's cooling system that involved the discharge of some radioactive Iodine 131 into Lake Michigan.

The firm was preparing to return the facility to production in October 1973 when small vibrations were found in the nuclear core. Consumers says they were later traced to a loose bolt.

After a delay of another month because of a problem with a turbine blade, Consumers brought the plant back into production for a short time last October.

But Consumers then decided to retube both sides of the main steam condenser, which involved replacing about 27,000 tubes. The plant uses the heat of a nuclear reaction to operate steam turbines.

Palisades is designed to provide 15 per cent of Consumers' electricity needs. Because of the shutdown, the firm has been forced to purchase power from neighboring utilities at a cost of $7 million to $8 million a month.

The first problems at Palisades came in January 1973 when a small leak was detected and the plant was shut for seven weeks but was reopened until the recurrence that August.

Consumers has filed suit in U.S. District Court seeking at least $300 million in damages from five companies which supplied parts or did design work for the plant.

The utility's other nuclear plant, the Big Rock facility at Charlevoix, went out of service on Jan. 16, because of malfunctions in a series of switches which pour water into the nuclear core if it overheats in an emergency situation.

The utility said replacement parts for Big Rock are under production, and no date has been set for reopening. The plant, which is 13 years old, has a rated capacity of 75,000 kilowatts.

ADC Arrears Totaling $7,070 Land 3 Fathers In Berrien Court

Two men received jail sentences and a third was placed on probation yesterday in Berrien circuit court for arrears totaling $7,070 for six children on ADC.

George Westfield, Berrien friend of the court, reported:

Daryl L. Berry, of 1911 Union street, Benton township, was sentenced to 60 days in jail by Judge Ronald Lange for $1,285 arrears for one child on ADC. Lange did not find Berry in contempt of court, but ordered that he sign a wage assignment of $27 weekly child support, and said the weekly arrearage payment will be determined later.

Louis Erwin, of Buchanan, got 30 days in jail for $4,170 arrears for four children on ADC. Lange found Erwin in contempt and placed him on six months probation, and told him he could be released from jail upon payment of $2,000 towards the arrearage.

ALL ABOUT FOODS

"THE BEER WE ALL ROOT FOR" "Reformulation" is a pretty big word, but we all got kind of used to it during the controversy over cyclamates. Many soft drinks had to be reformulated. And, as you might expect, they all claimed to be the better for it.

Well, today I'd like to tell you about a popular beverage that faced its own reformulation crisis back in 1960, and has come on strong since then.

The beverage is root beer, and the offending ingredient wasn't cyclamates, it was sassafras oil. The Food & Drug Administrations outlawed sassafras oil in all foods and beverages, but the people affected most were the root beer makers.

Well, they reformulated, and you know what happened? Root beer has moved from America's ninth favorite flavor to number four...and we are now drinking about three times as much root beer as we were just a few years ago!

All of this was helped along somewhat by the Root Beer Institute which, among other things, got the late Senator Everett Dirksen to reveal, in a White House press conference, that he loved the stuff and used to make it in his home.

Home brewing, of course, is another thing that sets root beer apart from other soft drinks. In fact, all root beer wasn't first home brewed, and it wasn't until 1936 that bottled root beer really caught on.

Root beer sells especially well in the summertime, thanks largely to all those roadside stands and all those thirsty tourists. Its weakest selling period is through the winter holidays...because it is "not a good mixer."

However, nothing mixes better with ice cream,and I can't think of anything more delightfully refreshing than a root beer float, can you?

Wooden Bows Out Champ

SAN DIEGO (AP) — And the beat goes on for UCLA, if not for John Wooden. The Maestro and his changing cast of characters — that remarkable duo of wisdom and talent — have left an imprint on their sport that will forever be felt.

College basketball's greatest combination, its leader directing his pupils in a textbook display for the last time, showed it had not grown rusty with age, or incapable without a superstar. The team and the man did it for the 10th time in 12 years.

"Everyone would like to go out with a victory," said the professorial Wooden who gave his last lesson Monday night as his beloved Bruins gave their coach a tremendous last hurrah — a 92-85 victory over physical Kentucky in the NCAA's title game.

"The fact that that the victory is for the national championship ...well, that certainly doesn't lessen the pleasure," the 64-year-old Wooden said as he bade farewell to a 40-year coaching career, a love affair with excellence which may never be equalled.

If this UCLA team — one of Wooden's favorites — didn't have a Jabbar or a Walton, it did have something else. The Bruins had Wooden's directions, his sometimes fiery presence, and with it they played nerveless basketball, exercising an old UCLA tactic called game control.

Wooden switched defenses to cool Kentucky's hot Kevin Grevey. He used his only substitute — 7-foot-1 Ralph Drollinger — to offset Kentucky's powerful bulk. He designed, in a very rare Monday morning practice, a play to free Pete Trgovich, and it was responsible for the Bruins taking control late in the first half after Kentucky had led most of the first 15 minutes.

And then he and the Bruins controlled the game's tempo, shutting off Kentucky every time the Wildcats rallied.

"We hoped to wear 'em down with a fast tempo," said Wooden. "We felt that we had to run on them and keep running. And it worked out exactly as we planned."

Wooden leaped up more than once to argue with officials, particularly when forward Dave Meyers was tagged with a technical, which gave Kentucky's Grevey, who had a game-high 34 points, a one-and-one free throw and the Wildcats would still have the ball.

UCLA led 76-75. Kentucky had just completed a charge that had all but wiped out a 10-point lead which was built by Rich Washington and Meyers, who led UCLA with 28 and 24 points, respectively.

Kentucky blew it. Grevey missed both free throws and the Wildcats threw the ball away when they worked for a shot. They were never closer than three points after that.

"Everyone played very tough," said the 6-foot-8 Meyers, who combined with Washington and Drollinger to blunt Kentucky's muscle and hold the Wildcats' three huge freshmen centers to eight points.

Catching Meyers' competitive fire were Washington — this tournament's Most Valuable Player — and Drollinger, the three of them combining for 62 points and 36 rebounds.

"When Drollinger came in, it created mismatches for us," Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall said. "Wooden's power team (Drollinger, Meyers and Washington) was outstanding."

When Drollinger went into the game, Kentucky, powered by Grevey, was leading. He hit his 18th point of the first half with eight minutes remaining, giving the Wildcats a 31-27 lead.

But with the lineup change, the 6-5 Grevey had to contend with the 6-9 Washington rather than 6-6 Marques Johnson. And the Kentucky ace did not score for the next 18 minutes. By that time, Drollinger was leaving and UCLA was ahead 66-56.

The big men were not alone for the Bruins. Guard Andre McCarter moved quickly with looping passes when UCLA needed speed; he played with caution when Wooden wanted the tempo changed. He had 14 assists.

And there was Trgovich, whose 16 points were primwrily the result of a trap play Wooden had worked out in his secret Monday morning practice. It produced five field goals in a five-minute stretch of the first half when the Bruins were turning the game around.

And at the end, there was Johnson, getting critical rebounds, scoring two key baskets.

"It seems impossible that anyone can beat that well-coached Kentucky team with only six players," said Wooden. "But I guess we were a little quicker and had a little more finesse."

And they had Wooden.

But when he did, it made all the difference.

The 6-foot-5, 205-pounder from Chicago, Ind., scored 12 of his 21 points in overtime and had two key steals to boost Louisville over the Orangemen 96-88.

After a stirring comeback by underdog Syracuse tied the game 78-78 at the end of regulation play, Bridgeman, who made only three of six shots in the first half, went to work.

He picked off a rebound after Jim Lee missed a 16-foot shot and fed Allen Murphy for a nine-footer that put Louisville ahead. He then ran off six straight points for a 90-86 lead.

And when Syracuse pulled to within two points, Bridgeman intercepted a Lee pass, hit on two free throws, and made another steal to choke off the last of the Syracuse push.

"I think they'll both be great pros because they can both play guard or forward," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum of Bridgeman and Murphy. "They seldom have a bad game because they maintain the same mental approach."

Murphy wound up with 20 points.

Bill Bunton, a 6-8 center, led Louisville with 24 points, but he was overmatched in the second half by Syracuse's Rudy Hackett, a second-team All-American who scored 28 points.

Hackett, speedster Jim "Bug" Williams and Lee led the aborted comeback. Lee had 27 points over-all while the 5-10 Williams contributed crucial steals.

Brown Best Texas Pitcher

Making Most Of Third Shot At Big Time

From Associated Press

Baseball has thrown Jackie Brown a few curves over the years ... and vice versa.

Things are beginning to change ... on both sides.

After spending most of his adult life in the minor leagues before finally getting a shot with the Washington Senators in 1970, the 31-year-old righthander is making the most of his third shot at the big time.

He pitched five scoreless innings Monday in the Texas Rangers' 5-1 exhibition triumph over the Atlanta Braves, allowing only four hits. In fact, Manager Billy Martin calls Brown his best pitcher this spring and that includes 25-game winner Fergie Jenkins and 19-gamer Jim Bibby.

Elsewhere, the day was replete with shutouts — Kansas City Royals 3, Baltimore Orioles 0; Pittsburgh Pirates 4, New York Mets 0; Cincinnati Reds 4, Philadelphia Phillies 0; Minnesota Twins 3, New York Yankees 0; Cleveland Indians 2, Chicago Cubs 0.

Other scores: St. Louis Cardinals 6, Boston Red Sox 3; Detroit Tigers 5, Chicago White Sox 3; Milwaukee Brewers 13, Oakland A's 11; Montreal Expos 7, Houston Astros 1; San Diego Padres 10, California Angels 9.

After Brown got into 24 games with the Senators in 1970, he divided 1971 again between Denver and Washington but spent all of 1972 in Denver. After pitching in 19 games for Spokane, Wash., in 1973, the Rangers summoned him and he's been a big leaguer ever since.

In 1974, his first full season, the former peanut farmer and hog raiser from Wewoka, Okla., worked his way into the starting rotation after seven relief jobs and posted a 13-12 mark.

Another name to remember is 20-year-old Dennis Eckersley of the Cleveland Indians. The Texas League's strikeout king of 1974 held the Chicago Cubs hitless in three innings, fanning three, and thoroughly impressed Manager Frank Robinson.

Nelson Briles, bidding for the fourth starting spot in Kansas City's rotation, hurled six innings of three-hit shutout ball to help the Royals blank Baltimore.

Bruce Kison, Dave Giusti and Ramon Hernandez combined for a five-hitter as the Pirates blanked the Mets and Jack Billingham pitched a six-hitter as Cincinnati downed Philadelphia in a game shortened to six innings by rain. Minnesota's Joe Decker and Bill Butler blanked the Yankees on four hits.

Rookie John Denny allowed only two hits in seven innings and Ted Simmons and Lou Brock homered as St. Louis beat Boston.

Two doubles and a single by Terry Humphrey paced Detroit over the White Sox, Chicago's sixth loss in a row. Rookie Sixto Lezcano hit a grand slam home run in Milwaukee's seven-run second inning against Oakland and made a game-saving ninth-inning catch in center field.

Doubles by Larry Lintz and Pete Mackanin highlighted a five-run Montreal first inning against Houston. Montreal starter Dennis Blair allowed six hits and one run through 7 2-3 innings.

Dave Roberts climaxed a two-run eighth-inning rally with a sacrifice fly that carried San Diego past California.

Tigers Shade Sox, Finally Show Signs Of Solidifying

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Joe Coleman and Terry Humphrey sparkled Monday for the Detroit Tigers, who appear to be solidifying as opening day looms just a week away.

Coleman held the Chicago White Sox to six hits in seven innings and Humphrey stroked three hits and drove in two runs as the Tigers bounced the Chisox 5-3 and collected their fourth straight victory.

"Sure, I'd like to pitch opening day," said Coleman, whose performance may have made him the odds-on favorite to open the season against Baltimore on April 8, since Mickey Lolich is having a dismal spring.

"But whenever I pitch for the first time will be opening day for me," said Coleman, now with an earned-run average of 5.19. "I'm just happy I'm throwing the ball as well as I am," he said. "I'm throwing my fastball as well as I ever have.

"That was my problem last year ... Now I'm throwing it better than ever."

Manager Ralph Houk said Coleman and reliever Tom Walker, who allowed just one hit in two innings of relief, have looked better than any other Tiger pitchers this spring.

Two of Humphrey's hits were doubles as he raised his spring average to .375. Gene Michael and Art James each got a pair of safeties in the Tigers' 11-hit attack.

Willie Horton, who was the club's designated hitter, collected one hit and an RBI, apparently is beginning to adjust to the position.

"It does give you an opportunity to think about the game and figure out different things," Horton said. But he also said the hitting job leaves "too much time to think."

"I gotta buy myself some books or something," he laughed.

Horton, still recovering from knee surgery, has not played in his old position in leftfield since the spring season began.

Hull Bid At Record 76th Goal Thwarted

Jets Still Sneak Past Racers

From Associated Press

Bobby Hull didn't score a goal Monday night. In fact, he managed only one shot on goal in Winnipeg's World Hockey Association game against the Indianapolis Racers.

But while Nick Harbaruk was shadowing the veteran left wing, and all the other Racers were watching him out of the corners of their eyes, veteran Howie Young sneaked through for two goals and led the Jets to a 4-1 victory over the Racers.

A capacity crowd of 10,519 appeared at the Winnipeg Arena in anticipation that a Hull shot would become his 76th goal of the season — tying Phil Esposito's all-time pro hockey record set in 1970-71.

He had 75 goals in 73 games before the contest, and it seemed Hull would have no trouble in scoring. After all, the Racers had the worst defensive record in the league: 315 goals against.

But the Racers sent out Harbaruk, and Hull wasn't so sure he liked the idea.

"It's kind of a slap in the face of the other team's ability to send out a checking line against us," said hockey's highest scoring left wing. "Sometimes the checking line is also their best scoring line, too. So where does that put them? I don't understand why teams do that."

Hull's linemate, rookie Anders Hedberg, scored his 49th goal. Veli Ketola had the other Winnipeg goal while Jim Wiste gave the Racers a temporary 11 tie with a shorthanded goal in the first period.

Hull tied the record of 50 goals in 50 games set by Maurice "The Rocket" Richard of the Montreal Canadiens in 1944-45.

"Rocket's record was an outstanding accomplishment. Esposito's 76 was marvelous but that doesn't detract from whatever total I make this year."

Gene Peacosh and Norm Ferguson scored goals within seven seconds of the first period to help San Diego end Edmonton's playoff hopes. Peacosh scored his 42nd of the campaign at 8:09 of the session on a pass from Ferguson, then set up Ferguson's 33rd at 8:16.

Rick Sentes, Kevin Devine and Joe Hardy also scored for the Mariners, who moved into second place in the West Division. Blair MacDonald and Murray Kennett tallied for Edmonton.

CUSTOMERS SHARE FUEL SAVINGS

April I&M Bills Will Be Lower

April bills of Indiana & Michigan Electric Company's 420,000 customers will reflect a lower fuel cost adjustment for the third consecutive month, it was announced today.

Robert M. Kopper, executive vice president, attributed the utility's decline in fuel costs to two factors.

The I&M executive said that the cost of oil for generation at the company's Twin Branch plant to meet environmental regulations has decreased slightly, and that the company is now receiving most of its coal from its regular sources rather than through higher-priced spot purchases as was necessary during the miners' strike to ensure availability of generating capacity.

Another factor in the diminished fuel cost adjustment, Kopper said, was a reduction in the generation of its Twin Branch plant caused by industrial production cutbacks and customer conservation efforts.

"This decrease in demand for power permitted I&M to produce a larger proportion of its power supply at its lower-cost plants," Kopper said. Low-sulfur oil burned at Twin Branch costs approximately four times as much as coal.

Kopper said while there was no assurance that the fuel cost adjustment would continue to decline he was optimistic. He warned, however, that terms of the recent miners' contract settlement is starting to be reflected in higher coal costs and that such additional federal regulations like the new strip-mining bill now under consideration also will cause coal costs to increase further. The latter alone by as much as $250 a ton.

Kopper reported that while the company's nuclear unit at its Cook Plant was operating as scheduled, having reached a generation level of 655,000 kilowatts, it was too early to determine what effect its generating output might have on the fuel adjustment.

The I&M executive stated that the company is continuing its efforts to provide electricity at the lowest prices possible, but it's an uphill battle all he way because so many of our costs are beyond our control. Some priorities need to be changed. As one example, the scales are too much weighted toward the aesthetic aspect of our environment and not balanced toward the ability of the consumer to pay, Kopper concluded.

Breedsville Store Robbed By Trio

by TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — A Breedsville grocery store was robbed of a estimated $70 to $80 by three men last night, according to stat police from the South Haven post.

Troopers said Hampton's grocery, CR- 205, was robbed a approximately 9:40 p.m.

Mrs. Wade Hampton, wife of the owner, told police she was forced to lay on the floor while the money was removed from a cash register. Mrs. Wade, who was not injuried, said one of the men was armed with a handgun and that another man had a pillow case over his head.

Bangor police subsequently stopped a car matching a descrip tion of a car seen leaving the area moments after the hold-up, bu officers said the occupants were not involved.

According to troopers, the store owner saw the car driving by the store just after the gunmen, described as black, had fled.

Connally Goes On Trial Today

After the questioning, the prospective jurors who had not been disqualified for reasons such as inability to serve three weeks or more on the jury were to be taken individually before the judge and lawyers for more detailed interrogation in private.

Each jury prospect was to be asked about knowledge of the case, possible preconceptions of guilt or innocence, and personal circumstances that might make jury duty burdensome.

The government alleges that Connally accepted two $5,000 payments from Associated Milk Producers, Inc., the nation's largest dairy cooperative, after he urged Nixon to raise milk price supports in 1971.

Connally is the fourth member of Nixon's Cabinet to face criminal charges. He is only the second Cabinet member in American history to be charged with taking a bribe. The first, Interior Secretary Albert B. Fall, was convicted in the Teapot Dome scandal of the 1920s.

He was a protege of Lyndon B. Johnson in the late 1930s and was a Senate aide to Johnson. He nominated LBJ for president in the 1956, 1960 and 1964 national Democratic conventions and, in January 1973, eulogized the former president at his funeral.

President John F. Kennedy named him secretary of the Navy in 1961. Soon after, he ran for his first term as governor and was riding with Kennedy when the President was assassinated in Dallas in 1963. Connally was wounded by gunfire at the time.

After leaving the governor's office in 1969 Connally joined a prestigious Houston law firm; then accepted Nixon's offer to become treasury secretary. He resigned in May 1972 and officially became a Republican a year later, while Nixon was deeply embroiled in the Watergate scandal.

The government's chief witness against him is expected to be Jake Jacobsen, a Connally friend of more than two decades, who told prosecutors he gave Connally the money in two cash payments in Connally's Treasury Department office.

Jacobsen was performing legal work for Associated Milk Producers at the time. He has pleaded guilty to bribing a federal official and awaits sentencing.

If convicted on two counts of accepting illegal gratuities, Connally could be sentenced to a maximum of four years in prison and $20,000 fine.

He is charged also with conspiring to cover-up the illegal payments and with lying to the Watergate grand jury, but trial on those counts was deferred.

Fish Import Protest

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) — Hundreds of little fishing boats took to sea early today with a week's supply of food and fuel and orders to blockade many of Britain's busiest ports. The all-out campaign by coastal fishermen against imports of cheap foreign fish began at midnight. An armada estimated at 1,000 to 1,500 boats was to sail under cover of darkness, but forecasts of stormy weather delayed the departure in some areas. More than 100 vessels sailed from Peterhead, which with Aberdeen is a major supply base for scores of oil rigs drilling far out in the gale-swept North Sea. The oil companies sent extra food and equipment to the rigs in case their supply ports were blockaded.

The U. S. government also announced it was continuing efforts to evacuate South Vietnamese in front of the Communist advance. It said four U.S. ships were loading off Qui Nhon, one each off Tuy Hoa and Nha Trang, and one was still standing by off Da Nang in case any more escaped from that northern port, which the North Vietnamese occupied Sunday.

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, who two weeks ago said an attack on Saigon would not come before next year, predicted "major action" against the capital "in the next month or two," before the South Vietnamese army can stabilize its defenses.

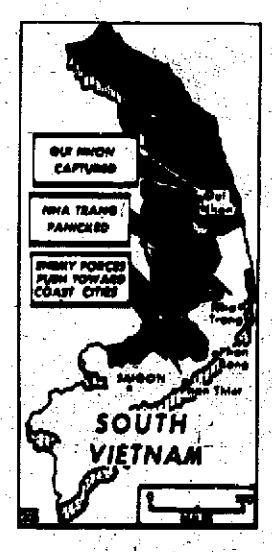
Schlesinger said the United States "continues to have an obligation to be helpful to South Vietnam" but "what particular form that help takes remains to be seen."

Some U.S. government experts in Washington said there was no way to stop the Communist offensive from rolling over the rest of the country.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen reported that President Ford feels the debacle in South Vietnam was caused by Hanoi's violations of the Paris peace agreement and by the failure of Congress to grant his request for more aid.

Five million of the 20 million South Vietnamese lived in the conquered provinces and another 6 million live in provinces in which control is divided between Saigon and the Communist command.

The Saigon government estimates the offensive has generated more than 2 million refugees. But about 75 per cent of them were in Da Nang and couldn't get out before the Communist occupation of the city halted their evacuation.



SHRINKING: Communist troops continued their drive Tuesday on the central coast of South Vietnam. Saigon government announced the fall of Qui Nhon and rioting has broken out in Nha Trang. (AP Wirephoto)

Bucks, Knicks Face Fight To Make Playoffs Again

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

When the National Basketball Association season began 5½ months ago, there seemed little doubt that three of the playoff berths would be gobbled up by the Los Angeles Lakers, Milwaukee Bucks and New York Knicks.

Now there's doubt whether any of them will be around when 10 NBA teams begin slicing up the post-season pie.

The Lakers are dead, mainly last in the Pacific Division with a record that surpasses only that of the New Orleans Jazz.

The Bucks, last year's finalists against defending champion Boston, are all but dead. They've got to win all four of their remaining games and Detroit must lose all three for Milwaukee to make the playoffs as the Western Conference's wildcard team. In the unlikely event that the Bucks sweep and the Pistons collapse, they'd finish tied with 39-43 records and the Bucks would qualify by having won the season series against Detroit.

But the Pistons can make the whole question academic by beating the Bucks tonight in Milwaukee — or Saturday in Detroit.

The Knicks have at least a reasonable chance for a playoff berth. They're scrambling with the Houston Rockets and Cleveland Cavaliers for the two remaining Eastern Conference berths.

Houston and Cleveland are fighting for second place — an automatic playoff spot — in the Central Division. Whichever team loses that scuffle (Houston has a one-game lead over the Cavaliers with two games apiece to go) will then be matched, record-wise, against the Knicks to see who gets the East's wild card. Right now, the Knicks are in a virtual tie with the Cavaliers, but they have four games to go, one of them Thursday night in Cleveland.

If the Cavaliers and Rockets tie for second — and they've split their eight games — it goes to the team with the best record against teams in the division or, failing that, the conference. And if the Knicks finish in a tie with either Houston or Cleveland for the conference wild card, they get the berth by virtue of having won the season series against both.

The remaining seven playoff berths have already been clinched — by the Golden State Warriors, Seattle SuperSonics, Chicago Bulls and Kansas City-Omaha Kings in the West and the Boston Celtics, Buffalo Braves and Washington Bullets in the East. Only a few positions in the final standings — which comes down to a healthy chunk of dough and a homecourt playoff advantage — are still to be decided.

The Celtics lead the Bullets by one game in the duel for the best record in the league and in the East. It could be decided when the Bullets play at Boston Friday night.

The Warriors and Bulls are fighting for the top spot in the West. Golden State leads by two games and can lock out Chicago by winning both its remaining games.

Chicago is also in another race, with the Kings for first in the Midwest Division. The Bulls hold a 1½-game edge there.

"We've won seven games in nine days, so you have to feel happy about that. But the fatigue factor is getting to be incredible," said Coach Hubie Brown after Artis Gilmore and the Colonels demolished San Antonio 103-88 Monday night to move into a first-place tie in the East Division of the American Basketball Association with the idle New York Nets.

"Dan Issel has a foot infection. He was only able to give us about 15 minutes tonight. We're down to seven healthy guys," Brown said.

Without Issel's outside shooting, the Colonels had to rely even more than usual on Gilmore. And the 7-foot-2 center came through in style, pouring in 36 points and hauling down 25 rebounds.

The game was all but decided in the first period, when the Colonels blew out to a 33-18 lead. From then on, the two teams played virtually even. San Antonio, paced by James Silas' 23 points, closed within 11 points late in the third period but a quick burst by Kentucky widened the margin to 18 midway in the fourth period.

Bass, thinking ahead to the playoffs, observed: "Right now, Kentucky is playing a lot better defense. But I've got to say that three weeks ago New York played the best defense against us that I've ever seen in this league."

The only two teams that will sit out the playoffs after regular season play ends next Thursday night are Virginia, last in the East, and San Diego, at the bottom of the West.

And, with the exception of the top of the East, everything else is set, too. Fourth-place Memphis will open on the division champ's court and third-place St. Louis will go against the runner-up. Utah, the defending Western champ but fourth this season, opens the first round at Denver while second-place San Antonio hosts Indiana.

Ron Boone and John Roche combined for 60 points in the Stars' triumph over Virginia. Boone scored 36 points, 20 of them in the second half, and Roche hit 24.

Rookie Moses Malone had 14 of his 18 in the final quarter to add some more Utah punch. Red Robbins paced Virginia with 20.

NHL Playoff Setup Still To Be Decided

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers Coach Emile Francis considered the upcoming Stanley Cup playoffs and said, "Well, we'll know who's playing come Sunday ... I think."

Sunday, April 6, marks the end of the National Hockey League's regular season. By some time late that evening, the point standings will be finalized and every team that makes the playoffs will know who their opposition will be.

That doesn't include the Philadelphia Flyers or Buffalo Sabres, who have clinched the regular-season crowns in Divisions 1 and 4, respectively. They must wait until the first round is concluded before their opponent is decided.

Meanwhile, the races continue for the other division titles and playoff spots. In Division 3, the Montreal Canadiens are one point away from ruining the Los Angeles Kings' first-place hopes. The Canadiens could clinch Wednesday night when they host the Pittsburgh Penguins.

The Division 2 crown remains up in the air as the Vancouver Canucks, St. Louis Blues and Chicago Black Hawks were separated by a mere two points entering Tuesday night's action.

And there will be significant games galore. The Atlanta Flames, facing virtual elimination from a playoff berth in Division 1, visit the New York Islanders.

"We'll have to go for broke," admitted Flames goalie Dan Bouchard after Atlanta tied the Islanders 2-2 Sunday and remained five points behind with just four games remaining. A loss Tuesday would put them seven points back of the Islanders with three games to play and would hasten the start of summer vacations.

The Kings, still clinging to a wispy hope of overtaking Montreal, face the Kansas City Scouts. The Scouts were blasted for 59 shots on goal in an 8-2 loss to the New York Rangers Sunday night which lifted the Rangers into a second-place tie with the Islanders.

Three teams from each division can make the playoffs. The spots have been decided in Division 4, where Buffalo has clinched first, Boston second and Toronto third.

In Division 3, the Canadiens, Kings and Penguins are guaranteed post-season action. Likewise Division 2, although it is far from certain where St. Louis, Chicago and Vancouver will finish. The Blues play the Minnesota North Stars and the Canucks take on the California Seals Tuesday night.

So, when Sunday's action is over. The questions will be answered — temporarily. The four divisional winners take a week off as a best-of-three first-stround series is played between the eight other playoff qualifiers.

Of those eight, the team with the most points will play the team with the least, the team with the second-most will face the team with the second-least, and so on. In each case, the team with more points will have the first and — if necessary — the third game on its home ice.

If the playoffs started Tuesday, the first-round matchups would be: Los Angeles vs. Toronto; Boston vs. St. Louis; Pittsburgh vs. Chicago and the Rangers vs. the Islanders.

Playoffs Resume Tonight

From Associated Press

Ernie Moser of Muskegon is the leading goal-getter after the first week of the International Hockey League playoffs with five tallies.

He shares scoring honors with Doug Acomb of Port Huron; both have eight points each.

All eight contending teams are still vying for the coveted Turner Cup in four best-of-seven quarterfinal matches.

The Muskegon Mohawks lead the Port Huron Wings 3-1 in their series. The next meeting is at Port Huron on Wednesday.

The Dayton Gems and Des Moines Capitols, the defending Turner Cup champs, are even at two games each. The fifth game is set for tonight at Dayton.

WMU Baseball Opener Spoiled

MACON, Ga. (AP) — Host Mercer University spoiled Western Michigan's 1975 baseball opener with a 5-2 victory Monday as pitcher John Hart upped his season mark to 4-2 with 13 strikeouts.

Bronco hurler Tom Carpenter struck out eight batters and was victimized by four unearned runs as Western committed six errors.

Western scored in the fourth on sole homers by Rockey Manuel and Tim May. Mercer, 16-8, had eight hits.

Pistons Can Make Playoffs Tonight

Bucks Pay Jabbar's Fine

DETROIT (AP) — A victory tonight over the Milwaukee Bucks could propel Detroit into the 1975 National Basketball Association playoffs, but the Pistons will have to handle superstar Kareem Adbul-Jabbar to do it.

Dealing with Abdul-Jabbar is common practice in a game with the Bucks, but until Milwaukee paid a league fine on Monday, there was a slim chance the Bucks would play without their 7-foot-4 center. His absence would all but hand a victory and the playoffs to Detroit.

Abdul-Jabbar was fined for criticizing an official, but declined to pay the $300 assessment. The NBA said it could suspend Abdul-Jabbar unless the levy was received by 5 p.m. today.

"I sent the check to New York today, subject to appeal," said Wayne Embry, the Bucks' vice president and general manager. "If the appeal is upheld, the check will be returned."

If the Pistons make the playoffs, it will be their second consecutive appearance. Last year, they were ousted in the first round, losing the final game of a rough seven-game series to the Chicago Bulls. The Bulls now lead the Midwest Division, with third-place Detroit 5½ games behind.

The playoff position is the "wildcard" slot, which goes to the third-place team in the Western Conference with the best record. Detroit is 39-40, while fourth-place Milwaukee, with only a slim chance for post-season play, is 35-43. Portland, third in the Pacific Division, appears out of the running at 35-44.

"Jerry Loeber sets a standard of ineptitude for referees that is unequaled," Jabbar said. "I think he is unqualified to be an official in this league. They fine you when you say things about officials, but I think he stinks."

Even if the Bucks win tonight, the Pistons could enter the playoffs with a victory either Wednesday over Chicago or Sunday over the Bucks. A Milwaukee loss after tonight, in any one of the three remaining games, also would send Detroit into post-season play.

Lolich Upset Over Poor Pitching

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — "Don't ask me about it," said a downhearted Mickey Lolich. "I have nothing to say."

The comment from the Detroit Tiger pitcher was completely out of character. But understandable.

After Sunday's game, however, Lolich was in no mood to talk to anybody.

He walked by a row of shouting, joking teammates as he left the clubhouse, didn't join in the celebration of the wild 13-12 exhibition victory over Cincinnati, and kept on going to his motorcycle without saying a word.

The 34-year-old Lolich had been scheduled to pitch seven innings in the game but was clobbered in the second. The Reds sent 12 men to bat and scored eight runs on eight hits. Two of them were homers.

The pounding raised Lolich's earned run average to a horrendous 8.65 in spring training. He has yielded 25 earned runs in 26 innings and has given up 44 hits, seven of them home runs.

Lolich obviously is confused and concerned. He admits his fastball is not what it has been in the past, and now he is having trouble popping his No. 1 pitch—the slider—in like he used to.

Manager Ralph Houk hinted Lolich no longer is the automatic choice to pitch in the Tigers' opening game, an honor he has been given the past seven years. Houk said Joe Coleman was in the running for the opener spot.

"It's between those two," he said. "But I won't make the decision until the last minute to see who's pitching best."

Of Lolich's performance, Houk commented:

Nine Dodgers On Star Ballot

NEW YORK (AP) — The National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers have tied a record by placing nine players on the ballot for the 1975 All-Star Game, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Monday.

The only previous teams to have nine players listed on the computerized punch-out ballot since fan voting began again in 1970 were the Detroit Tigers of 1971 and 1972 and the Houston Astros of 1973.

All 24 major league teams are represented on the 1975 ballot with the world champion Oakland A's and the New York Mets each placing eight nominees.

The Dodgers' All-Star nominees include two catchers, Joe Ferguson and Steve Yeager, four infielders and three outfielders.

The fans will select the starting line-ups for the July 15 game at Milwaukee from among the 128 nominees or by write-in votes. Last year's produced a record 6,545,712 ballots from all 50 states and Canada. That was a 63 per cent increase over 1973.

Balloting will begin May 24 and end July 6. The results will be announced on July 9 and 10. Ballots will be available at all major and minor league parks and in retail stores that feature an All-Star display.

Pitchers and reserves will be named by the rival managers, Alvin Dark of the A's and Walter Alston of the Dodgers.

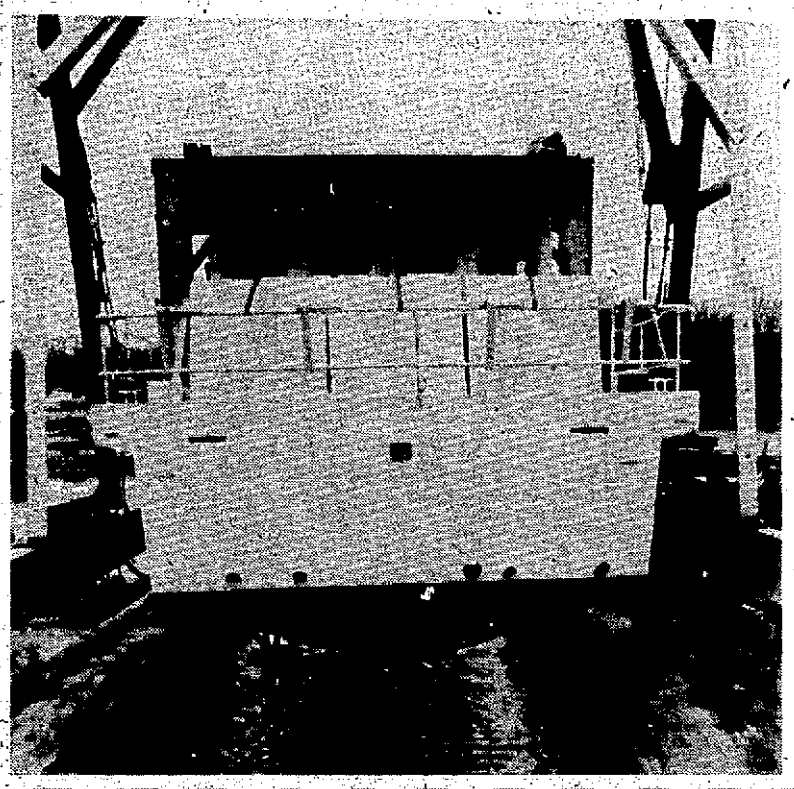
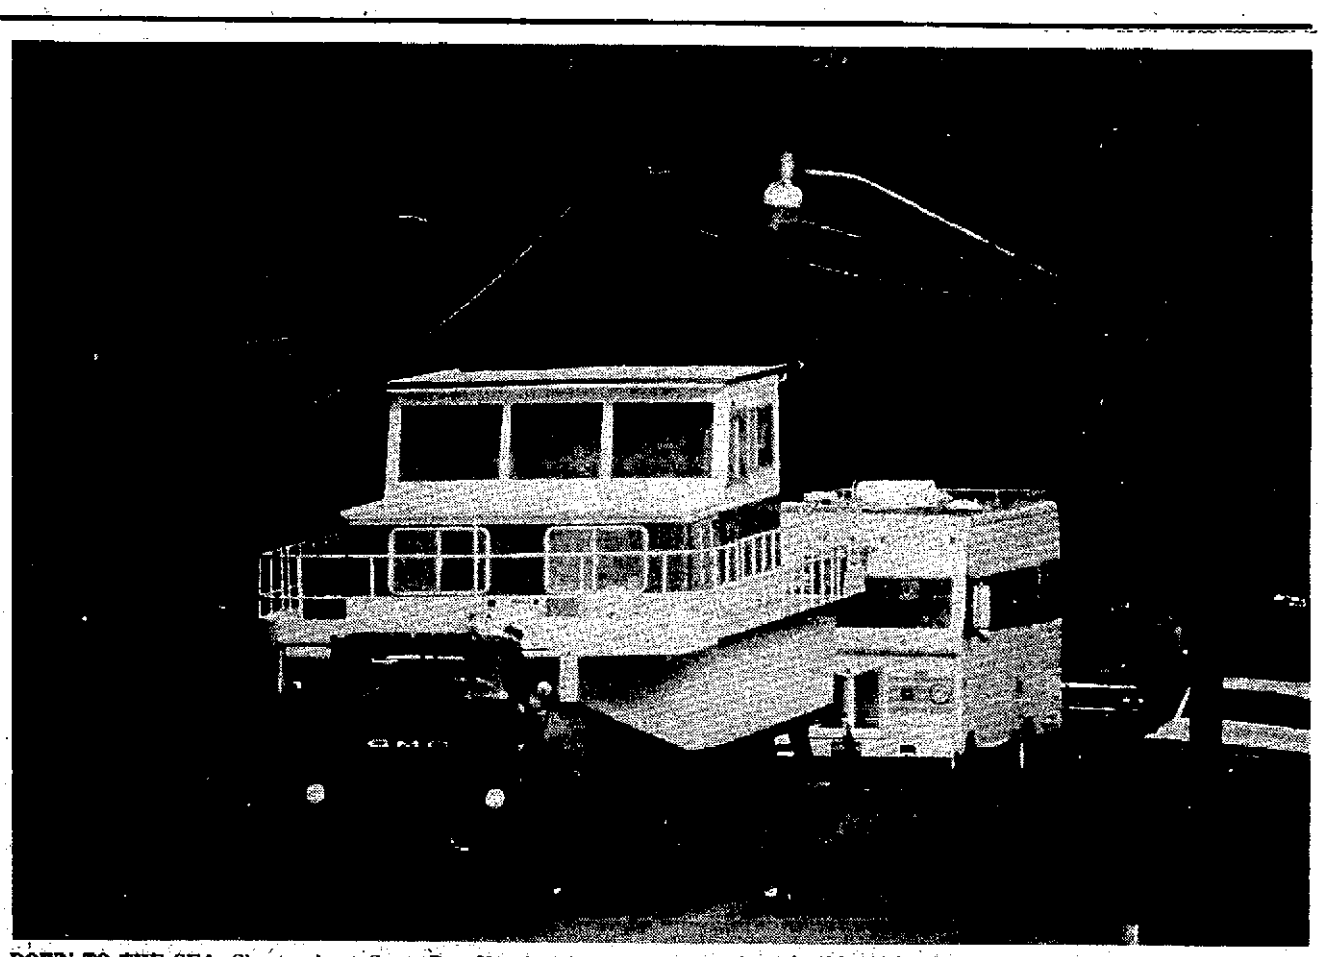
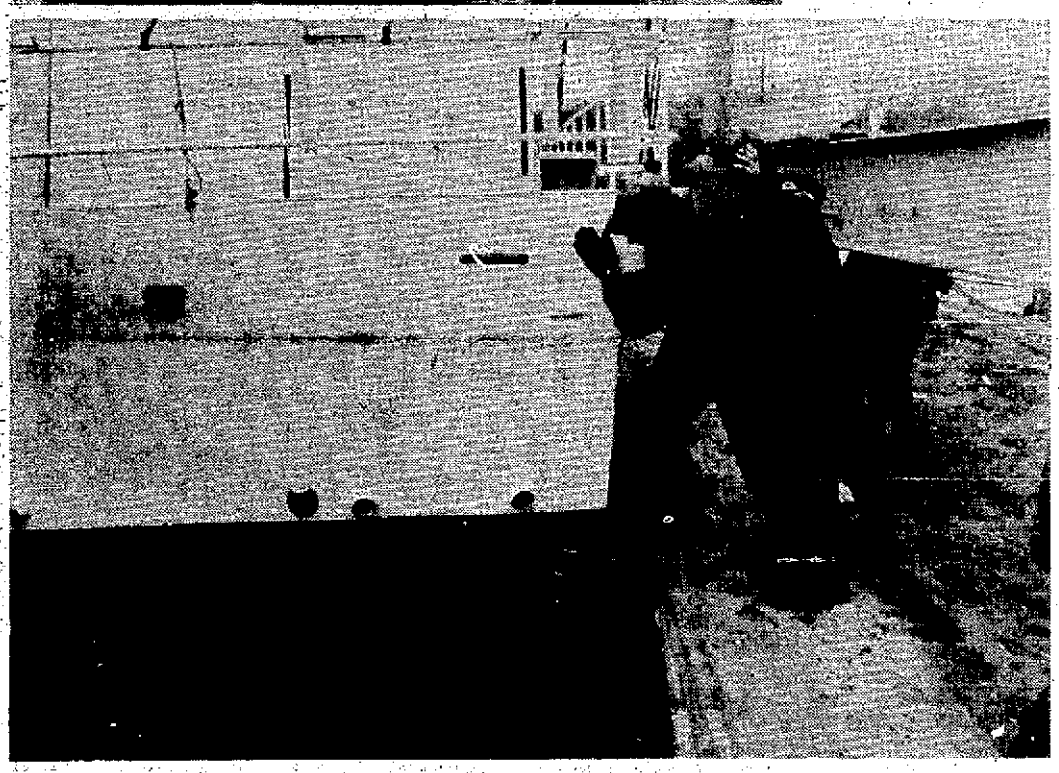
Maiden Voyage For 'Lady Jane'





DOWN TO THE SEA: Charter boat Capt. Ben Yacobozzi moved charter boat he recently finished building at dry dock on Maiden lane, St. Joseph township, down to Whispering Willows marina on St. Joseph river. Yacobozzi said it took 5½ hours to jack up approximately 42 by 14-foot boat and get it on trailer. Trip from dry dock to marina, via Cleveland and Niles avenues, a distance of about three miles, took about 15 minutes. Construction of boat, which Yacobozzi designed and built himself, took almost two years.



INTO THE WATER: "Lady Jane," charter boat built by Ben Yacobozzi, is lowered (two photos above) into St. Joseph river at Whispering Willows marina for testing. Yacobozzi said boat had only one small leak and should be ready for chartering lake fishermen in a few weeks. Boat is licensed to carry six passengers and is equipped with couches, bathroom and refrigerator. Yacobozzi, of 1454 Lupine, Lincoln township, has been charter boat skipper five years.

CHRISTENS BOAT: Mrs. Ben (Donna) Yacobozzi christens "Lady Jane," charter boat her husband spent two years building. Yacobozzi, a St. Joseph fireman, runs charter boat service for fishermen and lake tours. New steel boat, built at approximate cost of $15,000, replaces older and smaller wooden-hulled boat of same name.

Palisades Returning To Production

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — The Palisades nuclear plant will go back into commercial operation this week after a 19-month shutdown because of leaks and vibrations, Consumers Power Co. said Monday.

Consumers, which has spent millions to fix the plant and purchase power lost because of the closing, said testing at the 685,000-kilowatt facility began Sunday after repairs were completed.

The utility, with serves much of Lower Michigan, said output at the four-year-old plant would start at 20 per cent of capacity and be increased by two to five per cent each day until the peak authorized level is reached.

"We're going at this thing very carefully to make sure it works just right," a Consumers spokesman said. He said the firm has been given federal approval to start full operation of the plant.

Production at Palisades was suspended on Aug. 11, 1973, after leaks were discovered in the reactor's cooling system that involved the discharge of some radioactive Iodine 131 into Lake Michigan.

The firm was preparing to return the facility to production in October 1973 when small vibrations were found in the nuclear core. Consumers says they were later traced to a loose bolt.

After a delay of another month because of a problem with a turbine blade, Consumers brought the plant back into production for a short time last October.

But Consumers then decided to retube both sides of the main steam condenser, which involved replacing about 27,000 tubes. The plant uses the heat of a nuclear reaction to operate steam turbines.

Palisades is designed to provide 15 per cent of Consumers' electricity needs. Because of the shutdown, the firm has been forced to purchase power from neighboring utilities at a cost of $7 million to $8 million a month.

The first problems at Palisades came in January 1973 when a small leak was detected and the plant was shut for seven weeks but was reopened until the recurrence that August.

Consumers has filed suit in U.S. District Court seeking at least $300 million in damages from five companies which supplied parts or did design work for the plant.

The utility's other nuclear plant, the Big Rock facility at Charlevoix, went out of service on Jan. 16, because of malfunctions in a series of switches which pour water into the nuclear core if it overheats in an emergency situation.

The utility said replacement parts for Big Rock are under production, and no date has been set for reopening. The plant, which is 13 years old, has a rated capacity of 75,000 kilowatts.

Adrian Building Leveled By Fire

ADRIAN, Mich. (AP)-Adrian fire officials are investigating the cause of a fire that leveled a building at a local lumber yard Monday night.

There were no injuries and no dollar estimate was placed on the loss.

Young Clean-Up Crew

Thirty children from Stevensville elementary school and St. Paul's Lutheran school filled two street trucks with litter they picked up in the village Saturday. The clean-up project was initiated by Kevin Green, a village street department employe, in cooperation with the two schools. The youngsters were given lunch at the Stevensville elementary school after completing the project, known as Clean Sweep Stevensville, according to village officials.

Grass Fires Flare In BH, St. Joe

St. Joseph firemen Monday extinguished two grass fires. The first at 5:55 p. m. burned over 3,000 square feet at the John Paul Taylor residence, 2618 Lakeview avenue. The second at 7:39 p. m. burned 1,200 square feet along the C&O Railway tracks north of Whirlpool's St. Joseph Division plant four.

Benton Harbor firemen extinguished a grease fire Monday which caused minor damage to the apartment of Joanne McClinton, 254 South McCord street. Firemen said an extension cord shorted out and set a grease-filled metal can on fire. The fire then spread to kitchen cabinets.

Pair's Son Honored

Steven S. Pearson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest S. Pearson, 250 Orchard lane, Benton township, recently won first prize in an art contest held at a Northridge, Calif., department store. Pearson, who took the prize for his exhibit of black and white photography, is a second year student in the School of Design at California Institute of the Arts in Valencia. He has also been operating his own stereo business for the past three years.

Fire Scorches Quarter-Acre

Benton township firemen said children were blamed for a fire Monday afternoon that burned about one-quarter acre of grass in the 1300 block of Empire avenue. Firemen said a witness reported seeing children in the field about the time of the blaze. The field is owned by Producers Creamery, 1330 Empire.

Watervliet Couple Pleads Guilty To Welfare Fraud

A woman and her husband pleaded guilty Monday in Berrien District court to charges of welfare fraud under $500, misdemeanor offenses. Placed on preasentence investigation were Benjamin and Myrtle Sayre, 33 and 37, of M-140, Watervliet. Felony charges of fraud over $500 were dismissed upon their guilty pleas. Following arraignment they were freed on $1,000 personal recognizance bonds. According to the prosecutor's welfare fraud unit, the couple received $1,098 in overpaid ADC funds because they failed to report additional income. Both husband and wife reportedly were employed.

ADC Arrears Totaling $7,070 Land 3 Fathers In Berrien Court

Two men received jail sentences and a third was placed on probation yesterday in Berrien circuit court for arrears totaling $7,070 for six children on ADC.

George Westfield, Berrien friend of the court, reported:

Daryl L. Berry, of 1911 Union street, Benton township, was sentenced to 60 days in jail by Judge Ronald Lange for $1,285 arrears for one child on ADC. Lange did not find Berry in contempt of court, but ordered that he sign a wage assignment of $27 weekly child support, and said the weekly arrearage payment will be determined later.

Louis Erwin, of Buchanan, got 30 days in jail for $4,170 arrears for four children on ADC. Lange found Erwin in contempt and placed him on six months probation, and told him he could be released from jail upon payment of $2,000 towards the arrearage.

James D. Roach, of Niles avenue, Berrien Springs, was found in contempt and placed on six months probation by Lange for $1,618 arrears for one child on ADC. He was also ordered to execute a wage assignment of $18 weekly child support and $7 weekly on the arrears.

Diseased Hatchery Fish Destroyed

Fish Plant Cutbacks Set

This spring's plants of coho salmon and steelhead in southwestern Michigan will probably be reduced because of the outbreak of whirling disease at the Sturgeon River Rearing Station near Gaylord.

More than two million fish at the state hatchery must be destroyed because of the disease, and this means the Department of Natural Resources won't be able to fill all of its previously announced release quotas.

Fish biologists in Lansing are currently studying the situation. They plan to announce the necessary cutbacks this week.

"You have better chinook water than coho and there might be some reductions down there," says DNR biologist Lud Frankenberger.

Frankenberger also says entire plants at some of the previously announced sites will be eliminated. There's also a good possibility that some of the steelhead plants slated for the Great Lakes will be substituted for the destroyed rainbows which had been scheduled for inland stocking.

Dr. Howard Tanner, director of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, also warns the disease will spread to trout and salmon across Michigan eventually. But the outbreak poses no threat to humans.

Discovery of the disease at the Sturgeon River earlier this month led to the decision to destroy 1.5 million young coho salmon and 600,000 rainbow trout fry, Tanner said.

Whirling disease strikes the nervous system of fish and causes them to lose equilibrium and spin helplessly.

He called the outbreak a major problem that will spread "throughout all or most of Michigan's waters in the future."

But Tanner contended the disease has been controlled elsewhere and predicted it will be in Michigan.

"It's not going to knock Michigan out of the fish business," he insisted, although it will mean some changes in DNR hatchery operations.

Business As Usual At Day, Benzie

"It'll be business as usual when D.H. Day and Benzie State Parks in Leelanau and Benzie counties are incorporated into the Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore," says J.A. Martinek, superintendent with the National Park Service.

Transfer of the property from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources to the National Park Service is scheduled for today, following approval of the action by the National Resources Commission at its March meeting in Lansing.

Authority to convey the state-owned land to the U.S. Government was approved by the Michigan Legislature in Act 359, Public Acts of 1974.

The D.H. Day and Benzie State Parks and state forest lands are included in a transfer of over 8,400 acres of property in the northwest Lower Peninsula area.

Permanent staff of the DNR previously stationed at the two parks will be transferred to other parks in the state's system.

Camping facilities in the Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore will be basically rustic and available on a first come-first serve basis. Camping fees are $2 per night or $1 per night for senior citizens with a Golden Eagle passport.

Fishing Report

Winter returned to southwestern Michigan over the weekend and generally reduced the success and enthusiasm amoung fishermen.

The fish are fickle, but when conditions are right, good catches of coho salmon can now be made in Lake Michigan off New Buffalo and St. Joseph.

Coho are generally running from two to three pounds, and most catches by trollers are made within three-quarters of a mile of the piers.

St. Joe pier fishermen have also picked up some steelhead, brown trout and coho.

Among the best lures have have been black and silver and orange and silver rapalas.

Steelhead fishermen continue to have the best success on the St. Joseph River below the Berrien Springs dam, but the Black River at South Haven is also drawing a lot of angler attention.

Spawn sacks and tadpollies and flatfish lures have been taking most of the steelhead.

Suckers are also running in most of the area's major rivers.

New Great Canada Goose 'Plant' Made

Efforts are continuing to establish a permanent breeding population of greater Canada geese in southwestern Michigan.

The Department of Natural Resources released 120 of the greater Canadas — which are almost twice as large as a regular Canada — last week at three area sites.

Eighty of the wing-clipped birds were put in the Barry (county) State Game Area while 24 were released at the Crane Pond State Game Area in Cass county and another 16 were put on Leidy Lake in St. Joseph county.

This is the third year of the greater Canada goose program, and although success has been limited, progress has been made. There were more than 60 broods of geese raised in the DNR's southwestern Michigan district last year.

The area's new greater Canadas were trapped at the Kensington Recreation Area in the central part of the state, which has a surplus of the honkers.

The regular Canada, which looks like the greater one, except for size, generally breeds in Canada. But they do stop by the thousands to rest in the Allegan State Game Area refuge while making spring and fall migrations. Greaters also migrate, but nothing like their smaller cousins.

Because they are wing-clipped, the area geese won't be able to fly again until August. It is assumed that some of the geese will then "home" back to Kensington, but it is also hoped that birds raised in southwestern Michigan will make the area their permanent home.

homing instinct was seen when some of the surplus Kensington geese were shipped to Tennessee in an effort to establish a breeding population. At least one of the banded birds flew back to its old home.

There has been nesting success in Cass county, but the best chance of establishing a permanent greater Canada population is probably at the Barry State Game Area.

Barry has a series of small impoundments which were built about 15 years ago through a series of dikes and ditches. Barry's geese are also protected by a law which has closed the game area to hunting.

Another encouragement for geese to breed in the arer comes through a series of nesting islands which have been built by the DNR and the Kalamazoo chapter of the Michigan Duck Hunters Association.

Nesting islands are about 10 feet square and comprised of large criss-crossed timbers, onto which are piled brush and hay. The structure is put on ice over shallow water in the winter, and it settles to the bottom when the ice thaws. Ducks also use the islands.

Persons wishing to establish islands at their favorite waterfowl breeding spot may obtain plans for the structure by writing: Department of Natural Resources, Wildlife Division, P.O. Box 355, Plainwell, Mich. 49080.

Commercial chub fishing — except for limited research catches — could end on Lake Michigan by May.

Michigan, Indiana and Illinois are ready to go on the ban, and Wisconsin should soon add its approval to the joint move designed to rebuild Lake Michigan chub populations.

Roughly 30 Michigan commercial fishermen are expected to be put out of the chub business, including several from St. Joseph, South Haven and Saugatuck.

As plans now stand, there will be one "research" chub fisherman from southwestern Michigan. A screening process has cut the number of eligible fishermen from St. Joseph, South Haven and Saugatuck to seven (the Department of Natural Resources hasn't release the names), and a drawing including the seven will determine the winner of the research permit.

Lake Michigan's share of the chub catch will be 160,000 pounds per year, with the total divided up about equally among five fishermen.

Hopefully, there will be financial compensation for those put out of the chub business. The governor's budget request includes $1.5 million item for compensation.

It will be up to the legislature to approve the compensation and how it would be dispensed, but the DNR is thinking along the lines of half the value of the catch for the past two years (essentially one year's income).

The chub closure doesn't mean that all these people will be put out of the commercial fishing business. Some have already indicated they will use their compensation money to convert to new gear for fishing other species, such as suckers, smelt, whitefish and perch.

There is a guaranteed market for perch, but the commercial take of perch is presently closed, so any reopening of that fishery would be on a limited permit and quota basis, probably about 100,000 pounds for Michigan waters.

DNR biologists feel allowing a limited commercial perch catch with gear other than gill nets would serve several purposes. It would help determine which types of selective gear are feasible for harvesting perch along with helping monitor the condition of the perch population. Furthermore, it would help keep commercial fishermen in business and maybe even lead to a bigger commercial harvest in the future, depending on how big of a combined commercial and sport harvest perch prove to endure without damage to their numbers.

Meanwhile, the market for suckers is unproven but promising....market testing is now underway. John Scott, chief of the DNR's Lake Michigan section, says "the potential is there" and "it could develop rather rapidly in a year or two."

The chub closure is another in a long line of restrictions which have drastically reduced and controlled commercial fishing, but if selective gear works out and markets are found for previously unharvested species, commercial fishing could soon be on the upturn.

Lakes And Streams Conference April 12

A conference for persons interested in lakes and streams will be held April 12 at Kalamazoo Community College under sponsorship of the Michigan Lakes & Streams Associations.

The keynote speech — "What Is Michigan Lakes & Streams Associations?" — will be made by Henry Westerville, former president of ML&SA and managing editor of the Michigan Riparian magazine.

There will also be discussions on septic systems and pollution, water use problems, township authority in solving lake and stream problems and problems and enforcement of existing regulations at public access sites, plus a talk entitled — land use planning, who needs it?

People wishing more information on the conference — which has a $5 fee — should contact Mrs. Ray C. Harbour, 9620 E. Shore Dr., Kalamazoo, Mich. 49002.

State's Snowmobile Deaths Set Record

According to the Department of Natural Resources' Law Enforcement Division, a record number of snowmobile fatalities occurred in Michigan during the current season.

"Major cause of death this year was when snowmobilers fell through unsafe ice," Opolka says. "Nine people lost their lives in this manner. In fact, two bodies remain unrecovered in Lake Michigan's Green Bay south of Escanaba."

Opolka cautions northern Michigan snowmobile operators that riding on thawing ice this time of year is especially hazardous. "If you are going to ride on ice, use common sense and do not venture out on frozen lakes and streams without knowing ice conditions," he warns.

"The shoreline areas of lakes often have thinner ice than the center, especially in later winter and early spring. If you encounter open water, release the throttle, brake gently and turn away," Opolka recommends.

"If there isn't sufficient time or distance, turn as sharply as possible and roll off the machine," he concludes.

Snowmobile operators should also be aware that several types of snowmobile suits are available which are designed with inflatable buoyant elements. Such suits provide an additional measure of safety when operating on ice.

Illinois Making Fishing Changes

Illinois is moving to the forefront in the management of its Lake Michigan fishery.

Current proposals call for the reduction of commercial fishing to full three time fishermen and closing the sport lake trout fishery for one year.

A public hearing on the proposals will be held this month.

Safety Class Required For New Boaters

Youths between 12 and 16 years of age are reminded by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources that to operate a motorboat this summer without an adult aboard, they must pass a boating safety course.

Boating Safety Certificates are awarded following at least five hours of classroom instruction on the operation of motorboats on Michigan's waters. Classes are held throughout the state.

Among topics covered in the course are maintenance, rules of the road, buoys and lights, weather, docking and mooring, equipment and "marlinspike seamanship" or knots and lines.

Since the courses began in 1968, over 225 thousand Michigan youngsters have successful taken the instruction.

For information on where the boating safety training is offered in Michigan's communities, contact the local sheriff's office, conservation officer, U.S. Power Squadron or Coast Guard Auxiliary.

Once Endangered Sea Otter Now Problem In California

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — The bewhiskered sea otter, once threatened with extinction because of its beautiful fur, is threatened again, this time for its expertise at competing with man for clams, crabs and abalone.

Fisherman claim the voracious otter, now well up in numbers, is so good at hunting that he has almost wiped out the north central coast pismo clam and is threatening the very survival of the California crab industry.

Fishermen commonly regard otters as natural enemies and often shoot at them. Since 1911, federal law has provided for a $20,000 fine for killing otters, but there has been only one conviction.

Otters are a common sight around Monterey and Morro bays, where they can be seen floating on their backs holding a clam on their chests with one claw, while bashing away at it with a rock in the other.

Sea otters are found only along the Asiatic and North American Pacific coasts. Adults can grow to more than 5-feet long, including the tail, and weigh more than 30 pounds.

The California Department of Fish and Game decided last week to seek federal permission to trap and remove all otters found outside the 132-mile stretch of the coast between Morro and Monterey bays. The department wants to take the captured otters to Navy-owned San Nicholas in the Channel Islands.

The department claims the otter is surviving so successfully it is moving north at the rate of a mile a month. At that speed, they could reach San Francisco Bay, 85 miles north of Monterey, before long.

For two centuries, trappers pursued the otters. A pelt once brought as much as $1,700. By the early 1900s, the otter was believed to be extinct, but a small colony was found on the Big Sur Coast in the 1920s. Today, the department estimates there are 1,700 on this coast.

Daniel Miller, a marine biologist for the department, wants to prevent the migration of the otter into San Francisco Bay, fearing that the survival of the state's crab industry is at stake.

He said it will take up to 12 years for the clam to recover in Monterey Bay, if the otters are removed soon.

A class at the University of California at Santa Cruz leaped into the rhubarb between fishermen and conservationists recently with a study which concludes that the fish and game departrment is unjustly blaming otters for the disappearance of abalones and clams.

The study says humans are at least partly to blame, harvesting huge amounts of shellfish, including some that are immature. There are no limits for professional abalone hunters for a single day's take.

Big Bend Rugged National Park

Scenic Texas Terrain Great For Backpacking

BIG BEND NATIONAL PARK, Tex. (AP) — Big Bend is one of the most out-of-the-way and least visited parks in the U.S. system, but offers backpacking enthusiasts some of the most rugged and scenic hiking conditions in the country.

Big Bend, the nation's third largest national park, features some 250 miles of maintained and primitive trails which snake across four distinct environments: A low and high desert, a mountain range and a lush, wild river bottom.

Contrasting to the stark beauty of the low desert, the high desert abounds with countless varieties of wildflowers and cactus, including the rare giant dagger yucca.

Sitting in the middle of the park like a string of fortresses is the Chisos mountain range with peaks in excess of 7,000 feet and stands of drooping juniper, pinon pine, Douglas fir and ponderosa pine.

But perhaps Big Bend's most magnificant attraction is its 107-mile boundary with Mexico where the Rio Grande has sliced through the limestone to form canyon walls up to 1,500 feet high.

A hiking guide to the park published by the Big Bend Natural History Association offers backpackers a choice of 32 established and primitive routes, ranging from a quarter-mile walk to a rugged, six-day trek across the park.

But Big Bend, which covers 708,221 acres, also provides the experienced hiker with a chance to test his wilderness skills by bushwacking across country that has yet to be fully explored.

Off the beaten paths, the backpacker may encounter such wildlife as coyote, javelina or mule deer and sometimes at night can hear the throaty roar of a mountain lion.

For all it's beauty, however, Big Bend is not without one major shortcoming: Its weather.

From May through September, temperatures in the desert frequently exceed 100 degrees, restricting most hikers to the mountains, where temperatures rarely reach above the mid-80s.

Because of its essentially desert terrain, water is scarce.

Hikers must carry water on most of the established trials. Water from the river cannot be consumed safely without boiling.

However, hikers able to use a compass and topographic map can plan treks with mid-day and evening halts at springs which bubble out of the ground in a number of small canyons and arroyos.

Tent protection is rarely needed, but a good pair of heavy boots is a must because of sharp rocks and desert plants.

Rattlesnakes are abundant in the park, but rarely appear in winter. They are common in summer, but usually are out only at night.

Big Bend draws about 300,000 visitors a year. It is located about 400 miles Southwest of San Antonio, Tex. off U.S. Highway 90.

Wooden Bows Out Champ

SAN DIEGO (AP) — And the beat goes on for UCLA, if not for John Wooden. The Maestro and his changing cast of characters — that remarkable duo of wisdom and talent — have left an imprint on their sport that will forever be felt.

College basketball's greatest combination, its leader directing his pupils in a textbook display for the last time, showed it had not grown rusty with age, or incapable without a superstar. The team and the man did it for the 10th time in 12 years.

"Everyone would like to go out with a victory," said the professorial Wooden who gave his last lesson Monday night as his beloved Bruins gave their coach a tremendous last hurrah — a 92-85 victory over physical Kentucky in the NCAA's title game.

"The fact that that the victory is for the national championship ...well, that certainty doesn't lessen the pleasure," the 64-year-old Wooden said as he bade farewell to a 40-year coaching career, a love affair with excellence which may never be equalled.

If this UCLA team — one of Wooden's favorites — didn't have a Jabbar or a Walton, it did have something else. The Bruins had Wooden's directions, his sometimes fiery presence, and with it they played nerveless basketball, exercising an old UCLA tactic called game control.

Wooden switched defenses to cool Kentucky's hot Kevin Grevey. He used his only substitute — 7-foot-1 Ralph Drollinger — to offset Kentucky's powerful bulk. He designed, in a very rare Monday morning practice, a play to free Pete Trgovich, and it was responsible for the Bruins taking control late in the first half after Kentucky had led most of the first 15 minutes.

THE WORLD OF Sports

And then he and the Bruins controlled the game's tempo, shutting off Kentucky every time the Wildcats rallied.

"We hoped to wear 'em down with a fast tempo," said Wooden. "We felt that we had to run on them and keep running. And it worked out exactly as we planned."

Wooden leaped up more than once to argue with officials, particularly when forward Dave Meyers was tagged with a technical, which gave Kentucky's Grevey, who had a game-high 34 points, a one-and-one free throw and the Wildcats would still have the ball.

UCLA led 78-75. Kentucky had just completed a charge that had all but wiped out a 10-point lead which was built by Rich Washington and Meyers, who led UCLA with 28 and 24 points, respectively.

Kentucky blew it. Grevey missed both free throws and the Wildcats threw the ball away when they worked for a shot. They were never closer than three points after that.

"Everyone played very tough," said the 6-foot-8 Meyers, who combined with Washington and Drollinger to blunt Kentucky's muscle and hold the Wildcats' three huge freshmen centers to eight points.

Catching Meyers' competitive fire were Washington — this tournament's Most Valuable Player — and Drollinger, the three of them combining for 62 points and 30 rebounds.

"When Drollinger came in, it created mismatches for us," Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall said. "Wooden's power team (Drollinger, Meyers and Washington) was outstanding."

When Drollinger went into the game, Kentucky, powered by Grevey, was leading. He hit his 18th point of the first half with eight minutes remaining, giving the Wildcats a 31-27 lead.

But with the lineup change, the 6-5 Grevey had to contend with the 6-9 Washington rather than 6-6 Marques Johnson. And the Kentucky ace did not score for the next 18 minutes. By that time, Drollinger was leaving and UCLA was ahead 68-56.

The big men were not alone for the Bruins. Guard Andre McCarter moved quickly with looping passes when UCLA needed speed; he played with caution when Wooden wanted the tempo changed. He had 14 assists.

And there was Trgovich, whose 16 points were primarily the result of a trap play Wooden had worked out in his secret Monday morning practice. It produced five field goals in a five-minute stretch of the first half when the Bruins were turning the game around.

And at the end, there was Johnson, getting critical rebounds, scoring two key baskets.

"It seems impossible that anyone can beat that well-coached Kentucky team with only six players," said Wooden. "But I guess we were a little quicker and had a little more finesse."

And they had Wooden.

But when he did, it made all the difference.

The 6-foot-5, 205-pounder from Chicago, Ind., scored 12 of his 21 points in overtime and had two key steals to boost Louisville over the Orangemen 96-88.

After a stirring comeback by underdog Syracuse tied the game 78-78 at the end of regulation play, Bridgeman, who made only three of six shots in the first half, went to work.

He picked off a rebound after Jim Lee missed a 16-foot shot and fed Allen Murphy for a nine-footer that put Louisville ahead. He then ran off six straight points for a 90-86 lead.

And when Syracuse pulled to within two points, Bridgeman intercepted a Lee pass, hit on two free throws, and made another steal to choke off the last of the Syracuse push.

"I think they'll both be great pros because they can both play guard or forward," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum of Bridgeman and Murphy. "They seldom have a bad game because they maintain the same mental approach."

Murphy wound up with 29 points.

Bill Buxton, a 6-8 center, led Louisville with 24 points, but he was overmatched in the second half by Syracuse's Rudy Hackett, a second-team All-American who scored 28 points.

Hackett, speedster Jim "Bug" Williams and Lee led the aborted comeback. Lee had 27 points over-all while the 5-10 Williams contributed crucial steals.

Brown Best Texas Pitcher

Making Most Of Third Shot At Big Time

From Associated Press

Baseball has thrown Jackie Brown a few curves over the years ... and vice versa.

Things are beginning to change ... on both sides.

After spending most of his adult life in the minor leagues before finally getting a shot with the Washington Senators in 1970, the 31-year-old righthander is making the most of his third shot at the big time.

He pitched five scoreless innings Monday in the Texas Rangers' 5-1 exhibition triumph over the Atlanta Braves, allowing only four hits. In fact, Manager Billy Martin calls Brown his best pitcher this spring and that includes 25-game winner Fergie Jenkins and 19-gamer Jim Bibby.

Elsewhere, the day was replete with shutouts — Kansas City Royals 3, Baltimore Orioles 0; Pittsburgh Pirates 4, New York Mets 0; Cincinnati Reds 4, Philadelphia Phillies 0; Minnesota Twins 3, New York Yankees 0; Cleveland Indians 2, Chicago Cubs 0.

Other scores: St. Louis Cardinals 6, Boston Red Sox 3; Detroit Tigers 5, Chicago White Sox 3; Milwaukee Brewers 13, Oakland A's 11; Montreal Expos 7, Houston Astros 1; San Diego Padres 10, California Angels 9.

After Brown got into 24 games with the Senators in 1970, he divided 1971 again between Denver and Washington but spent all of 1972 in Denver. After pitching in 19 games for Spokane, Wash., in 1973, the Rangers summoned him and he's been a big leaguer ever since.

In 1974, his first full season, the former peanut farmer and hog raiser from Wewoka, Okla., worked his way into the starting rotation after seven relief jobs and posted a 13-12 mark.

Another name to remember is 20-year-old Dennis Eckersley of the Cleveland Indians. The Texas League's strikeout king of 1974 held the Chicago Cubs hitless in three innings, fanning three, and thoroughly impressed Manager Frank Robinson.

Nelson Briles, bidding for the fourth starting spot in Kansas City's rotation, hurled six innings of three-hit shutout ball to help the Royals blank Baltimore.

Bruce Kison, Dave Giusti and Ramon Hernandez combined for a five-hitter as the Pirates blanked the Mets and Jack Billingham pitched a six-hitter as Cincinnati downed Philadelphia in a game shortened to six innings by rain. Minnesota's Joe Decker and Bill Butler blanked the Yankees on four hits.

Rookie John Denny allowed only two hits in seven innings and Ted Simmons and Lou Brock homered as St. Louis beat Boston.

Two doubles and a single by Terry Humphrey paced Detroit over the White Sox, Chicago's sixth loss in a row. Rookie Sixto Lezcano hit a grand slam home run in Milwaukee's seven-run second inning against Oakland and made a game-saving ninth-inning catch in center field.

Doubles by Larry Lintz and Pete Mackanin highlighted a five-run Montreal first inning against Houston. Montreal starter Dennis Blair allowed six hits and one run through 7 2-3 innings.

Dave Roberts climaxed a two-run eighth-inning rally with a sacrifice fly that carried San Diego past California.

Tigers Shade Sox, Finally Show Signs Of Solidifying

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Joe Coleman and Terry Humphrey sparkled Monday for the Detroit Tigers, who appear to be solidifying as opening day looms just a week away.

Coleman held the Chicago White Sox to six hits in seven innings and Humphrey stroked three hits and drove in two runs as the Tigers bounced the Chisox 5-3 and collected their fourth straight victory.

"Sure, I'd like to pitch opening day," said Coleman, whose performance may have made him the odds-on favorite to open the season against Baltimore on April 8, since Mickey Lolich is having a dismal spring.

"But whenever I pitch for the first time will be opening day for me," said Coleman, now with an earned-run average of 5.19. "I'm just happy I'm throwing the ball as well as I am," he said. "I'm throwing my fastball as well as I ever have.

"That was my problem last year ... Now I'm throwing it better than ever."

Manager Ralph Houk said Coleman and reliever Tom Walker, who allowed just one hit in two innings of relief, have looked better than any other Tiger pitchers this spring.

Two of Humphrey's hits were doubles as he raised his spring average to .375. Gene Michael and Art James each got a pair of safeties in the Tigers' 11-hit attack.

Willie Horton, who was the club's designated hitter, collected one hit and an RBI, apparently is beginning to adjust to the position.

"It does give you an opportunity to think about the game and figure out different things," Horton said. But he also said the hitting job leaves "too much time to think."

"I gotta buy myself some books or something," he laughed.

Horton, still recovering from knee surgery, has not played in his old position in leftfield since the spring season began.

60 Cents Brings $1.4 Million Prize

ROME (AP) — An unidentified soccer pool player parlayed a 60-cent bet into a $1.4 million fortune Sunday.

Pool officials announced that a ticket sold in Foscara, on the Adriatic, predicted the correct results of all 13 surprise-filled soccer games.

The amount was the biggest soccer pool haul ever in Italy, about double the previous record.

Jets Still Sneak Past Racers

From Associated Press

Bobby Hull didn't score a goal Monday night. In fact, he managed only one shot on goal in Winnipeg's World Hockey Association game against the Indianapolis Racers.

But while Nick Harbaruk was shadowing the veteran left wing, and all the other Racers were watching him out of the corners of their eyes, veteran Howie Young sneaked through for two goals and led the Jets to a 4-1 victory over the Racers.

A capacity crowd of 10,519 appeared at the Winnipeg Arena in anticipation that a Hull shot would become his 76th goal of the season — tying Phil Esposito's all-time pro hockey record set in 1970-71.

He had 75 goals in 73 games before the contest, and it seemed Hull would have no trouble in scoring. After all, the Racers had the worst defensive record in the league: 315 goals against.

But the Racers sent out Harbaruk, and Hull wasn't so sure he liked the idea.

"It's kind of a slap in the face of the other team's ability to send out a checking line against us," said hockey's highest scoring left wing. "Sometimes the checking line is also their best scoring line, too. So where does that put them? I don't understand why teams do that."

Hull's linemate, rookie Anders Hedberg, scored his 49th goal. Veli-Ketola had the other Winnipeg goal while Jim Wiste gave the Racers a temporary 11 tie with a shorthanded goal in the first period.

Hull tied the record of 50 goals in 50 games set by Maurice "The Rocket" Richard of the Montreal Canadiens in 1944-45.

"Rocket's record was an outstanding accomplishment. Esposito's 76 was marvelous but that doesn't detract from whatever total I make this year."

Gene Peacosh and Norm Ferguson scored goals within seven seconds of the first period to help San Diego end Edmonton's playoff hopes. Peacosh scored his 42nd of the campaign at 8:09 of the session on a pass from Ferguson, then set up Ferguson's 33rd at 8:16.

Rick Sentes, Kevin Devine and Joe Hardy also scored for the Mariners, who moved into second place in the West Division. Blair MacDonald and Murray Kennett tallied for Edmonton.

GOOD NEWS AT GROCERY STORE

Nation's Food Bill Is Declining

The decreases did not follow any particular pattern and they were offset, in part, by increases in the price of chopped chuck and eggs. But the declines do provide an indication that grocery prices may be leveling off and that this year's rate of increase will be below the cost spirals of 1973 and 1974.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and non-food items, checked the price on March 1, 1973, at a supermarket in each of 13 cities and has rechecked at the start of each succeeding month.

During March, the marketbasket bill declined in 11 cities, down an average of 3.2 per cent, and increased in two cities, up an average of six-tenths of one per cent. Over-all, there was an average drop of 2.7 per cent.

The situation was an improvement over February, when the bill dropped in nine cities and rose in four, but the price of groceries was still much higher than last year. In the 12-months ended March 31, the marketbasket bill went up an average of 14.2 per cent. Over the 25-month period during which the AP has been checking prices, the bill went up 29.8 per cent.

Farmers have been getting less money for their products, but the decrease has not been fully reflected at the supermarket, mainly because the cost of the food itself is only a small factor in the over-all price paid by the consumer. Higher costs for transportation, labor, fuel and other items have taken up much of the decrease.

In addition, the food processors and retailers are trying to make up for profit lost during the 1973 price freeze.

The government said Monday that farm prices dropped 2 per cent from Feb. 15 to March 15. It was the fifth straight monthly decline and compared with a 4 per cent drop from Jan. 15 to Feb. 15.

Food prices rose 14.9 per cent during 1974, according to the government. Department of Agriculture economists have said they expect food prices to go up about 3 per cent in each of the first two quarters of 1975. They are reluctant to predict what will happen after that, noting that a lot depends on weather conditions in the farm belt.

A recent department report showed the annual retail cost of a marketbasket of farm-produced foods went up four-tenths of one per cent in February. The increase was the smallest in four months, although it pushed the cost of food to a record high.

The decreases in the AP survey were led by sugar which dropped in price in every city checked and was down an average of 15 per cent during the month. In four cities — Chicago, Dallas, Detroit and Los Angeles — the price of a five-pound sack of granulated sugar was below $2 for the first time since last fall. Sugar prices remain two and three times what they were in March 1973, however.

Beef prices, which have been declining recently because of abundant supplies, increased again, partly because of Easter sales that featured other meat items at the expense of things like hamburger.

The price of a pound of chopped chuck went up in seven cities during March, with increases ranging from 9 per cent in Miami to 40 per cent in Providence, R.I.

Milliken Signs Four Bills Into Law

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has signed a measure to certify emergency medical technicians until state exams are developed.

The others postpone the effective date of the 1974 Campaign Finance Act from April 1 to July 1, amend the residential builders act to allow a 30-day grace period for license renewal and amend the 1974 minimum wage act to exclude administrative, executive and professional employees in hotels, motels and restaurants from its overtime requirements.

The medical technicians law allows the state Public Health Department to issue provisional certificates until exams and rules are developed and implemented.

Last year's law temporarily licensed technicians who already completed training. Without the amendment, however, there was no way to temporarily license those who completed training between that time and implementation of the health department rules and exam.

Gulf Is Newest Target Of FEA Pricing Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Administration says it has investigated almost 90,000 cases in its year-old probe of petroleum overcharging, involving companies from the oil giants to the smallest fuel retailers.

With only a fraction of the cases completed, the FEA has made companies pay back more than $611 million, and is pursuing more possible overcharges estimated to total anywhere from $50 million to $250 million.

The FEA said Monday it was investigating $101 million in suspected overcharges by Gulf Oil Corp.

A Gulf spokesman said FEA officials and officers of Gulf were discussing the agency's suspicions. But Gulf denied an FEA statement that the company has informally agreed to cancel some $40 million in potential future price hikes, leaving only $61 million still in dispute. A Gulf spokesman said Gulf made no such agreement, while FEA insisted an agreement was made.

Meanwhile, in answer to questions from The Associated Press, the FEA began filling in further details of its far-flung investigations, adding to information released last weekend.

—The FEA said 89,464 petroleum wholesale and retail firms have been investigated and the agency has issued 1,197 "remedial orders," requiring the correction of price overcharges. Refunds, possibly including some without remedial orders, have totalled $74,684,273, the FEA said.

—Some 30 major oil refiners are under continuous FEA auditing. As previously reported, FEA has investigated 107 cases of propane pricing, 197 crude oil cases and 190 suppliers of fuel to electric utilities.

—Penalties totalling $930,052 have been collected from 130 firms as a result of price or allocation violations. Nearly half came from previously reported penalties of $300,000 against Union Oil and $150,000 against Petrofina for failing to send gasoline to shortgage areas during the Arab oil embargo a year ago.

The FEA said two other companies were penalized in remedial orders correcting propane overcharges: Mid Continent L. P. Service, which repaid $86,807 plus a $10,000 penalty; and Ferrelgas, Inc., which repaid $21,809 plus a $12,500 penalty. The FEA did not identify the service areas of these companies.

The penalties also included $46,658 collected from unidentified crude oil suppliers who "acknowledged overcharge" and agreed voluntarily to make price refunds totalling $793,601, FEA said.

The audits have already forced refiners to cancel some $410.7 million in so-called "banked costs" — illegitimate claims of costs which could otherwise be passed along to consumers in the form of future price increases.

Of these disallowed "banked costs," some $290 million stemmed from a now-barred practice called "double-dipping" in which some companies took advantage of a loophole in federal regulations to charge twice for the same oil.

Israel Press Suggests Troops Be Pulled Back

By Associated Press

A leading Israeli newspaper has suggested that Israel should pull back its forces in the Sinai Desert another three miles in response to Egypt's decision to reopen the Suez Canal.

There was no reaction from Israeli political leaders or officials. But Israeli ships will be barred from the waterway because Egypt and Israel are still technically at war.

The Israeli army's lines are now 12 miles east of the canal as a result of the disengagement agreement negotiated by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in January 1974. The suggestion for an additional small pullback was made Monday by the newspaper Haaretz.

It said President Anwar Sadat's announcement that he would reopen the canal June 5 lessens the chance of war, and Israel should respond with "a gesture of its own." The paper added that this "would not cost much and would not endanger Israel's security."

Diplomatic sources said Eilts was sounding out the Egyptian government's latest position for use in the reassessment of U.S. Middle East policy ordered by President Ford.

Ford ordered the reassessment after the collapse of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's attempt to negotiate another Israeli troop withdrawal in Sinai.

Eilts is expected to travel to Washington soon to take part in the policy review.

Fahmy later met Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Polyakov to discuss the Middle East situation, Egypt's official Middle East News Agency reported. It gave no details

Bucks, Knicks Face Fight To Make Playoffs Again

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

When the National Basketball Association season began 5½ months ago, there seemed little doubt that three of the playoff berths would be gobbled up by the Los Angeles Lakers, Milwaukee Bucks and New York Knicks.

Now there's doubt whether any of them will be around when 10 NBA teams begin slicing up the post-season pie.

The Lakers are dead, mainly last in the Pacific Division with a record that surpasses only that of the New Orleans Jazz.

The Bucks, last year's finalists against defending champion Boston, are all but dead. They've got to win all four of their remaining games and Detroit must lose all three for Milwaukee to make the playoffs as the Western Conference's wildcard team. In the unlikely event that the Bucks sweep and the Pistons collapse, they'd finish tied with 39-43 records and the Bucks would qualify by having won the season series against Detroit.

But the Pistons can make the whole question academic by beating the Bucks tonight in Milwaukee — or Saturday in Detroit.

The Knicks have at least a reasonable chance for a playoff berth. They're scrambling with the Houston Rockets and Cleveland Cavaliers for the two remaining Eastern Conference berths.

Houston and Cleveland are fighting for second place — an automatic playoff spot — in the Central Division. Whichever team loses that scuffle (Houston has a one-game lead over the Cavaliers with two games apiece to go) will then be matched, record-wise, against the Knicks to see who gets the East's wild card. Right now, the Knicks are in a virtual tie with the Cavaliers, but they have four games to go, one of them Thursday night in Cleveland.

If the Cavaliers and Rockets tie for second — and they've split their eight games — it goes to the team with the best record against teams in the division or, failing that, the conference. And if the Knicks finish in a tie with either Houston or Cleveland for the conference wild card, they get the berth by virtue of having won the season series against both.

The remaining seven playoff berths have already been clinched — by the Golden State Warriors, Seattle SuperSonics, Chicago Bulls and Kansas City-Omaha Kings in the West and the Boston Celtics, Buffalo Braves and Washington Bullets in the East. Only a few positions in the final standings — which comes down to a healthy chunk of dough and a homecourt playoff advantage — are still to be decided.

The Celtics lead the Bullets by one game in the duel for the best record in the league and in the East. It could be decided when the Bullets play at Boston Friday night.

The Warriors and Bulls are fighting for the top spot in the West. Golden State leads by two games and can lock out Chicago by winning both its remaining games.

Chicago is also in another race, with the Kings for first in the Midwest Division. The Bulls hold a 1½-game edge there.

Gilmore Star For Colonels

Tired Kentucky Earns Deadlock For First

From Associated Press

"We've won seven games in nine days, so you have to feel happy about that. But the fatigue factor is getting to be incredible," said Coach Hubie Brown after Artis Gilmore and the Colonels demolished San Antonio 103-88 Monday night to move into a first-place tie in the East Division of the American Basketball Association with the idle New York Nets.

"Dan Issel has a foot infection. He was only able to give us about 15 minutes tonight. We're down to seven healthy guys," Brown said.

Without Issel's outside shooting, the Colonels had to rely even more than usual on Gilmore. And the 7-foot-2 center came through in style, pouring in 36 points and hauling down 25 rebounds.

The game was all but decided in the first period, when the Colonels blew out to a 33-18 lead. From then on, the two teams played virtually even. San Antonio, paced by James Silas' 23 points, closed within 11 points late in the third period but a quick burst by Kentucky widened the margin to 18 midway in the fourth period.

Bass, thinking ahead to the playoffs, observed: "Right now, Kentucky is playing a lot better defense. But I've got to say that three weeks ago New York played the best defense against us that I've ever seen in this league."

The only two teams that will sit out the playoffs after regular season play ends next Thursday night are Virginia, last in the East, and San Diego, at the bottom of the West.

And, with the exception of the top of the East, everything else is set, too. Fourth-place Memphis will open on the division champ's court and third-place St. Louis will go against the runner-up. Utah, the defending Western champ but fourth this season, opens the first round at Denver while second-place San Antonio hosts Indiana.

Ron Boone and John Roche combined for 60 points in the Stars' triumph over Virginia. Boone scored 36 points, 20 of them in the second half, and Roche hit 24.

Rookie Moses Malone had 14 of his 18 in the final quarter to add some more Utah punch. Red Robbins paced Virginia with 20.

NHL Playoff Setup Still To Be Decided

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers Coach Emile Francis considered the upcoming Stanley Cup playoffs and said, "Well, we'll know who's playing come Sunday ... I think."

Sunday, April 6, marks the end of the National Hockey League's regular season. By some time late that evening, the point standings will be finalized and every team that makes the playoffs will know who their opposition will be.

That doesn't include the Philadelphia Flyers or Buffalo Sabres, who have clinched the regular-season crowns in Divisions 1 and 4, respectively. They must wait until the first round is concluded before their opponent is decided.

Meanwhile, the races continue for the other division titles and playoff spots. In Division 3, the Montreal Canadiens are one point away from ruining the Los Angeles Kings' first-place hopes. The Canadiens could clinch Wednesday night when they host the Pittsburgh Penguins.

The Division 2 crown remains up in the air as the Vancouver Canucks, St. Louis Blues and Chicago Black Hawks were separated by a mere two points entering Tuesday night's action.

And there will be significant games galore. The Atlanta Flames, facing virtual elimination from a playoff berth in Division 1, visit the New York Islanders.

"We'll have to go for broke," admitted Flames goalie Dan Bouchard after Atlanta tied the Islanders 2-2 Sunday and remained five points behind with just four games remaining. A loss Tuesday would put them seven points back of the Islanders with three games to play and would hasten the start of summer vacations.

The Kings, still clinging to a wispy hope of overtaking Montreal, face the Kansas City Scouts. The Scouts were blasted for 59 shots on goal in an 8-2 loss to the New York Rangers Sunday night which lifted the Rangers into a second-place tie with the Islanders.

Three teams from each division can make the playoffs. The spots have been decided in Division 4, where Buffalo has clinched first, Boston second and Toronto third.

In Division 3, the Canadiens, Kings and Penguins are guaranteed post-season action. Likewise Division 2, although it is far from certain where St. Louis, Chicago and Vancouver will finish. The Blues play the Minnesota North Stars and the Canucks take on the California Seals Tuesday night.

So, when Sunday's action is over. The questions will be answered — temporarily. The four divisional winners take a week off as a best-of-three first-stround series is played between the eight other playoff qualifiers.

Of those eight, the team with the most points will play the team with the least, the team with the second-most will face the team with the second-least, and so on. In each case, the team with more points will have the first and — if necessary — the third game on its home ice.

If the playoffs started Tuesday, the first-round matchups would be: Los Angeles vs. Toronto; Boston vs. St. Louis; Pittsburgh vs. Chicago and the Rangers vs. the Islanders.

Pistons Can Make Playoffs Tonight

Bucks Pay Jabbar's Fine

DETROIT (AP) — A victory tonight over the Milwaukee Bucks could propel Detroit into the 1975 National Basketball Association playoffs, but the Pistons will have to handle superstar Kareem Adbul-Jabbar to do it.

Dealing with Abdul-Jabbar is common practice in a game with the Bucks, but until Milwaukee paid a league fine on Monday, there was a slim chance the Bucks would play without their 7-foot-4 center. His absence would all but hand a victory and the playoffs to Detroit.

Abdul-Jabbar was fined for criticizing an official, but declined to pay the $300 assessment. The NBA said it could suspend Abdul-Jabbar unless the levy was received by 5 p.m. today.

"I sent the check to New York today, subject to appeal," said Wayne Embry, the Bucks' vice president and general manager. "If the appeal is upheld, the check will be returned."

If the Pistons make the playoffs, it will be their second consecutive appearance. Last year, they were ousted in the first round, losing the final game of a rough seven-game series to the Chicago Bulls. The Bulls now lead the Midwest Division, with third-place Detroit 5½ games behind.

The playoff position is the "wildcard" slot, which goes to the third-place team in the Western Conference with the best record. Detroit is 39-40, while fourth-place Milwaukee, with only a slim chance for post-season play, is 35-43. Portland, third in the Pacific Division, appears out of the running at 35-44.

"Jerry Loeber sets a standard of ineptitude for referees that is unequaled," Jabbar said. "I think he is unqualified to be an official in this league. They fine you when you say things about officials, but I think he stinks."

Even if the Bucks win tonight, the Pistons could enter the playoffs with a victory either Wednesday over Chicago or Sunday over the Bucks. A Milwaukee loss after tonight, in any one of the three remaining games, also would send Detroit into post-season play.

Lolich Upset Over Poor Pitching

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — "Don't ask me about it," said a downhearted Mickey Lolich. "I have nothing to say."

The comment from the Detroit Tiger pitcher was completely out of character. But understandable.

After Sunday's game, however, Lolich was in no mood to talk to anybody.

He walked by a row of shouting, joking teammates as he left the clubhouse, didn't join in the celebration of the wild 13-12 exhibition victory over Cincinnati, and kept on going to his motorcycle without saying a word.

The 34-year-old Lolich had been scheduled to pitch seven innings in the game but was clobbered in the second. The Reds sent 12 men to bat and scored eight runs on eight hits. Two of them were homers.

The pounding raised Lolich's earned run average to a horrendous 8.65 in spring training. He has yielded 25 earned runs in 26 innings and has given up 44 hits, seven of them home runs.

Lolich obviously is confused and concerned. He admits his fastball is not what it has been in the past, and now he is having trouble popping his No. 1 pitch—the slider—in like he used to.

Manager Ralph Houk hinted Lolich no longer is the automatic choice to pitch in the Tigers' opening game, an honor he has been given the past seven years. Houk said Joe Coleman was in the running for the opener spot.

"It's between those two," he said. "But I won't make the decision until the last minute to see who's pitching best."

Of Lolich's performance, Houk commented:

Nine Dodgers On Star Ballot

NEW YORK (AP) — The National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers have tied a record by placing nine players on the ballot for the 1975 All-Star Game, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Monday.

The only previous teams to have nine players listed on the computerized punch-out ballot since fan voting began again in 1970 were the Detroit Tigers of 1971 and 1972 and the Houston Astros of 1973.

All 24 major league teams are represented on the 1975 ballot with the world champion Oakland A's and the New York Mets each placing eight nominees.

The Dodgers' All-Star nominees include two catchers, Joe Ferguson and Steve Yeager, four infielders and three outfielders.

The fans will select the starting line-ups for the July 15 game at Milwaukee from among the 128 nominees or by write-in votes. Last year's produced a record 6,545,712 ballots from all 50 states and Canada. That was a 63 per cent increase over 1973.

Balloting will begin May 24 and end July 6. The results will be announced on July 9 and 10. Ballots will be available at all major and minor league parks and in retail stores that feature an All-Star display.

Pitchers and reserves will be named by the rival managers, Alvin Dark of the A's and Walter Alston of the Dodgers.

Covert Man Gets 2 Prison Terms On Drug Charges

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — A Covert man, Clarence Hegwood, 38, was sentenced yesterday in Van Buren circuit court to two terms in state prison as a result of his earlier guilty pleas to a pair of drug charges.

Hegwood was sentenced to serve from 18 months to five years in prison on a charge of attempted delivery (sale) of heroin Jan. 22, 1974 in South Haven, and from 18 to 42 months in prison on a charge of attempted delivery of cocaine Feb. 13, 1974 in South Haven.

In handing down the sentences, Judge David Anderson Jr. said they would be served concurrently.

Hegwood had been arrested last May following a three-month investigation by state police intelligence units into alleged drug sales in the Covert-South Haven area.

In other cases, Danny Morrison, 17, Paw Paw, was sentenced to serve from 18 months to 14 years in state prison as the result of his guilty plea to a charge of uttering and publishing a forged check for check for $48 at the First State Bank, Decatur, on Dec. 3. He pleaded guilty March 3.

Phillip Alan Harris, 20, Benton Harbor, was sentenced to serve from 18 to 30 months in prison as the result of his guilty plea March 17, to a charge of attempted larceny from a motor vehicle. The charge grew out of the theft of two tires from a car at Dwyer Chevrolet, Lawrence, May 23.

Nine other persons appeared for arraignment.

Arnold Preib, 19, Paw Paw, pleaded innocent to charges of possession of marijuana with intent to deliver and maintaining a dwelling for the purpose of using controlled substances.

Rob Sperry,18, Schoolcraft, pleaded guilty to a charge of maintaining a dwelling for the purpose of using controlled substances. A charge of possession of marijuana with intent to deliver was dropped.

Both Preib and Sperry were arrested Jan. 14 at a Lake Cora cottage when officers went to take them into custody on a warrant charging them with contributing to the delinquency of a 14-year-old girl.

Dennis Tinker, 21, and his wife, Sharon, 24, both of route 2, CR-374, Paw Paw, both pleaded innocent to similar charges of delivery of amphetamines in Lawrence township Nov. 25-27. Tinker also pleaded innocent to a charge of delivery of cocaine Jan. 15 in Lawrence township.

Travis Meeks, 48, route 4, South Haven, pleaded innocent to charges of driving under the influence of intoxicants, third offense, Oct. 19 in Keeler township, and absconding on bond. He is accused of absconding on $15,000 bond while awaiting trial on the drunk driving charge.

Innocent Pleas Entered By Accused Niles Sniper

An accused sniper from Niles pleaded innocent yesterday in Berrien circuit court to two counts of assault with intent to murder. Pleading innocent before Judge Julian Hughes was John C. Lowery, 21, of 2406 South 11th street, Niles township. He remained jailed in lieu of $100,000 bond to await trial.

Lowery was arrested March 10 after a man kept police at bay for some 90 minutes while allegedly firing a rifle from his apartment at passing cars and people. He is officially charged with assaulting Niles township Patrolmen Richard Appelget and Michael Poole with a .22 caliber rifle. No one was hurt in the shooting spree, but police said shots just missed an ambulance driver and at least two police officers who went to investigate the shots. Lowery was arrested after his girlfriend allegedly talked him into coming out of his barricaded apartment. Following the arraignment yesterday, Judge Hughes granted a motion by Lowery's court-appointed counsel, Atty. Donald Bleich, for a forensic (psychiatric) examination.

Diseased Hatchery Fish Destroyed

Fish Plant Cutbacks Set

This spring's plants of coho salmon and steelhead in southwestern Michigan will probably be reduced because of the outbreak of whirling disease at the Sturgeon River Rearing Station near Gaylord.

More than two million fish at the state hatchery must be destroyed because of the disease, and this means the Department of Natural Resources won't be able to fill all of its previously announced release quotas.

Fish biologists in Lansing are currently studying the situation. They plan to announce the necessary cutbacks this week.

"You have better chinook water than coho and there might be some reductions down there," says DNR biologist Lud Frankenberger.

Frankenberger also says entire plants at some of the previously announced sites will be eliminated. There's also a good possibility that some of the steelhead plants slated for the Great Lakes will be substituted for the destroyed rainbows which had been scheduled for inland stocking.

Dr. Howard Tanner, director of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, also warns the disease will spread to trout and salmon across Michigan eventually. But the outbreak poses no threat to humans.

Discovery of the disease at the Sturgeon River earlier this month led to the decision to destroy 1.5 million young coho salmon and 600,000 rainbow trout fry, Tanner said.

Whirling disease strikes the nervous system of fish and causes them to lose equilibrium and spin helplessly.

He called the outbreak a major problem that will spread "throughout all or most of Michigan's waters in the future."

But Tanner contended the disease has been controlled elsewhere and predicted it will be in Michigan.

"It's not going to knock Michigan out of the fish business," he insisted, although it will mean some changes in DNR hatchery operations.

Outdoor Trail

Fishing Report

Winter returned to southwestern Michigan over the weekend and generally reduced the success and enthusiasm among fishermen.

The fish are fickle, but when conditions are right, good catches of coho salmon can now be made in Lake Michigan off New Buffalo and St. Joseph.

Coho are generally running from two to three pounds, and most catches by trollers are made within three-quarters of a mile of the piers.

St. Joe pier fishermen have also picked up some steelhead, brown trout and coho.

Among the best lures have have been black and silver and orange and silver rapalas.

Steelhead fishermen continue to have the best success on the St. Joseph River below the Berrien Springs dam, but the Black River at South Haven is also drawing a lot of angler attention.

Spawn sacks and tadpollies and flatfish lures have been taking most of the steelhead.

Suckers are also running in most of the area's major rivers.

New Great Canada Goose 'Plant' Made

Efforts are continuing to establish a permanent breeding population of greater Canada geese in southwestern Michigan.

The Department of Natural Resources released 120 of the greater Canadas — which are almost twice as large as a regular Canada — last week at three area sites.

Eighty of the wing-clipped birds were put in the Barry (county) State Game Area while 24 were released at the Crane Pond State Game Area in Cass county and another 16 were put on Leidy Lake in St. Joseph county.

This is the third year of the greater Canada goose program, and although success has been limited, progress has been made. There were more than 60 broods of geese raised in the DNR's southwestern Michigan district last year.

The area's new greater Canadas were trapped at the Kensington Recreation Area in the central part of the state, which has a surplus of the honkers.

The regular Canada, which looks like the greater one, except for size, generally breeds in Canada. But they do stop by the thousands to rest in the Allegan State Game Area refuge while making spring and fall migrations. Greaters also migrate, but nothing like their smaller cousins.

Because they are wing-clipped, the area geese won't be able to fly again until August. It is assumed that some of the geese will then "home" back to Kensington, but it is also hoped that birds raised in southwestern Michigan will make the area their permanent home.

homing instinct was seen when some of the surplus Kensington geese were shipped to Tennessee in an effort to establish a breeding population. At least one of the banded birds flew back to its old home.

There has been nesting success in Cass county, but the best chance of establishing a permanent greater Canada population is probably at the Barry State Game Area.

Barry has a series of small impoundments which were built about 15 years ago through a series of dikes and ditches. Barry's geese are also protected by a law which has closed the game area to hunting.

Another encouragement for geese to breed in the area comes through a series of nesting islands which have been built by the DNR and the Kalamazoo chapter of the Michigan Duck Hunters Association.

Nesting islands are about 10 feet square and comprised of large criss-crossed timbers, onto which are piled brush and hay. The structure is put on ice over shallow water in the winter, and it settles to the bottom when the ice thaws. Ducks also use the islands.

Persons wishing to establish islands at their favorite waterfowl breeding spot may obtain plans for the structure by writing: Department of Natural Resources, Wildlife Division, P.O. Box 355, Plainwell, Mich. 49080.

Business As Usual At Day, Benzie

"It'll be business as usual when D.H. Day and Benzie State Parks in Leelanau and Benzie counties are incorporated into the Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore," says J.A. Martinek, superintendent with the National Park Service.

Transfer of the property from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources to the National Park Service is scheduled for today, following approval of the action by the National Resources Commission at its March meeting in Lansing.

Authority to convey the state-owned land to the U.S. Government was approved by the Michigan Legislature in Act 359, Public Acts of 1974.

The D.H. Day and Benzie State Parks and state forest lands are included in a transfer of over 8,400 acres of property in the northwest Lower Peninsula area.

Permanent staff of the DNR previously stationed at the two parks will be transferred to other parks in the state's system.

Camping facilities in the Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore will be basically rustic and available on a first come-first serve basis. Camping fees are $2 per night or $1 per night for senior citizens with a Golden Eagle passport.

Commercial chub fishing — except for limited research catches — could end on Lake Michigan by May.

Michigan, Indiana and Illinois are ready to go on the ban, and Wisconsin should soon add its approval to the joint move designed to rebuild Lake Michigan chub populations.

Roughly 30 Michigan commercial fishermen are expected to be put out of the chub business, including several from St. Joseph, South Haven and Saugatuck.

As plans now stand, there will be one "research" chub fisherman from southwestern Michigan. A screening process has cut the number of eligible fishermen from St. Joseph, South Haven and Saugatuck to seven (the Department of Natural Resources hasn't release the names), and a drawing including the seven will determine the winner of the research permit.

Lake Michigan's share of the chub catch will be 160,000 pounds per year, with the total divided up about equally among five fishermen.

Hopefully, there will be financial compensation for those put out of the chub business. The governor's budget request includes $1.5 million item for compensation.

It will be up to the legislature to approve the compensation and how it would be dispensed, but the DNR is thinking along the lines of half the value of the catch for the past two years (essentially one year's income).

The chub closure doesn't mean that all these people will be put out of the commercial fishing business. Some have already indicated they will use their compensation money to convert to new gear for fishing other species, such as suckers, smelt, whitefish and perch.

There is a guaranteed market for perch, but the commercial take of perch is presently closed, so any reopening of that fishery would be on a limited permit and quota basis, probably about 100,000 pounds for Michigan waters.

DNR biologists feel allowing a limited commercial perch catch with gear other than gill nets would serve several purposes. It would help determine which types of selective gear are feasible for harvesting perch along with helping monitor the condition of the perch population. Furthermore, it would help keep commercial fishermen in business and maybe even lead to a bigger commercial harvest in the future, depending on how big of a combined commercial and sport harvest perch prove to endure without damage to their numbers.

Meanwhile, the market for suckers is unproven but promising....market testing is now underway. John Scott, chief of the DNR's Lake Michigan section, says "the potential is there" and "it could develop rather rapidly in a year or two."

The chub closure is another in a long line of restrictions which have drastically reduced and controlled commercial fishing, but if selective gear works out and markets are found for previously unharvested species, commercial fishing could soon be on the upturn.

Lakes And Streams Conference April 12

A conference for persons interested in lakes and streams will be held April 12 at Kalamazoo Community College under sponsorship of the Michigan Lakes & Streams Associations.

The keynote speech — "What Is Michigan Lakes & Streams Associations?" — will be made by Henry Westerville, former president of ML&SA and managing editor of the Michigan Riparian magazine.

There will also be discussions on septic systems and pollution, water use problems, township authority in solving lake and stream problems and problems and enforcement of existing regulations at public access sites, plus a talk entitled — land use planning, who needs it?

People wishing more information on the conference — which has a $5 fee — should contact Mrs. Ray C. Harbour, 9620 E. Shore Dr., Kalamazoo, Mich. 49002.

Stop Stink

To stop skunk stink some suggest milk, others say vinegar. But tomato juice works better, though not as well as burying.

State's Snowmobile Deaths Set Record

According to the Department of Natural Resources' Law Enforcement Division, a record number of snowmobile fatalities occurred in Michigan during the current season.

"Major cause of death this year was when snowmobilers fell through unsafe ice," Opolka says. "Nine people lost their lives in this manner. In fact, two bodies remain unrecovered in Lake Michigan's Green Bay south of Escanaba."

Opolka cautions northern Michigan snowmobile operators that riding on thawing ice this time of year is especially hazardous. "If you are going to ride on ice, use common sense and do not venture out on frozen lakes and streams without knowing ice conditions," he warns.

"The shoreline areas of lakes often have thinner ice than the center, especially in later winter and early spring. If you encounter open water, release the throttle, brake gently and turn away," Opolka recommends.

"If there isn't sufficient time or distance, turn as sharply as possible and roll off the machine," he concludes.

Snowmobile operators should also be aware that several types of snowmobile suits are available which are designed with inflatable buoyant elements. Such suits provide an additional measure of safety when operating on ice.

Illinois Making Fishing Changes

Illinois is moving to the forefront in the management of its Lake Michigan fishery.

Current proposals call for the reduction of commercial fishing to full three time fishermen and closing the sport lake trout fishery for one year.

A public hearing on the proposals will be held this month.

Safety Class Required For New Boaters

Youths between 12 and 16 years of age are reminded by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources that to operate a motorboat this summer without an adult aboard, they must pass a boating safety course.

Boating Safety Certificates are awarded following at least five hours of classroom instruction on the operation of motorboats on Michigan's waters. Classes are held throughout the state.

Among topics covered in the course are maintenance, rules of the road, buoys and lights, weather, docking and mooring, equipment and "marlinspike seamanship" or knots and lines.

Since the courses began in 1968, over 225 thousand Michigan youngsters have successful taken the instruction.

For information on where the boating safety training is offered in Michigan's communities, contact the local sheriff's office, conservation officer, U.S. Power Squadron or Coast Guard Auxiliary.

Once Endangered Sea Otter Now Problem In California

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — The bewhiskered sea otter, once threatened with extinction because of its beautiful fur, is threatened again, this time for its expertise at competing with man for clams, crabs and abalone.

Fisherman claim the voracious otter, now well up in numbers, is so good at hunting that he has almost wiped out the north central coast pismo clam and is threatening the very survival of the California crab industry.

Fishermen commonly regard otters as natural enemies and often shoot at them. Since 1911, federal law has provided for a $20,000 fine for killing otters, but there has been only one conviction.

Otters are a common sight around Monterey and Morro bays, where they can be seen floating on their backs holding a clam on their chests with one claw, while bashing away at it with a rock in the other.

Sea otters are found only along the Asiatic and North American Pacific coasts. Adults can grow to more than 5-feet long, including the tail, and weigh more than 30 pounds.

The California Department of Fish and Game decided last week to seek federal permission to trap and remove all otters found outside the 132-mile stretch of the coast between Morro and Monterey bays. The department wants to take the captured otters to Navy-owned San Nicholas in the Channel Islands.

The department claims the otter is surviving so successfully it is moving north at the rate of a mile a month. At that speed, they could reach San Francisco Bay, 85 miles north of Monterey, before long.

For two centuries, trappers pursued the otters. A pelt once brought as much as $1,700. By the early 1900s, the otter was believed to be extinct, but a small colony was found on the Big Sur Coast in the 1920s. Today, the department estimates there are 1,700 on this coast.

Daniel Miller, a marine biologist for the department, wants to prevent the migration of the otter into San Francisco Bay, fearing that the survival of the state's crab industry is at stake.

He said it will take up to 12 years for the clam to recover in Monterey Bay, if the otters are removed soon.

A class at the University of California at Santa Cruz leaped into the rhubarb between fishermen and conservationists recently with a study which concludes that the fish and game department is unjustly blaming otters for the disappearance of abalones and clams.

The study says humans are at least partly to blame, harvesting huge amounts of shellfish, including some that are immature. There are no limits for professional abalone hunters for a single day's take.

Big Bend Rugged National Park

Scenic Texas Terrain Great For Backpacking

BIG BEND NATIONAL PARK, Tex. (AP) — Big Bend is one of the most out-of-the-way and least visited parks in the U.S. system, but offers backpacking enthusiasts some of the most rugged and scenic hiking conditions in the country.

Big Bend, the nation's third largest national park, features some 200 miles of maintained and primitive trails which snake across four distinct environments: A low and high desert, a mountain range and a lush, wild river bottom.

The low desert presents a lunar-like face of sand, lava rock and the fossil beds of dinosaurs which once roamed Southwest Texas.

Contrasting to the stark beauty of the low desert, the high desert abounds with countless varieties of wildflowers and cactus, including the rare giant dagger yucca.

Sitting in the middle of the park like a string of fortresses is the Chisos mountain range with peaks in excess of 7,000 feet and stands of drooping juniper, pinon pine, Douglas fir and ponderosa pine.

But perhaps Big Bend's most magnificant attraction is its 107-mile boundary with Mexico where the Rio Grande has sliced through the limestone to form canyon walls up to 1,500 feet high.

A hiking guide to the park published by the Big Bend Natural History Association offers backpackers a choice of 32 established and primitive routes, ranging from a quarter-mile walk to a rugged, six-day trek across the park.

But Big Bend, which covers 708,221 acres, also provides the experienced hiker with a chance to test his wilderness skills by bushwacking across country that has yet to be fully explored.

Off the beaten paths, the backpacker may encounter such wildlife as coyote, javelina or mule deer and sometimes at night can hear the throaty roar of a mountain lion.

For all it's beauty, however, Big Bend is not without one major shortcoming: Its weather.

From May through September, temperatures in the desert frequently exceed 100 degrees, restricting most hikers to the mountains, where temperatures rarely reach above the mid-80s.

Because of its essentially desert terrain, water is scarce.

Hikers must carry water on most of the established trials. Water from the river cannot be consumed safely without boiling.

However, hikers able to use a compass and topographic map can plan treks with mid-day and evening halts at springs which bubble out of the ground in a number of small canyons and arroyos.

Tent protection is rarely needed, but a good pair of heavy boots is a must because of sharp rocks and desert plants.

Rattlesnakes are abundant in the park, but rarely appear in winter. They are common in summer, but usually are out only at night.

Big Bend draws about 300,000 visitors a year. It is located about 300 miles Southwest of San Antonio, Tex. off U.S. Highway 90.

Some U.S. Mideast Embassies Virtual Fortresses

By HOLGER JENSEN
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.S. Ambassador McMurtrie Godley travels in a bullet-proof car and never goes anywhere without his bodyguard.

His home is guarded 24 hours a day by machine gun-toting police. His office is guarded by a Lebanese army tank, an armored car and troops.

Inside the embassy there are U.S. marines, a series of electronic door locking devices and a closed-circuit television monitor to protect the head of the U.S. State Department's major outpost in the volatile Middle East.

Three Americans diplomats have been killed in the Arab world and Cyprus in the past two years. Their deaths have made virtual fortresses of some American embassies in the region, and forced their staffs to adopt a low profile in countries where many oppose what they consider Washington's pro-Israeli stance. American policy in the Eastern Mediterranean countries also has its opponents.

Embassy security has always been tight in Lebanon, because of the large Palestinian guerrilla presence and Beirut's reputation as a spy capital and headquarters for extremists.

U.S. diplomats are not allowed to live near any Palestinian refugee camps and their homes and apartment buildings have to be approved by the embassy security officer.

There have been bomb threats and rocket attacks on the embassy by Palestinian guerrillas. In 1973 there was an unpublicized guerrilla attempt to kidnap Godley's predecessor, Ambassador William Buffum. Every Israeli raid on the Palestinians in Lebanon is accompanied by an upsurge in antiAmericanism here.

The U.S. Embassy in Cyprus has been compared to a high security prison compound ever since Ambassador Roger P. Davis was killed during an anti-American demonstration in Nicosia last year.

The seven-story building is ringed by a stone wall, barbed wire and a fence of three-inch thick iron bars, with an outer perimtere of troops and armored cars. Every window is firmly shuttered and covered with wire mesh.

The windows on the ground floor, where Ambassador William Crawford has his office, are covered with steel armor plate. Visitors to the embassy are scrutizined by closed circuit television cameras at the outer gate and pass through a courtyard guarded by Cypriot police to the heavy oak door of the embassy building.

There are more television monitors inside, and a series of electronically operated iron doors between the various embassy sections.

Security precautions are less overt in the Sudan, but all diplomats have been assigned police guards since U.S. Ambassador Cleo Noel and deputy chief of mission G. Curtis Moore were assassinated by Palestinian guerrillas of the Black September group in 1973.

The door to the embassy in Khartoum is always locked and visitors are only permitted to enter after scrutiny by Sudanese police and U.S. Marines. Egypt is also very protective of its growing American diplomatic community. A permanent contingent of Egyptian security police is on duty outside the colonial-style U.S. embassy building in Cairo, and the police man 24-hour shifts outside the homes of every American on the diplomatic list.

U.S. Ambassador Herman Eilts is always accompanied by two Egyptian bodyguards and a carload of policemen. But his residence is encircled by highrise apartment buildings and a search is currently under way for a more secure location.

Visitors to the Cairo embassy require special gate passes and all packages have to be opened for inspection by the U.S. Marines.

Syria is a police state and the new U.S. ambassador there, Richard Murphy, is probably the safest foreigner in Damascus.

The same applies to Iran, where Ambassador Richard Helms, the former chief of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, is cushioned in a cocoon of secret policemen.

Ever since King Hussein of Jordan ousted the Palestinian guerrillas in the bloody civil war of 1970, the U.S. embassy in Amman has been guarded by Bedouin policemen and one of the smaller U.S. Marine detachments in the Middle East.

Only routine security precautions exist at embassies in Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, and other oil-producing states in the Persian Gulf, whose autocratic rulers enjoy cordial relations with the United States.

The sheiks, sultans and kings in the Arabian Peninsula frown on political activism of any kind and do not permit their Palestinian immigrants to indulge in any kind of anti-American demonstrations.

Edwardsburg Industrial Arts Fair To Show Student Work

EDWARDSBURG — Students from five southwestern Michigan counties will be taking part in a regional industrial arts fair at the school here, April 10 - 12, according to school officials. Purpose of the fair is to encourage and recognize fine craftsmanship by students taking industrial arts courses at their respective schools, according to Harold Brooks, industrial arts instructor at Edwardsburg. He said an estimated 800 projects will be on display from junior high and senior high school students in Berrien, Cass, Kalamazoo, St. Joseph and Van Buren counties.

Projects to be displayed will include metal working, casting of dies, wood products, architectural drawings, graphic arts and others. Students whose projects win either first or second awards in various categories will be able to submit their projects for competition in a state fair to be held at Grand Rapids during the Michigan Industrial Education society convention, Brooks said. Projects will be on display from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m., and from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., Friday, April 11, and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday, April 12, Brooks said.

Galien Kindergarten Registration April 23

GALIEN — Kindergarten registration for Galien schools will be held April 23, at 9-10:30 a.m. in the Galien high school cafetorium. All children who will be entering kindergarten in the fall, may be registered at this time. Children must be five-years-old on or before Sept. 1 to enter kindergarten unless younger children take and pass a readiness test before school starts. Parents may arrange for the readiness test by contacting David Porrell at the school. Parents are asked to bring their child's birth certificate and record of inoculations to the registration.

GOOD NEWS AT GROCERY STORE

Nation's Food Bill Is Declining

The decreases did not follow any particular pattern and they were offset, in part, by increases in the price of chopped chuck and eggs. But the declines do provide an indication that grocery prices may be leveling off and that this year's rate of increase will be below the cost spirals of 1973 and 1974.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and non-food items, checked the price on March 1, 1973, at a supermarket in each of 13 cities and has rechecked at the start of each succeeding month.

During March, the marketbasket bill declined in 11 cities, down an average of 3.2 per cent, and increased in two cities, up an average of six-tenths of one per cent. Over-all, there was an average drop of 2.7 per cent.

The situation was an improvement over February, when the bill dropped in nine cities and rose in four, but the price of groceries was still much higher than last year. In the 12-months ended March 31, the marketbasket bill went up an average of 14.2 per cent. Over the 25-month period during which the AP has been checking prices, the bill went up 29.8 per cent.

Farmers have been getting less money for their products, but the decrease has not been fully reflected at the supermarket, mainly because the cost of the food itself is only a small factor in the over-all price paid by the consumer. Higher costs for transportation, labor, fuel and other items have taken up much of the decrease.

In addition, the food processors and retailers are trying to make up for profit lost during the 1973 price freeze.

The government said Monday that farm prices dropped 2 per cent from Feb. 15 to March 15. It was the fifth straight monthly decline and compared with a 4 per cent drop from Jan. 15 to Feb. 15.

Food prices rose 14.9 per cent during 1974, according to the government. Department of Agriculture economists have said they expect food prices to go up about 3 per cent in each of the first two quarters of 1975. They are reluctant to predict what will happen after that, noting that a lot depends on weather conditions in the farm belt.

A recent department report showed the annual retail cost of a marketbasket of farm-produced foods went up four-tenths of one per cent in February. The increase was the smallest in four months, although it pushed the cost of food to a record high.

The decreases in the AP survey were led by sugar which dropped in price in every city checked and was down an average of 15 per cent during the month. In four cities — Chicago, Dallas, Detroit and Los Angeles — the price of a five-pound sack of granulated sugar was below $2 for the first time since last fall. Sugar prices remain two and three times what they were in March 1973, however.

Beef prices, which have been declining recently because of abundant supplies, increased again, partly because of Easter sales that featured other meat items at the expense of things like hamburger.

The price of a pound of chopped chuck went up in seven cities during March, with increases ranging from 9 per cent in Miami to 40 per cent in Providence, R.I.

Milliken Signs Four Bills Into Law

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has signed a measure to certify emergency medical technicians until state exams are developed.

The others postpone the effective date of the 1974 Campaign Finance Act from April 1 to July 1, amend the residential builders act to allow a 30-day grace period for license renewal and amend the 1974 minimum wage act to exclude administrative, executive and professional employees in hotels, motels and restaurants from its overtime requirements.

The medical technicians law allows the state Public Health Department to issue provisional certificates until exams and rules are developed and implemented.

Last year's law temporarily licensed technicians who already completed training. Without the amendment, however, there was no way to temporarily license those who completed training between that time and implementation of the health department rules and exam.

Gulf Is Newest Target Of FEA Pricing Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Administration says it has investigated almost 90,000 cases in its year-old probe of petroleum overcharging, involving companies from the oil giants to the smallest fuel retailers.

With only a fraction of the cases completed, the FEA has made companies pay back more than $611 million, and is pursuing more possible overcharges estimated to total anywhere from $50 million to $250 million.

The FEA said Monday it was investigating $101 million in suspected overcharges by Gulf Oil Corp.

A Gulf spokesman said FEA officials and officers of Gulf were discussing the agency's suspicions. But Gulf denied an FEA statement that the company has informally agreed to cancel some $40 million in potential future price hikes, leaving only $61 million still in dispute. A Gulf spokesman said Gulf made no such agreement, while FEA insisted an agreement was made.

Meanwhile, in answer to questions from The Associated Press, the FEA began filling in further details of its far-flung investigations, adding to information released last weekend.

—The FEA said 89,464 petroleum wholesale and retail firms have been investigated and the agency has issued 1,197 "remedial orders," requiring the correction of price overcharges. Refunds, possibly including some without remedial orders, have totalled $74,684,273, the FEA said.

—Some 30 major oil refiners are under continuous FEA auditing. As previously reported, FEA has investigated 107 cases of propane pricing, 197 crude oil cases and 190 suppliers of fuel to electric utilities.

—Penalties totalling $930,052 have been collected from 130 firms as a result of price or allocation violations. Nearly half came from previously reported penalties of $300,000 against Union Oil and $150,000 against Petrofina for failing to send gasoline to shortgage areas during the Arab oil embargo a year ago.

The FEA said two other companies were penalized in remedial orders correcting propane overcharges: Mid Continent L. P. Service, which repaid $86,807 plus a $10,000 penalty; and Ferrelgas, Inc., which repaid $21,809 plus a $12,500 penalty. The FEA did not identify the service areas of these companies.

The penalties also included $46,658 collected from unidentified crude oil suppliers who "acknowledged overcharge" and agreed voluntarily to make price refunds totalling $793,601, FEA said.

The audits have already forced refiners to cancel some $410.7 million in so-called "banked costs" — illegitimate claims of costs which could otherwise be passed along to consumers in the form of future price increases.

Of these disallowed "banked costs," some $290 million stemmed from a now-barred practice called "double-dipping" in which some companies took advantage of a loophole in federal regulations to charge twice for the same oil.

Israel Press Suggests Troops Be Pulled Back

By Associated Press

A leading Israeli newspaper has suggested that Israel should pull back its forces in the Sinai Desert another three miles in response to Egypt's decision to reopen the Suez Canal.

There was no reaction from Israeli political leaders or officials. But Israeli ships will be barred from the waterway because Egypt and Israel are still technically at war.

The Israeli army's lines are now 12 miles east of the canal as a result of the disengagement agreement negotiated by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in January 1974. The suggestion for an additional small pullback was made Monday by the newspaper Haaretz.

It said President Anwar Sadat's announcement that he would reopen the canal June 5 lessens the chance of war, and Israel should respond with "a gesture of its own." The paper added that this "would not cost much and would not endanger Israel's security."

Diplomatic sources said Eilts was sounding out the Egyptian government's latest position for use in the reassessment of U.S. Middle East policy ordered by President Ford.

Ford ordered the reassessment after the collapse of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's attempt to negotiate another Israeli troop withdrawal in Sinai.

Eilts is expected to travel to Washington soon to take part in the policy review.

Fahmy later met Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Polyakov to discuss the Middle East situation, Egypt's official Middle East News Agency reported. It gave no details.

Millage Veto Leads River Valley Board To Teacher Cutback

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau

THREE OAKS — In an effort to cut operating costs in the next school year, the River Valley school board voted last night to lay off 14 first-year teachers at the end of this school year in June.

Under the decision, the 14 probationary teachers are not to be rehired for next year but will be given priority if an opening occurs.

Action was required because of a 60-day advance notification clause in the board's contract with the association representing teachers.

Board action in a special meeting came in the wake of the defeat of a 3.824-mill property tax levy in a special election March 26. The levy was to raise an estimated $335,000 in local and state revenue for the 1975-76 school year.

Supt. Joseph Caimi said the reduction in staff will save the school district about $90,000 next year, after unemployment compensation costs are paid.

Caimi said no additional cost-cutting attempts have yet been considered by the board. He said earlier that from 35 to 50 school employes will not be rehired next year.

About 30 people attended the special session, billed as the first move to begin formulating cost-cutting policies, but no objections to the action were voiced.

The board also approved a policy to be followed when the school system's professional staff is to be reduced, for reasons of, " . . . insufficient operating funds, or changing curriculum needs . . ."

Under the new policy, probationary teachers will be laid off first, if there are fully qualified teachers to replace them. If further reductions are necessary, the policy states, " . . . specific positions being reduced or eliminated will be laid off in accordance with certification, qualifications, experience, and length of service. In the event all factors are equal, seniority shall be the determining factor."

Other provisions of the policy state that it is "within the sole discretion of the board of education to reduce the educational program, the professional staff," but that the River Valley Education association will be notified in advance of any reduction.

Caimi said the RVEA had been notified in advance of last night's board action.

in last week's special millage election, Caimi said 1.824 mills in the proposal was for renewal. The other two mills were to be additional.

An estimated 30 per cent of the school district's voters cast ballots in the special election, defeating the proposal by a near 2 to 1 margin of 933-478.

According to school officials, the 14 teachers are: David Blinn, Steve Carigan, Norma Drier, Joan K. Flynn, Robert Franzen, Robert Hay, Gorden Kroening, Donna McCotter, Thomas Palen, Linda Robinson, Wanda Seals, Timothy Theisen, Christine Tamm and Stephanie Gordon.

He Won't Run On Record

ELKHART, Ind. (AP) — The Elkhart County Election Board has decided to let Robert E. Heier run for mayor despite his seven years in prison for assault and battery with intent to commit rape. Heier, whose candidacy was approved by the board Monday, pleaded guilty in 1962 to attacking two Elkhart women. He served seven years at the Indiana State Reformatory and was paroled in 1969. His parole ended Sept. 16, 1970. "I know where I've been, but being in an institution does not make a person a monster," Heier said after the board voted in his favor. PAW PAW — A Covert man, Clarence Hegwood, 38, was sentenced yesterday in Van Buren circuit court to two terms in state prison as a result of his earlier guilty pleas to a pair of drug charges.

Hegwood was sentenced to serve from 18 months to five years in prison on a charge of attempted delivery (sale) of heroin Jan. 22, 1974 in South Haven, and from 18 to 42 months in prison on a charge of attempted delivery of cocaine Feb. 13, 1974 in South Haven.

In handing down the sentences, Judge David Anderson Jr. said they would be served concurrently.

Hegwood had been arrested last May following a three-month investigation by state police intelligence units into alleged drug sales in the Covert-South Haven area.

In other cases, Danny Morrison, 17, Paw Paw, was sentenced to serve from 18 months to 14 years in state prison as the result of his guilty plea to a charge of uttering and publishing a forged check for check for $48 at the First State Bank, Decatur, on Dec. 3. He pleaded guilty March 3.

Phillip Alan Harris, 20, Benton Harbor, was sentenced to serve from 18 to 30 months in prison as the result of his guilty plea March 17, to a charge of attempted larceny from a motor vehicle. The charge grew out of the theft of two tires from a car at Dwyer Chevrolet, Lawrence, May 23.

Nine other persons appeared for arraignment.

Rob Sperry, 18, Schoolcraft, pleaded guilty to a charge of maintaining a dwelling for the purpose of using controlled substances. A charge of possession of marijuana with intent to deliver was dropped.

Both Preib and Sperry were arrested Jan. 14 at a Lake Cora cottage when officers went to take them into custody on a warrant charging them with contributing to the delinquency of a 14-year-old girl.

Innocent Pleas Entered By Accused Niles Sniper

An accused sniper from Niles pleaded innocent yesterday in Berrien circuit court to two counts of assault with intent to murder. Pleading innocent before Judge Julian Hughes was John C. Lowery, 21, of 2406 South 11th street, Niles township. He remained jailed in lieu of $100,000 bond to await trial.

Lowery was arrested March 10 after a man kept police at bay for some 90 minutes while allegedly firing a rifle from his apartment at passing cars and people. He is officially charged with assaulting Niles township Patrolmen Richard Appelget and Michael Poole with a .22 caliber rifle. No one was hurt in the shooting spree, but police said shots just missed an ambulance driver and at least two police officers who went to investigate the shots. Lowery was arrested after his girlfriend allegedly talked him into coming out of his barricaded apartment. Following the arraignment yesterday, Judge Hughes granted a motion by Lowery's court-appointed counsel, Atty. Donald Bleich, for a forensic (psychiatric) examination.

Ford's Work Forecast

NEW YORK (AP) — President Ford says "50 per cent of the people will be living off the other 50 per cent" by the year 2000 if the growth in "transfer payments" continues at its present rate. Apparently meaning welfare assistance when using the term "transfer payments," Ford said the American economy has been able to keep pace with the demand for welfare aid because the money has been taken from the Defense Department budget.

Iraq Mopping Up Kurdish Rebels

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — The Iraqi government says its army is advancing on the last rebel strongholds in Kurdistan following expiration of an amnesty offer to the Pesh Merga guerrillas at midnight Monday.

No serious resistance was expected from the estimated 9,000 Kurdish guerrilla holdouts, outnumbered 20-to-one by the Iraqis' eight divisions — about 100,000 troops — plus tanks and Soviet planes and militia supplemented by thousands of Pesh Merga defectors.

Some U.S. Mideast Embassies Virtual Fortresses

By HOLGER JENSEN
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.S. Ambassador McMurtrie Godley travels in a bullet-proof car and never goes anywhere without his bodyguard.

His home is guarded 24 hours a day by machine gun-toting police. His office is guarded by a Lebanese army tank, an armored car and troops.

Inside the embassy there are U.S. marines, a series of electronic door locking devices and a closed-circuit television monitor to protect the head of the U.S. State Department's major outpost in the volatile Middle East.

Three Americans diplomats have been killed in the Arab world and Cyprus in the past two years. Their deaths have made virtual fortresses of some American embassies in the region, and forced their staffs to adopt a low profile in countries where many oppose what they consider Washington's pro-Israeli stance. American policy in the Eastern Mediterranean countries also has its opponents.

Embassy security has always been tight in Lebanon, because of the large Palestinian guerrilla presence and Beirut's reputation as a spy capital and headquarters for extremists.

U.S. diplomats are not allowed to live near any Palestinian refugee camps and their homes and apartment buildings have to be approved by the embassy security officer.

There have been bomb threats and rocket attacks on the embassy by Palestinian guerrillas. In 1973 there was an unpublicized guerrilla attempt to kidnap Godley's predecessor, Ambassador William Buffum. Every Israeli raid on the Palestinians in Lebanon is accompanied by an upsurge in antiAmericanism here.

The U.S. Embassy in Cyprus has been compared to a high security prison compound ever since Ambassador Roger P. Davis was killed during an anti-American demonstration in Nicosia last year.

The seven-story building is ringed by a stone wall, barbed wire and a fence of three-inch thick iron bars, with an outer perimtere of troops and armored cars. Every window is firmly shuttered and covered with wire mesh.

The windows on the ground floor, where Ambassador William Crawford has his office, are covered with steel armor plate. Visitors to the embassy are scrutizined by closed circuit television cameras at the outer gate and pass through a courtyard guarded by Cypriot police to the heavy oak door of the embassy building.

There are more television monitors inside, and a series of electronically operated iron doors between the various embassy sections.

Security precautions are less overt in the Sudan, but all diplomats have been assigned police guards since U.S. Ambassador Cleo Noel and deputy chief of mission G. Curtis Moore were assassinated by Palestinian guerrillas of the Black September group in 1973.

The door to the embassy in Khartoum is always locked and visitors are only permitted to enter after scrutiny by Sudanese police and U.S. Marines. Egypt is also very protective of its growing American diplomatic community. A permanent contingent of Egyptian security police is on duty outside the colonial-style U.S. embassy building in Cairo, and the police man 24-hour shifts outside the homes of every American on the diplomatic list.

U.S. Ambassador Herman Eilts is always accompanied by two Egyptian bodyguards and a carload of policemen. But his residence is encircled by highrise apartment buildings and a search is currently under way for a more secure location.

Visitors to the Cairo embassy require special gate passes and all packages have to be opened for inspection by the U.S. Marines.

Syria is a police state and the new U.S. ambassador there, Richard Murphy, is probably the safest foreigner in Damascus.

The same applies to Iran, where Ambassador Richard Helms, the former chief of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, is cushioned in a cocoon of secret policemen.

Ever since King Hussein of Jordan ousted the Palestinian guerrillas in the bloody civil war of 1970, the U.S. embassy in Amman has been guarded by Bedouin policemen and one of the smaller U.S. Marine detachments in the Middle East.

Only routine security precautions exist at embassies in Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, and other oil-producing states in the Persian Gulf, whose autocratic rulers enjoy cordial relations with the United States.

The sheiks, sultans and kings in the Arabian Peninsula frown on political activism of any kind and do not permit their Palestinian immigrants to indulge in any kind of anti-American demonstrations.

A little-known band of Communist guerrillas who call themselves the Popular Front for the Liberation of Oman pose a latent threat in that small sultanate, on the extreme southeast tip of the Arabian Peninsula

EDWARDSBURG — Students from five southwestern Michigan counties will be taking part in a regional industrial arts fair at the school here, April 10 - 12, according to school officials. Purpose of the fair is to encourage and recognize fine craftsmanship by students taking industrial arts courses at their respective schools, according to Harold Brooks, industrial arts instructor at Edwardsburg. He said an estimated 800 projects will be on display from junior high and senior high school students in Berrien, Cass, Kalamazoo, St. Joseph and Van Buren counties.

Projects to be displayed will include metal working, casting of dies, wood products, architectural drawings, graphic arts and others. Students whose projects win either first or second awards in various categories will be able to submit their projects for competition in a state fair to be held at Grand Rapids during the Michigan Industrial Education society convention, Brooks said. Projects will be on display from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m., and from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., Friday, April 11, and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday, April 12, Brooks said.

Galien Kindergarten Registration April 23

GALIEN — Kindergarten registration for Galien schools will be held April 23, at 9-10:30 a.m. in the Galien high school cafetorium. All children who will be entering kindergarten in the fall, may be registered at this time. Children must be five-years-old on or before Sept. 1 to enter kindergarten unless younger children take and pass a readiness test before school starts. Parents may arrange for the readiness test by contacting David Porrell at the school. Parents are asked to bring their child's birth certificate and record of inoculations to the registration.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Extends Decline

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market dropped another notch today in a continuation of the declines that set in Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off about 3 points after the first 15 minutes of trading, and losers held a 3-2 edge on gainers at the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the deteriorating situation in Cambodia and South Vietnam apparently was weighing on the market.

They also noted a general air of caution over impending first quarter reports, which are expected to show sharp declines at many companies because of the recession and raise the prospect of some dividend cuts.

Today's prices included American Home Products, down 3/8 at 38 1/8; Texaco, up 1/8 at 24 1/4; Dresser Industries, down 1/4 at 48 1/4, and U.S. Steel, down 1/2 at 58 1/4.

Declines outpaced advances by about a 6-5 margin on the NYSE in turnover of 16.27 million shares.

The Big Board's composite index of all its listed common stocks was off .25 at 44.21.

Ford Tops Congress In Poll

NEW YORK (AP) — Most Americans believe President Ford is doing a poor job but even more feel that the Congress' performance is worse, the Harris poll says.

In results released Monday, the polling organization said that of 1,536 households surveyed, 60 per cent feel President Ford is doing a poor job and 67 per cent feel Congress is doing poorer.

The poll said the only time in the last 12 years the Congress has gotten a lower rating was in January 1974, just before the impeachment hearings. At that time, 69 per cent reacted negatively to the Congress and 10 per cent were not sure. Currently, 7 per cent are unsure.

An even larger majority reacted negatively to Congress in its relations to Ford, in its efforts to end the recession, in its handling of taxes and spending, and its overall attempts to keep the economy healthy.

"Most likely, Americans are doubly disappointed in the performance of this primarily Democratic Congress because they gave the Democrats an overwhelming 61-39 per cent vote in last November's elections," the poll said.

Top Court To Review Key Cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court will review decisions which officials say would hamper police, prosecutors and parole officers in dealing with crime.

The court announced Monday it will hear arguments next fall on state and federal appeals from lower court rulings in three crime-related cases.

In one, a U.S. Circuit Court ordered Philadelphia police to investigate within 45 days all complaints of police misconduct.

In another, the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans freed a Florida man because authorities brought him to trial again after a judge had declared a mistrial as a result of the judge's own error.

In the third, the Ohio Supreme Court overturned an armed robbery conviction because the defendant's parole officer had not advised him of his right to remain silent.

PROMISES DEMOCRACY

Kazoo-Van Buren Jobless Rate Hits 11.3 Per Cent

PAW PAW — Combined unemployment in Kalamazoo and Van Buren counties was 11.3 per cent of the work force in February, up from 9.4 per cent in January, according to the Kalamazoo office of the Michigan Employment Security commission. There were 13,200 people out of jobs in February, compared to 10,900 in January, according to the report which did not list separate unemployment figures for the two counties. A year ago, the report said, there were 6,800 people, or 6 per cent of the labor force, out of work in the two counties.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Frantic Approach Has Sorry Ending

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. Help! Help! We recently received a bequest and are in a quandary as to what to do with it. We are in our 50s. We have some utility shares and $35,000 in savings accounts. We know the money should be working harder but we are "green" and don't know whether to go into mutual funds or stocks. What we would like is income during retirement, six years away. And we also want to leave an estate for the children.

A. The only worrisome part of your letter is that opening — "Help! Help!" I say this because experience has shown me that such a frantic approach generally indicates that a reader will make a hurried, off-the-cuff investment decision (to his detriment) long before I can get back to him, and urge him to "take it easy."

That is what I am urging you to do now. Your phrase "should be working harder" also is dangerous. Money in insured savings today can earn up to 7 1/2 per cent and better than 8 per cent when interest is compounded. So there is no need to rush into an immediate shift of these funds.

In your age bracket you could, over the years to retirement, accumulate some good common stocks as an inflation hedge. The question of retirement should not dominate your thinking now. Time enough for that when you do retire. Meanwhile what you want is to try to build capital and a conservative approach to that would be a gradual accumulation of good common shares over the next few years. When you retire you might consider bonds.

EXERCISING WARRANTS

Q. I own 10 A.T. & T. warrants and wonder if now is the time to turn them in for common shares. How do I transfer some stock I now own to my daughter without having to hire a lawyer?

A. The warrants have until May 15 to run. They entitle the holder to add $52 to each warrant and claim a share of A.T. & T. COMMON. Since you have until May 15, there is no point to your making any decision now. If you were to exercise the warrant now, and the stock were to sell below $52 on May 15, you would have spent money needlessly. If the stock were to rise in price from now right up to May 15, your position would not be prejudiced in any way by waiting.

You don't need an attorney to transfer title to securities. Merely write to the bank which serves as transfer agent (named on the front of the certificate) and it will tell you how to proceed.

Q. We are in our early 50s with all our money in Treasury bills and certificates of deposit. I would like to buy some stock for long-term investment but my wife can't see it unless she can see it grow.

A. This is a common dilemma. And in trying to solve it, one has to weigh hope of financial gain against fear of domestic stress. You could say that your money in long-term certificates is growing at the rate of 7 1/2 per cent per year, or slightly higher if you allow the interest to remain in the account. Of course, you must deduct annual income taxes. There is no point in my even guessing at what rate a long-term stock investment will grow or decline. If your wife has been looking at the stock market of the last six or seven years, she has plenty of ammunition for her argument.

How about a compromise? Let's say you will start by putting only the interest earned by your large cash type investments into common shares on a monthly or quarterly basis. I feel investors in their 50s should have some common stock. But I am perfectly willing to see the commitment made gradually and with relatively small sums. Obviously, you should stay with quality shares, unless you want your wife to tell you, "I told you so."

New Kind Of Lobby Needed --'Hutch'

its purpose would be to promise a legislator here that taxpayers will work to insure his reelection or defeat as he votes for or against their interests.

He Made the observation in response to numerous complaints from citizens of his Fourth district protesting "some of the more absurd spending programs of various agencies of the federal government." He noted that much publicity had been given recently to such federal expenditures as $117,000 to sustain a Federal Board of Tea Tasters, $85,000 for a study of the impact of rural road construction in Poland, and $70,000 for a study of why people fall in love.

"Yet, despite virtual unanimous opposition to these types of programs by citizens all across the nation, these continue to multiply," the congressman asserted.

He explained:

"New programs devising ways to spend government revenues (i.e. taxpayers dollars) are generally given primary impetus by that group standing most to benefit from the program. As the programs are initiated, molded, developed and finally passed, these interests are able to devote full time to focusing upon them, churning out background information for sympathetic legislators and ency members, issuing press releases and generally attempting to demonstrate the compelling desirability of their pet program."

Each such special interest group "has $500,000, or $5 million, or $5 billion" at stake and works hard to protect it.

The individual taxpayer stands merely to lose several cents, or at most several dollars individually upon passage of any of these programs. "Only when they are all tallied up does he feel the painful crunch."

One, he said, would require spending bills to contain strengthened tax impact statements. Another would increase Congressional monitoring of the spending of agencies it has created—and then frequently forgot about. Another proposal would limit federal taxation to a specified percentage of the Gross National Product, thus placing an absolute ceiling on federal spending during any given year. "The result of this would be that the big spenders would have to compete against each other...rather than competing with the taxpayer by attempting to increase the total size of the federal pie."

Tax Cut Foe Backed At Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — As government computers calculate the 1974 income tax rebates due millions of Americans, the senator who led the opposition to the refund is calculating the next federal budget deficit.

Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., who emerged from the obscurity that can engulf a freshman senator to lead the opposition, says the minimum expected deficit in the next fiscal year of $65 billion could lead to more inflation.

"In my opinion, that's at least $15 billion to $20 billion more than we can accommodate without reversing the downward trend in interest rates and consequently the downward trend in the cost of living," Bumpers said Monday.

Rather than finding that his fight against returning up to $200 in tax revenue to the taxpayers was a political liability, Bumpers says it has proven to be an advantage.

Astronomy Job Market Not Infinite

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Aspiring professional astronomers: Beware, the universe may be infinite but the job market isn't.

That's the message of the National Academy of Sciences, which has drafted a form letter for the University of Arizona to use in warning applicants for graduate studies in astronomy to reconsider their plans for the future.

"You should now seriously consider whether your interest in the field is so great that you wish to devote five more years of hard study to astronomy," the letter says in part.

The Academy estimates that over the next five years there will be at least 600 new astronomers with doctorates competing for only 50 to 100 jobs.

OVERHAUL OF FOOD ADS

You are now being invited by the Federal Trade Commission in Washington to say what you think about the FTC's proposals for a revolutionary overhaul of the rules governing all food advertising. The FTC is the top agency regulating our whole advertising industry; food ads — along with food labels — are the prime sources of information on the foods we buy.

The FTC specifically proposes that:

— No food could be advertised as "nutritious" unless it contained at least 10 per cent of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance ("RDA") per 100 calories, of at least four nutrients, including protein;

— Any food advertised as "dietetic" would have to state the number of calories;

— Any "emphatic claim" for a food's nutritional virtues — e.g., "packed with vitamins" — could be made only if the food contained at least 35 per cent of the RDA of the nutrient "emphatically" advertised.

But critics are now pointing out that the easiest way to get around the new rules would be simply to give no information whatsoever on nutritional aspects of advertised foods! Which, of course, would leave all of us much worse off than we are today.

We are steadily reaching new depths of nutritional illiteracy in the U.S. Our ignorance has become a major factor in the relentless decline in our overall nutritional status.

As the White House Conference report on Food, Nutrition and Health put it as far back as 1969: "The gaps in our public knowledge about nutrition, along with actual misinformation carried by some media, are contributing seriously to the problem of hunger and malnutrition in the U.S."

As just one illustration of our malnutrition, obesity affects tens of millions of Americans and this potentially deadly disease is directly linked with nutritional illiteracy. The proposed FTC regulations don't even touch on the problems of excess amounts of sugar included in so many foods today or of dangerously excessive (for millions of us) amounts of cholesterol or of dangerously small amounts of fiber.

Although the new rules would apply to the key vitamins and minerals for which Recommended Daily Allowances have been set by the Food & Drug Administration, they don't touch on the crucial importance of at least 20 other "less popular" nutrients.

For example, an orange drink may be loaded with added vitamin C but may have little else — and thus perpetuate the belief that loads of a single nutrient will help the whole body as much as the full range of nutrients in a real orange. The fact is, as many nutritionists stress, that there are more than 40 essential nutrients, and they work in "team" fashion.

Again, wheat processors typically remove most of the nutrients when they make white flour (which goes into cereals and pastries as well as bread) and put back only a few when they later "fortify" the flour. Also ducked is the ticklish issue of "organic" and "natural" foods. The proposal is just to ban the use of these terms in all food advertising — hardly a "solution."

Moreover, the suggested definition of the word "nutritious" (so far as ads are concerned) is that foods must have at least 10 per cent of the official RDA per 100 calories. This would exclude the use of this term for such foods as whole wheat bread, all fruits and fruit juices, most vegetables. And the "emphatic claim" provision would ban advertising milk as a good source of calcium and protein.

The key point is that food advertising "works" in getting us to buy heavily advertised products. And the new rules might, I repeat, compound our confusion, lead to even less informative disclosures.

The food industry's claim during the debate now going on at the highest levels in Washington is that "food buyers (you and me) don't pay any attention to nutrition information, anyway."

Is this true? If not, study the details in today's column, formulate your own questions and suggestions on informative advertising and write to William Dixon, Special Asst. Director for Rulemaking, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580.

Two Banks Cut Prime Rate 1/4%

By Associated Press

Old Kent Bank & Trust Co. in Grand Rapids and the Bank of the Commonwealth in Detroit announced Monday they have lowered their prime interest rates from 7 3/4 to 7 1/2 per cent.

Although other Detroit banks are at the new low rate, other major Grand Rapids banks kept the rate they charge their best customers at 7 3/4 or 8 per cent despite Old Kent's action.

Michigan Minimum Pay Goes Up To $2

A measure aimed at making it less onerous for victims to testify in rape cases and a bundle of bills designed to help consumers also go into the books.

The more than 30 new laws were passed by the legislature last year, many of them under the gun of the November election.

The state minimum wage goes up from $1.60 to $2 an hour. The measure also guarantees overtime pay for more than 48 hours a week.

Another measure will let consumers request prescription drugs by generic name, rather than by the more expensive brand name. Under the socalled Generic Drug Act, consumers must ask their druggist for the generic substitution and doctors retain the power to insist on the brand name.

The new rape law bars defense attorneys from using the victim's previous sexual history as evidence unless specifically allowed by the judge. The stipulation is designed to encourage victims to testify since their sex lives will not be an open book in court.

The law also classifies rape into degrees of "sexual assault" and covers attacks against men as well as women.

The new package of state laws also authorizes the state Department of Agriculture to ban hazardous toys and requires manufacturers and wholesalers of mechanical, thermal and electrical toys to get a state license.

Other laws require the safety glazing of all glass to be used in bathrooms in public buildings and outlaw the garnishment of wages by creditors without a hearing or court order.

Used car dealers will have to provide consumers with a signed affidavit of a car's actual mileage and private driver training school will be placed under state supervision.

Another law gives the secretary of state's office six months to begin setting up the machinery to certify all non-gasoline station mechanics by 1978. The law also requires guaranteed written estimates.

Uncle Sam and MONY have a great idea for people with no pension plan

Under the Pension Reform Act, you can contribute annually up to 15% of your earnings—not to exceed $1500—to a pension plan. You can deduct the entire amount from your taxable income for the year and pay no current income taxes on it whatsoever. In fact, you pay no taxes on it until retirement when, most likely, you will be earning less and in a far lower tax bracket. What's more, the money contributed draws interest and increases rapidly in your retirement fund. And you pay no taxes on the interest, either, until retirement.

Millage Veto Leads River Valley Board To Teacher Cutback

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau

THREE OAKS — In an effort to cut operating costs in the next school year, the River Valley school board voted last night to lay off 14 first-year teachers at the end of this school year in June.

Under the decision, the 14 probationary teachers are not to be rehired for next year but will be given priority if an opening occurs.

Action was required because of a 60-day advance notification clause in the board's contract with the association representing teachers.

Board action in a special meeting came in the wake of the defeat of a 3.824-mill property tax levy in a special election March 26. The levy was to raise an estimated $335,000 in local and state revenue for the 1975-76 school year.

Supt. Joseph Caimi said the reduction in staff will save the school district about $90,000 next year, after unemployment compensation costs are paid.

Caimi said no additional cost-cutting attempts have yet been considered by the board. He said earlier that from 35 to 50 school employes will not be rehired next year.

About 30 people attended the special session, billed as the first move to begin formulating cost-cutting policies, but no objections to the action were voiced.

The board also approved a policy to be followed when the school system's professional staff is to be reduced, for reasons of, " . . . insufficient operating funds, or changing curriculum needs . . ."

Under the new policy, probationary teachers will be laid off first, if there are fully qualified teachers to replace them. If further reductions are necessary, the policy states, " . . . specific positions being reduced or eliminated will be laid off in accordance with certification, qualifications, experience, and length of service. In the event all factors are equal, seniority shall be the determining factor."

Other provisions of the policy state that it is "within the sole discretion of the board of education to reduce the educational program, the professional staff," but that the River Valley Education association will be notified in advance of any reduction.

Caimi said the RVEA had been notified in advance of last night's board action.

In last week's special millage election, Caimi said 1.824 mills in the proposal was for renewal. The other two mills were to be additional.

An estimated 30 per cent of the school district's voters cast ballots in the special election, defeating the proposal by a near 2 to 1 margin of 933-478.

According to school officials, the 14 teachers are: David Blinn, Steve Carigan, Norma Drier, Joan K. Flynn, Robert Franzen, Robert Hay, Gorden Kroening, Donna McCotter, Thomas Paen, Linda Robinson, Wanda Seals, Timothy Theisen, Christine Tamm and Stephanie Gordon.

He Won't Run On Record

ELKHART, Ind. (AP) — The Elkhart County Election Board has decided to let Robert E. Heier run for mayor despite his seven years in prison for assault and battery with intent to commit rape. Heier, whose candidacy was approved by the board Monday, pleaded guilty in 1962 to attacking two Elkhart women. He served seven years at the Indiana State Reformatory and was paroled in 1969. His parole ended Sept. 16, 1970. "I know where I've been, but being in an institution does not make a person a monster," Heier said after the board voted in his favor. "I think I'm capable of running the city just as well as anyone." Heier, a local factory worker, will seek the Democratic nomination against incumbent favorite Daniel E. Hayes.

Bloom'dale Has New School Bus Policy

BLOOMINGDALE — Bloomingdale school board in special session last night adopted a policy for handling bus riding pupils who disobey bus rules.

Board action came in the wake of a decision last month by the district's superintendent of transportation against 13 middle school students as the result of a Feb. 28 disturbance on a bus.

Under the new policy, the school superintendent will act as the intermediary, not the superintendent of transportation.

For a student's first offense, the parents are to be notified within 24 hours. A nine-day suspension from riding the bus will occur for a second offense and a hearing may be held within 48 hours.

A hearing is mandatory following a student's third disruption while riding in a bus. The punishment may vary with the maximum being suspension from riding the bus for the remainder of the year.

The board also agreed to dismiss the disciplinary action brought against the 13 students.

In other areas, the board scheduled an informational hearing on the proposed $4 million school building program on April 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the Bloomingdale elementary gym.

The board approved hiring the Michigan School Board association as its representative for teacher and non-certified personnel contract negotiations for $3,750 plus expenses.

Fish Netting Counts Land 3 In Court

Henry, Michael and Larry Mroczek, all of Decatur, and, Jacolyn M. Stutsman, of Marcellus, were arrested Saturday night by Department of Natural Resources conservation officers and arraigned Monday in St. Joseph's Fifth District court.

They were released on their own recognizance after the arraignment, but the car in which they were riding at the time of the arrest was held pending possible condemnation proceedings.

Berrien county Conservation Officer Bill Edwards reported observing two men fishing in Love creek, a tributary of the St. Joseph river in Berrien township, with a hand net.

Officers said they found 211 pounds of steelhead in burlap bags in the car, plus a hand net and broken-down fishing rod.

Love creek is a designated trout stream and is closed to all fishing until the last Saturday of this month. State game laws prohibit all netting of game fish.

Drug Suspect Returned To Berrien

A Benton Harbor man was returned Monday to Berrien county from San Diego, Calif., to face three charges of delivery of narcotics, the Berrien Metro Narcotics unit reported.

Police said Wheaton was arrested March 19 in San Diego on a warrant from Berrien. He was returned after waiving extradition.

The Berrien Metro Narcotics unit said warrants had been issued for Wheaton Jan. 20 and 21.

POLICE ROUNDUP

Clerk Threatened In $75 Robbery

It was the third robbery since Saturday in the township and Benton Harbor reportedly committed by three bandits, but descriptions were not clear enough to indicate if the same trio was involved.

Three bandits invaded two Benton Harbor homes Saturday and reportedly robbed and assaulted two occupants.

Benton township Patrolman Don Hartman said a clerk at Plangger's Furniture store, 1034 Territorial road, gave the thieves about $75 from a cash drawer. The clerk, identified as Florence Youngblood, 50, said one of the bandits was armed with what appeared to be a two-foot broom handle.

Hartman said the bandits entered the store about 4:25 p.m., milled around for ten minutes, then grabbed Florence Youngblood and demanded money. She as not injured.

St. Joseph police said $5 cash and two cassette tape recorders valued at a total of $300 were stolen from Trinity Lutheran school, 613 court street, St. Joseph. Police said the burglary was reported Monday morning.

Benton Harbor police said a color television, a stereo and two tape players valued at a total of $850 were stolen from the home of Curtis McFall, 555 Plummer court, apartment 1, Benton Harbor.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF OUR MOM, PEARL MARIAN HENTSCHEL, Who passed away April 1, 1958.
This is a day of memories
The saddest of them all,
For it is seventeen years ago today
That God paid us a call
For He took away our Mother,
Whom we cherished through the years
Darling Mom, We find time does not lesson pain nor our love for you.
Never a day goes by, Dear Heart,
Without our prayers for you,
Asking Dear God take care of her,
For we know "You love her too".
Missing You Always,
Daddy & Your Girls

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Extends Decline

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market dropped another notch today in a continuation of the declines that set in Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off about 3 points after the first 15 minutes of trading, and losers held a 3-2 edge on gainers at the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the deteriorating situation in Cambodia and South Vietnam apparently was weighing on the market.

They also noted a general air of caution over impending first quarter reports, which are expected to show sharp declines at many companies because of the recession and raise the prospect of some dividend cuts.

Today's prices included American Home Products, down ⅜ at 38⅛; Texaco, up ⅛ at 24¼; Dresser Industries, down ½ at 48¼, and U.S. Steel, down ½ at 58¼.

Declines outpaced advances by about a 6-5 margin on the NYSE in turnover of 16.27 million shares.

The Big Board's composite index of all its listed common stocks was off .25 at 44.21.

Ford Tops Congress In Poll

NEW YORK (AP) — Most Americans believe President Ford is doing a poor job but even more feel that the Congress' performance is worse, the Harris poll says.

In results released Monday, the polling organization said that of 1,536 households surveyed, 60 per cent feel President Ford is doing a poor job and 67 per cent feel Congress is doing poorer.

The poll said the only time in the last 12 years the Congress has gotten a lower rating was in January 1974, just before the impeachment hearings. At that time, 69 per cent reacted negatively to the Congress and 10 per cent were not sure. Currently, 7 per cent are unsure.

An even larger majority reacted negatively to Congress in its relations to Ford, in its efforts to end the recession, in its handling of taxes and spending, and its overall attempts to keep the economy healthy.

"Most likely, Americans are doubly disappointed in the performance of this primarily Democratic Congress because they gave the Democrats an overwhelming 61-39 per cent vote in last November's elections," the poll said.

Top Court To Review Key Cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court will review decisions which officials say would hamper police, prosecutors and parole officers in dealing with crime.

The court announced Monday it will hear arguments next fall on state and federal appeals from lower court rulings in three crime-related cases.

In one, a U.S. Circuit Court ordered Philadelphia police to investigate within 45 days all complaints of police misconduct.

In another, the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans freed a Florida man because authorities brought him to trial again after a judge had declared a mistrial as a result of the judge's own error.

In the third, the Ohio Supreme Court overturned an armed robbery conviction because the defendant's parole officer had not advised him of his right to remain silent.

Kazoo-Van Buren Jobless Rate Hits 11.3 Per Cent

PAW PAW — Combined unemployment in Kalamazoo and Van Buren counties was 11.3 per cent of the work force in February, up from 9.4 per cent in January, according to the Kalamazoo office of the Michigan Employment Security commission. There were 13,200 people out of jobs in February, compared to 10,900 in January, according to the report which did not list separate unemployment figures for the two counties. A year ago, the report said, there were 6,800 people, or 6 per cent of the labor force, out of work in the two counties.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Frantic Approach Has Sorry Ending

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. Help! Help! We recently received a bequest and are in a quandary as to what to do with it. We are in our 50s. We have some utility shares and $35,000 in savings accounts. We know the money should be working harder but we are "green" and don't know whether to go into mutual funds or stocks. What we would like is income during retirement, six years away. And we also want to leave an estate for the children.

A. The only worrisome part of your letter is that opening — "Help! Help!" I say this because experience has shown me that such a frantic approach generally indicates that a reader will make a hurried, off-the-cuff investment decision (to his detriment) long before I can get back to him, and urge him to "take it easy."

That is what I am urging you to do now. Your phrase "should be working harder" also is dangerous. Money in insured savings today can earn up to 7½ per cent and better than 8 per cent when interest is compounded. So there is no need to rush into an immediate shift of these funds.

In your age bracket you could, over the years to retirement, accumulate some good common stocks as an inflation hedge. The question of retirement should not dominate your thinking now. Time enough for that when you do retire. Meanwhile what you want is to try to build capital and a conservative approach to that would be a gradual accumulation of good common shares over the next few years. When you retire you might consider bonds.

EXERCISING WARRANTS

Q. I own 10 A.T. & T. warrants and wonder if now is the time to turn them in for common stock. How do I transfer some stock I now own to my daughter without having to hire a lawyer?

A. The warrants have until May 15 to run. They entitle the holder to add $52 to each warrant and claim a share of A.T. & T. COMMON. Since you have until May 15, there is no point to your making any decision now. If you were to exercise the warrant now, and the stock were to sell below $52 on May 15, you would have spent money needlessly. If the stock were to rise in price from now right up to May 15, your position would not be prejudiced in any way by waiting.

You don't need an attorney to transfer title to securities. Merely write to the bank which serves as transfer agent (named on the front of the certificate) and it will tell you how to proceed.

Q. We are in our early 50s with all our money in Treasury bills and certificates of deposit. I would like to buy some stock for long-term investment but my wife can't see it unless she can see it grow.

A. This is a common dilemma. And in trying to solve it, one has to weigh hope of financial gain against fear of domestic stress. You could say that your money in long-term certificates is growing at the rate of 7½ per cent per year, or slightly higher if you allow the interest to remain in the account. Of course, you must deduct annual income taxes. There is no point in my even guessing at what rate a long-term stock investment will grow or decline. If your wife has been looking at the stock market of the last six or seven years, she has plenty of ammunition for her argument.

How about a compromise? Let's say you will start by putting only the interest earned by your large cash type investments into common shares on a monthly or quarterly basis. I feel investors in their 50s should have some common stock. But I am perfectly willing to see the commitment made gradually and with relatively small sums. Obviously, you should stay with quality shares, unless you want your wife to tell you, "I told you so."

Tax Cut Foe Backed At Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — As government computers calculate the 1974 income tax rebates due millions of Americans, the senator who led the opposition to the refund is calculating the next federal budget deficit.

Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., who emerged from the obscurity that can engulf a freshman senator to lead the opposition, says the minimum expected deficit in the next fiscal year of $65 billion could lead to more inflation.

"In my opinion, that's at least $15 billion to $20 billion more than we can accommodate without reversing the downward trend in interest rates and consequently the downward trend in the cost of living," Bumpers said Monday.

Rather than finding that his fight against returning up to $200 in tax revenue to the taxpayers was a political liability, Bumpers says it has proven to be an advantage.

Astronomy Job Market Not Infinite

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Aspiring professional astronomers: Beware, the universe may be infinite but the job market isn't.

That's the message of the National Academy of Sciences, which has drafted a form letter for the University of Arizona to use in warning applicants for graduate studies in astronomy to reconsider their plans for the future.

"You should now seriously consider whether your interest in the field is so great that you wish to devote five more years of hard study to astronomy," the letter says in part.

The Academy estimates that over the next five years there will be at least 600 new astronomers with doctorates competing for only 50 to 100 jobs.

New Kind Of Lobby Needed --'Hutch'

its purpose would be to promise a legislator here that taxpayers will work to insure his reelection or defeat as he votes for or against their interests.

He Made the observation in response to numerous complaints from citizens of his Fourth district protesting "some of the more absurd spending programs of various agencies of the federal government." He noted that much publicity had been given recently to such federal expenditures as $117,000 to sustain a Federal Board of Tea Tasters; $85,000 for a study of the impact of rural road construction in Poland, and $70,000 for a study of why people fall in love.

"Yet, despite virtual unanimous opposition to these types of programs by citizens all across the nation, these continue to multiply," the congressman asserted.

He explained:

"New programs devising ways to spend government revenues (i.e. taxpayers dollars) are generally given primary impetus by that group standing most to benefit from the program. As the programs are initiated, molded, developed and finally passed, these interests are able to devote full time to focusing upon them, churning out background information for sympathetic legislators and ency members, issuing press releases and generally attempting to demonstrate the compelling desirability of their pet program."

Each such special interest group "has $500,000, or $5 million, or $5 billion" at stake and works hard to protect it.

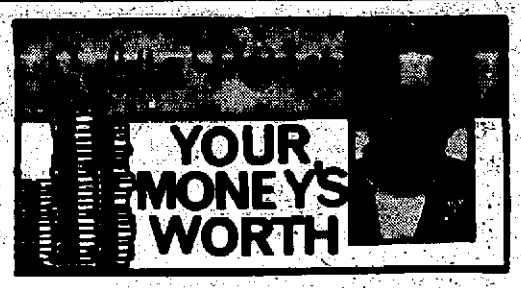
The individual taxpayer stands merely to lose several cents, or at most several dollars, individually upon passage of any of these programs. "Only when they are all tallied up does he feel the painful crunch."

Hutchinson recognized a taxpayers lobby might be impractical, but said several bills have been introduced in Congress that might help the taxpayer.

One, he said, would require spending bills to contain strengthened tax impact statements. Another would increase Congressional monitoring of the spending of agencies it has created—and then frequently forgot about. Another proposal would limit federal taxation to a specified percentage of the Gross National Product, thus placing an absolute ceiling on federal spending during any given year. "The result of this would be that the big spenders would have to compete against each other, rather than competing with the taxpayer by attempting to increase the total size of the federal pie."

CARDINAL DIES

PADERBORN, Germany (AP) — Lorenz Cardinal Jaeger, a mechanic's son who became archbishop of the Westphalian city of Paderborn, died today. He was 82.



OVERHAUL OF FOOD ADS

You are now being invited by the Federal Trade Commission in Washington to say what you think about the FTC's proposals for a revolutionary overhaul of the rules governing all food advertising. The FTC is the top agency regulating our whole advertising industry; food ads — along with food labels — are the prime sources of information on the foods we buy.

The FTC specifically proposes that:

— No food could be advertised as "nutritious" unless it contained at least 10 per cent of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance ("RDA") per 100 calories, of at least four nutrients, including protein;

— Any food advertised as "dietetic" would have to state the number of calories;

— Any "emphatic claim" for a food's nutritional virtues — e.g., "packed with vitamins" — could be made only if the food contained at least 35 per cent of the RDA of the nutrient "emphatically" advertised.

But critics are now pointing out that the easiest way to get around the new rules would be simply to give no information whatsoever on nutritional aspects of advertised foods! Which, of course, would leave all of us much worse off than we are today.

We are steadily reaching new depths of nutritional illiteracy in the U.S. Our ignorance has become a major factor in the relentless decline in our overall nutritional status.

As the White House Conference report on Food, Nutrition and Health put it as far back as 1969: "The gaps in our public knowledge about nutrition, along with actual misinformation carried by some media, are contributing seriously to the problem of hunger and malnutrition in the U.S."

The connection between malnutrition and the "information gap" couldn't be more clearly stated.

As just one illustration of our malnutrition, obesity affects tens of millions of Americans and this potentially deadly disease is directly linked with nutritional illiteracy. The proposed FTC regulations don't even touch on the problems of excess amounts of sugar included in so many foods today or of dangerously excessive (for millions of us) amounts of cholesterol or of dangerously small amounts of fiber.

Although the new rules would apply to the key vitamins and minerals for which Recommended Daily Allowances have been set by the Food & Drug Administration, they don't touch on the crucial importance of at least 20 other "less popular" nutrients.

For example, an orange drink may be loaded with added vitamin C but may have little else — and thus perpetuate the belief that loads of a single nutrient will help the whole body as much as the full range of nutrients in a real orange. The fact is, as many nutritionists stress, that there are more than 40 essential nutrients, and they work in "team" fashion.

Again, wheat processors typically remove most of the nutrients when they make white flour (which goes into cereals and pastries as well as bread) and put back only a few when they later "fortify" the flour. Also ducked is the ticklish issue of "organic" and "natural" foods. The proposal is just to ban the use of these terms in all food advertising — hardly a "solution."

Moreover, the suggested definition of the word "nutritious" (so far as ads are concerned) is that foods must have at least 10 per cent of the official RDA per 100 calories. This would exclude the use of this term for such foods as whole wheat bread, all fruits and fruit juices, most vegetables. And the "emphatic claim" provision would ban advertising milk as a good source of calcium and protein.

The key point is that food advertising "works" in getting us to buy heavily advertised products. And the new rules might, I repeat, compound our confusion, lead to even less informative disclosures.

The food industry's claim during the debate now going on at the highest levels in Washington is that "food buyers (you and me) don't pay any attention to nutrition information, anyway."

Is this true? If not, study the details in today's column, formulate your own questions and suggestions on informative advertising and write to William Dixon, Special Asst. Director for Rulemaking, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580.

Although other Detroit banks are at the new low rate, other major Grand Rapids banks kept the rate they charge their best customers at 7¾ or 8 per cent despite Old Kent's action.

Michigan Minimum Pay Goes Up To $2

A measure aimed at making it less onerous for victims to testify in rape cases and a bundle of bills designed to help consumers also go into the books.

The more than 30 new laws were passed by the legislature last year, many of them under the gun of the November election.

The state minimum wage goes up from $1.60 to $2 an hour. The measure also guarantees overtime pay for more than 48 hours a week.

Another measure will let consumers request prescription drugs by generic name, rather than by the more expensive brand name. Under the socalled Generic Drug Act, consumers must ask their druggist for the generic substitution and doctors retain the power to insist on the brand name.

The new rape law bars defense attorneys from using the victim's previous sexual history as evidence unless specificaly allowed by the judge. The stipulation is designed to encourage victims to testify since their sex lives will not be an open book in court.

The law also classifies rape into degrees of "sexual assault" and covers attacks against men as well as women.

The new package of state laws also authorizes the state Department of Agriculture to ban hazardous toys and requires manufacturers and wholesalers of mechanical, thermal and electrical toys to get a state license.

Other laws require the safety glazing of all glass to be used in bathrooms in public buildings and outlaw the garnishment of wages by creditors without a hearing or court order.

Used car dealers will have to provide consumers with a signed affidavit of a car's actual mileage and private driver training school will be placed under state supervision.

Another law gives the secretary of state's office six months to begin setting up the machinery to certify all non-gasoline station mechanics by 1978. The law also requires guaranteed written estimates.

JOHNSON HEIR DIES

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Keith Johnson, 25, heir to the Johnson & Johnson pharmaceutical fortune, died Sunday. Police attributed death to an overdose of cocaine.

Uncle Sam and MONY have a great idea for people with no pension plan

Under the Pension Reform Act, you can contribute annually up to 15% of your earnings—not to exceed $1500—to a pension plan. You can deduct the entire amount from your taxable income for the year and pay no current income taxes on it whatsoever. In fact, you pay no taxes on it until retirement when, most likely, you will be earning less and in a far lower tax bracket. What's more, the money contributed draws interest and increases rapidly in your retirement fund. And you pay no taxes on the interest, either, until retirement.

Bloom'dale Has New School Bus Policy

BLOOMINGDALE — Bloomingdale school board in special session last night adopted a policy for handling bus riding pupils who disobey bus rules.

Board action came in the wake of a decision last month by the district's superintendent of transportation against 13 middle school students as the result of a Feb. 28 disturbance on a bus.

Stephen Dickerson, transportation superintendent, banned three from riding for 20 days and issued notices to the others.

Under the new policy, the school superintendent will act as the intermediary, not the superintendent of transportation.

For a student's first offense, the parents are to be notified within 24 hours. A nine-day suspension from riding the bus will occur for a second offense and a hearing may be held within 48 hours.

A hearing is mandatory following a student's third disruption while riding in a bus. The punishment may vary with the maximum being suspension from riding the bus for the remainder of the year.

The board also agreed to dismiss the disciplinary action brought against the 13 students.

In other areas, the board scheduled an informational hearing on the proposed $4 million school building program on April 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the Bloomingdale elementary gym.

The board approved hiring the Michigan School Board association as its representative for teacher and non-certified personnel contract negotiations for $3,750 plus expenses.

SJ MEETING

Area Handicapped Eye CETA Funds

Outlining a plan to utilize federal Comprehensive Education Training Act (CETA) funds to find work for members tops tonight's agenda of the Blossomland chapter, National Association of the Physically Handicapped.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 in the headquarters of the Berrien County Easter Seal society, 2015 Lakeview avenue, St. Joseph. The chapter is seeking a CETA grant through Berrien county.

President Helen Job said members must complete forms outlining the program and name a director, assistant and secretary-bookkeeper. The proposal calls for a survey of skills among the handicapped and an appeal to businessmen who might make use of these skills.

Other items on the agenda include selecting delegates and alternates to the Michigan NAPH convention April 25-27 in East Lansing; Dial-a-Ride service including facility with hydraulic lift; Southwestern Michigan Handicapped bowling tournament at Gersonde's Bowling Center, May 8 and 9, and selecting nominating committee for 1975-76 officers.

The chapter has 27 members currently.

Fish Netting Counts Land 3 In Court

Three Decatur men and a Marcellus woman have pleaded innocent to charges of illegally netting 29 steelhead trout from a Berrien county stream.

Henry, Michael and Larry Mroczek, all of Decatur, and, Jacolyn M. Stutsman, of Marcellus, were arrested Saturday night by Department of Natural Resources conservation officers and arraigned Monday in St. Joseph's Fifth District court.

They were released on their own recognizance after the arraignment, but the car in which they were riding at the time of the arrest was held pending possible condemnation proceedings.

Berrien county Conservation Officer Bill Edwards reported observing two men fishing in Love creek, a tributary of the St. Joseph river in Berrien township, with a hand net.

Officers said they found 211 pounds of steelhead in burlap bags in the car, plus a hand net and broken-down fishing rod.

Love creek is a designated trout stream and is closed to all fishing until the last Saturday of this month. State game laws prohibit all netting of game fish.

Drug Suspect Returned To Berrien

A Benton Harbor man was returned Monday to Berrien county from San Diego, Calif., to face three charges of delivery of narcotics, the Berrien Metro Narcotics unit reported.

Booked at Berrien jail was George Harley Wheaton, Jr., 19, of 954 Columbus avenue. He was charged with delivery of LSD, PCP (a tranquilizer) and marijuana.

Police said Wheaton was arrested March 19 in San Diego on a warrant from Berrien. He was returned after waiving extradition.

The Berrien Metro Narcotics unit said warrants had been issued for Wheaton Jan. 20 and 21.

POLICE ROUNDUP

Clerk Threatened In $75 Robbery

Three bandits robbed a Benton township furniture store of $75 Monday by threatening a clerk with a two-foot long stick, township police reported.

It was the third robbery since Saturday in the township and Benton Harbor reportedly committed by three bandits, but descriptions were not clear enough to indicate if the same trio was involved.

Three bandits invaded two Benton Harbor homes Saturday and reportedly robbed and assaulted two occupants.

Benton township Patrolman Don Hartman said a clerk at Plangger's Furniture store, 1034 Territorial road, gave the thieves about $75 from a cash drawer. The clerk, identified as Florence Youngblood, 50, said one of the bandits was armed with what appeared to be a two-foot broom handle.

Hartman said the bandits entered the store about 4:25 p.m., milled around for ten minutes, then grabbed Florence Youngblood and demanded money. She as not injured.

St. Joseph police said $5 cash and two cassette tape recorders valued at a total of $300 were stolen from Trinity Lutheran school, 613 court street, St. Joseph. Police said the burglary was reported Monday morning.

Benton Harbor police said a color television, a stereo and two tape players valued at a total of $850 were stolen from the home of Curtis McFall, 555 Plummer court, apartment 1, Benton Harbor.

This is a day of memories
The saddest of them all,
For it is seventeen years ago today
That God paid us a call
For He took away our Mother,
Whom we cherished through the years
Darling Mom, We find time does not lessen pain nor our love for you.
Never a day goes by, Dear Heart,
Without our prayers for you.

Sugar Leads Decline In Michigan Grocery Prices

By HARRY ATKINS
Associated Press Writer

Led by a dramatic drop in sugar, grocery prices in Michigan during March fell to their lowest average since the Michigan Marketbasket survey was begun by the Associated Press last September.

Prices rose for just four of the 15 Marketbasket items as the over-all statewide average hit $13.77, down 3 per cent from February's $14.30. A high of $15.06 was recorded in November.

The statewide average was $14.04 when the survey began six month ago.

The survey is conducted on the last Friday of every month at one store in each of nine Michigan Marketbasket cities. The store and the items remain the same, allowing month-to-month comparisons.

Last month, the Marketbasket showed a five per cent drop from the November high.

The price of a five-pound bag of sugar, which topped at $2.91 in November, continued to drop, now to $1.79. A low of $1.65 was paid in Pontiac, while Marquette shoppers paid $2.19.

Chopped chuck also showed a nice decline, dropping an average of six cents over February. Flint shoppers paid a low of 88 cents while Gaylord shoppers paid $1.19.

One pound of coffee dropped to an average of $1.24, matching a low reached in December. Coffee reached a high $1.29 in September. Lansing and Grand Rapids shoppers paid a low $1.19 for their coffee while Marquette consumers paid $1.37.

A 33-ounce bottle of fabric softener dropped two cents to 83 cents in March. It topped at 88 cents in December. Mount Clemens shoppers paid a low of 51 cents while Grand Rapids shoppers paid $1.63 for the same item.

Chocolate chip cookies also declined in March to an average of $1.02 for a 14½-ounce package. The cookies were a low of 97 cents in Mount Clemens and hit a high of $1.09 in both Lansing and St. Joseph.

The highest increase came at the frozen food section, where orange juice was up six cents to an average 35 cents. A six-ounce can sold for a high of 89 cents in Gaylord and a low of 22 cents in Grand Rapids.

The cost of two rolls of paper towels continued to increase for the third month from 71 cents in February to an average 72 cents. They were at 61 cents in October. Towels sold for a high of $1.09 in Pontiac and a low of 63 cents in Gaylord.

A dozen medium eggs, which topped at 83 cents in December, were 66 cents in March, up two cents from the month before. Lansing paid a high of 79 cents for the eggs while Flint was low at 53 cents.

Prices at the hot dog counter also rose again. One pound of all-beef franks, which had been as high as $1.21 in November and then dropped to $1.15 in February, were $1.16 in March. Gaylord shoppers paid $1.39 for the franks while Lansing shoppers got them for a low of 79 cents.

Flint, $13.20, down 38 cents; Mount Clemens, $13.13, down 67 cents; Lansing, $13.62, down 46 cents; Grand Rapids, $13.79, down 51 cents; Detroit, $14.05, 38 cents; St. Joseph, $13.74, down 70 cents; Marquette, $14.25, down 21 cents; Pontiac, $13.85, down 68 cents; and Gaylord, $14.85, down eight cents.

BICENTENNIAL GIVEAWAYS

Patriotic Knicknacks On The Way

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Minuteman alarm clock? A fake pewter ice bucket shaped more or less like the Liberty Bell? The Declaration of Independence used as a shopping bag? The Old Glory flying from the eraser end of some company's giveaway pencils?

Happy 200th Birthday, U.S.A.

America's gewgaw industry is planning a flood of patriotic mementoes and knicknacks keyed to the nation's Bicentennial celebration, a 22-month observance that began officially March 1.

The items to be hawked, given away or stamped with advertising slogans vary in price from expensive to cheap, and in quality from good to abysmal.

Some of the best are being licensed by the federal government, which will rake in $3 million to $5 million in royalties to be used to help finance state and local bicentennial celebrations. Some of the worst ... well, opinions will vary on that.

Here is a sampler of some of the items you will be offered in the name of patriotism in the coming months.

—An alarm clock "patriotically enamelled in red, white and blue," according to the manufacturer's advertisements. It bears crossed American flags on the face; a 13-star version from 1776, and a present-day version with 50 stars. When the alarm sounds, two tiny drummers in Continental Army uniforms beat what the company described as a "rousing salute" on their miniature drums. Price: $19.95 suggested retail.

—A "pewtertone" aluminum ice bucket shaped something like the Liberty Bell. The manufacturer claims it is "A $35 retail value" but he'll give one free to anyone who buys 500 of his red, white and blue ballpoint pens as advertising giveaways.

—Plastic shopping bags with the Declaration of Independence reproduced on one side and advertising copy on the other. The item "enhances the name, image and message of the sponsoring company," according to the manufacturer.

—Giveaway pencils and pens bearing company names and slogans such as "It's great to be an American!," "America, the best spot on earth and let's keep it that way," or more quietly, "In the spirit of our forefathers." The top of the line is a pencil with a miniature American flag attached to the eraser end. The slogan: "We'll do our part to keep it waving, will you do yours?"

All these items are privately sold with no official endorsement. But the government also is getting into the act. Congress authorized the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration (ARBA) — the nation's birthday-party coordinator — to sell official medallions and to license the production of official Bicentennial products.

The sale of government-minted Bicentennial medallions already has brought in some $6 million to help pay for official observances. The licensing program is just getting up steam, but already has approved use of official symbol on items including paperweights, belt buckles, privately minted pewter and silver ingots, board games with historical themes, coffee cups and tri-cornered hats.

The ARBA rejects items it deems to have no educational, historical or commemorative value, or those of low quality. One item recently scorned was a glass paperweight with numerous blisters and fuzzy yellow lettering.

The most expensive of the "official" mementoes is a $3,000 series of sterling silver ingots depicting "the 100 most significant events in American history," including women's suffrage, the moon landing, and President Nixon's resignation.

Other items are more reasonable. A small marble paperweight bearing the Great Seal of the United States sells for around $8. Bicentennial belt buckles go for $2.50 to $6, with a sterling silver version selling for $80.

Unauthorized use of the official symbol — a white star surrounded by swirls of red, white and blue — can be punishable by up to six months in jail and a $250 fine. But anybody can use the word "bicentennial," and most products are going without the government's stamp of approval.

Some of the most expensive items are being sold under license from a private corporation, "The U.S. Bicentennial Society," that has no connection with the government.

Reproductions of one of George Washington's swords are being sold for $925. The seller's "arms consultant" says the original sword is probably the one worn by Washington at his inauguration in 1789, but the seller concedes that "historians can never be absolutely certain which side arm Washington wore that day."

The company also has licensed reproductions of Washington's flintlock pistols to be sold for $2,500 the pair, and a limited-edition tea set that will go for $5,000. Lower-priced items include jigsaw puzzles of Revolutionary-era paintings and a needlepoint calendar.

Another unofficial souvenir, being offered by an auto rental company, is a $120 pair of brass plaques bearing reproductions of the Bill of Rights and the Declaration of Independence. They "provide an elegant and tasteful display in living room, play room, den (or) office," according to the seller.

Such commercial ventures are nothing new. Souvenirs and advertising giveaways were common a century ago when the nation celebrated its 100th birthday with an exposition at Philadelphia.

Companies gave away items like soap bars and tiny tin buckets of lard especially made up for the occasion. Pattern-glass tumblers were sold bearing mottoes such as "100 years ago," or "Centennial, 1876." There were George Washington book marks, George and Martha Washington belt buckles and George Washington coffee cups.

Some of these items were passed along from generation to generation as family keepsakes, and samples are being assembled now by the Smithsonian Institution for an exhibit next year.

The Smithsonian will not estimate the current value of these century-old souvenirs, but one commercial guide puts the price of a George Washington centennial coffee cup at $40.

An empty sample tin of Naphy's Leaf Lard, stamped with the dates 1776 and 1876, sells for $18 now. It was free then, which shows that today's junk sometimes turns out to be tomorrow's treasure.

Colby Will Be Speaker

NEW YORK (AP) — CIA Director William E. Colby will address The Associated Press membership luncheon in New Orleans on April 7, Board Chairman Paul Miller has announced.

Colby will replace Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, Minister of Oil and Mines, Saudi Arabia, at the luncheon Miller said Monday.

Yamin cabled, "due to the tragic death of his majesty the late King Faisal it will not be possible for me to travel to the U.S." King Faisal was assassinated last week.

Miller said Colby's program position at the annual meeting would be taken by Special Correspondent Peter Arnett, Associated Press Pulitzer prize winner, who will be flown back from Saigon to make a report on Indochina and developments there.

Sugar Leads Decline In Michigan Grocery Prices

By HARRY ATKINS
Associated Press Writer

Led by a dramatic drop in sugar, grocery prices in Michigan during March fell to their lowest average since the Michigan Marketbasket survey was begun by the Associated Press last September.

It marked the fourth straight month prices in the survey have declined.

Prices rose for just four of the 15 Marketbasket items as the over-all statewide average hit $13.77, down 3 per cent from February's $14.30. A high of $15.06 was recorded in November.

The statewide average was $14.04 when the survey began six month ago.

The survey is conducted on the last Friday of every month at one store in each of nine Michigan Marketbasket cities. The store and the items remain the same, allowing month-to-month comparisons.

Last month, the Marketbasket showed a five per cent drop from the November high.

The price of a five-pound bag of sugar, which topped at $2.91 in November, continued to drop, now to $1.79. A low of $1.65 was paid in Pontiac, while Marquette shoppers paid $2.19.

Chopped chuck also showed a nice decline, dropping an average of six cents over February. Flint shoppers paid a low of 88 cents while Gaylord shoppers paid $1.19.

One pound of coffee dropped to an average of $1.24, matching a low reached in December. Coffee reached a high $1.29 in September. Lansing and Grand Rapids shoppers paid a low $1.19 for their coffee while Marquette consumers paid $1.37.

A 33-ounce bottle of fabric softener dropped two cents to 83 cents in March. It topped at 88 cents in December. Mount Clemens shoppers paid a low of 51 cents while Grand Rapids shoppers paid $1.63 for the same item.

Chocolate chip cookies also declined in March to an average of $1.02 for a 14½-ounce package. The cookies were a low of 97 cents in Mount Clemens and hit a high of $1.09 in both Lansing and St. Joseph.

The highest increase came at the frozen food section, where orange juice was up six cents to an average 35 cents. A six-ounce can sold for a high of 89 cents in Gaylord and a low of 22 cents in Grand Rapids.

The cost of two rolls of paper towels continued to increase for the third month from 71 cents in February to an average 72 cents. They were at 61 cents in October. Towels sold for a high of $1.09 in Pontiac and a low of 63 cents in Gaylord.

A dozen medium eggs, which topped at 83 cents in December, were 66 cents in March, up two cents from the month before. Lansing paid a high of 79 cents for the eggs while Flint was low at 53 cents.

Prices at the hot dog counter also rose again. One pound of all-beef franks, which had been as high as $1.21 in November and then dropped to $1.15 in February, were $1.16 in March. Gaylord shoppers paid $1.39 for the franks while Lansing shoppers got them for a low of 79 cents.

Prices on pork chops, butter, detergent, peanut butter and tomato sauce remained unchanged over February.

Gaylord and Marquette shoppers continued to pay the highest price for the Marketbasket, $14.85 and $14.25 respectively. Shoppers at Mount Clemens paid a statewide low of $13.13

The nine cities checked and the price of their March basket as compared with February are as follows:

Flint, $13.20, down 38 cents; Mount Clemens, $13.13, down 67 cents; Lansing, $13.62, down 46 cents; Grand Rapids, $13.79, down 51 cents; Detroit, $14.05, 38 cents; St. Joseph, $13.74, down 70 cents; Marquette, $14.25, down 21 cents; Pontiac, $13.85, down 68 cents; and Gaylord, $14.85, down eight cents.

BICENTENNIAL GIVEAWAYS

Patriotic Knicknacks On The Way

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Minuteman alarm clock? A fake pewter ice bucket shaped more or less like the Liberty Bell? The Declaration of Independence used as a shopping bag? The Old Glory flying from the eraser end of some company's giveaway pencils?

Happy 200th Birthday, U.S.A.

America's gewgaw industry is planning a flood of patriotic mementoes and knicknacks keyed to the nation's Bicentennial celebration, a 22-month observance that began officially March 1.

The items to be hawked, given away or stamped with advertising slogans vary in price from expensive to cheap, and in quality from good to abysmal.

Some of the best are being licensed by the federal government, which will rake in $3 million to $5 million in royalties to be used to help finance state and local bicentennial celebrations. Some of the worst ... well, opinions will vary on that.

Here is a sampler of some of the items you will be offered in the name of patriotism in the coming months.

—An alarm clock "patriotically enamelled in red, white and blue," according to the manufacturer's advertisements. It bears crossed American flags on the face; a 13-star version from 1776, and a present-day version with 50 stars. When the alarm sounds, two tiny drummers in Continental Army uniforms beat what the company described as a "rousing salute" on their miniature drums. Price: $19.95 suggested retail.

—A "pewtertone" aluminum ice bucket shaped something like the Liberty Bell. The manufacturer claims it is "A $35 retail value" but he'll give one free to anyone who buys 500 of his red, white and blue ballpoint pens as advertising giveaways.

—Plastic shopping bags with the Declaration of Independence reproduced on one side and advertising copy on the other. The item, "enhances the name, image and message of the sponsoring company," according to the manufacturer.

—Giveaway pencils and pens bearing company names and slogans such as "It's great to be an American!," "America, the best spot on earth and let's keep it that way," or more quietly, "In the spirit of our forefathers." The top of the line is a pencil with a miniature American flag attached to the eraser end. The slogan: "We'll do our part to keep it waving, will you do yours?"

All these items are privately sold with no official endorsement. But the government also is getting into the act. Congress authorized the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration (ARBA) — the nation's birthday-party coordinator — to sell official medallions and to license the production of official Bicentennial products.

The sale of government-minted Bicentennial medallions already has brought in some $6 million to help pay for official observances. The licensing program is just getting up steam, but already has approved use of official symbol on items including paperweights, belt buckles, privately minted pewter and silver ingots, board games with historical themes, coffee cups and tri-cornered hats.

The ARBA rejects items it deems to have no educational, historical or commemorative value, or those of low quality. One item recently scorned was a glass paperweight with numerous blisters and fuzzy yellow lettering.

The most expensive of the "official" mementoes is a $3,000 series of sterling silver ingots depicting "the 100 most significant events in American history," including women's suffrage, the moon landing, and President Nixon's resignation.

Other items are more reasonable. A small marble paperweight bearing the Great Seal of the United States sells for around $8. Bicentennial belt buckles go for $2.50 to $6, with a sterling silver version selling for $80.

Unauthorized use of the official symbol — a white star surrounded by swirls of red, white and blue — can be punishable by up to six months in jail and a $250 fine. But anybody can use the word "bicentennial," and most products are going without the government's stamp of approval.

Some of the most expensive items are being sold under license from a private corporation, "The U.S. Bicentennial Society," that has no connection with the government.

Reproductions of one of George Washington's swords are being sold for $925. The seller's "arms consultant" says the original sword is probably the one worn by Washington at his inauguration in 1789, but the seller concedes that "historians can never be absolutely certain which side arm Washington wore that day."

The company also has licensed reproductions of Washington's flintlock pistols to be sold for $2,500 the pair, and a limited-edition tea set that will go for $5,000. Lower-priced items include jigsaw puzzles of Revolutionary-era paintings and a needlepoint calendar.

Another unofficial souvenir, being offered by an auto rental company, is a $120 pair of brass plaques bearing reproductions of the Bill of Rights and the Declaration of Independence. They "provide an elegant and tasteful display in living room, play room, den (or) office," according to the seller.

Such commercial ventures are nothing new. Souvenirs and advertising giveaways were common a century ago when the nation celebrated its 100th birthday with an exposition at Philadelphia.

Companies gave away items like soap bars and tiny tin buckets of lard especially made up for the occasion. Pattern-glass tumblers were sold bearing mottoes such as "100 years ago," or "Centennial, 1876." There were George Washington book marks, George and Martha Washington belt buckles and George Washington coffee cups.

Some of these items were passed along from generation to generation as family keepsakes, and samples are being assembled now by the Smithsonian Institution for an exhibit next year.

The Smithsonian will not estimate the current value of these century-old souvenirs, but one commercial guide puts the price of a George Washington centennial coffee cup at $40.

An empty sample tin of Naphy's Leaf Lard, stamped with the dates 1776 and 1876, sells for $18 now. It was free then, which shows that today's junk sometimes turns out to be tomorrow's treasure.

Colby Will Be Speaker

NEW YORK (AP) — CIA Director William E. Colby will address The Associated Press membership luncheon in New Orleans on April 7, Board Chairman Paul Miller has announced.

Colby will replace Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, Minister of Oil and Mines, Saudi Arabia, at the luncheon Miller said Monday.

Yamin cabled, "due to the tragic death of his majesty the late King Faisal it will not be possible for me to travel to the U.S." King Faisal was assassinated last week.

Miller said Colby's program position at the annual meeting would be taken by Special Correspondent Peter Arnett, Associated Press Pulitzer prize winner, who will be flown back from Saigon to make a report on Indochina and developments there.
